TWO KILLED, 7 HURT IN AUTO CRASH IN COUNTY

Merrymakers Returning From Bridlespur Hunt Club Steeplechase Collide Head-on With Another Car on Manchester Road.

NO LIGHTS ON ONE MACHINE, IT IS SAID

J. Edward Stamm Jr., Fred J. Rebholz and Norman Kerner Lose Lives — Owner of Car Questioned.

Two men were killed and seven other persons were injured, five seriously, when a party of merry-makers, returning in an automobile from the Bridlespur Hunt Club's steeplechase at Huntleigh Downs, crashed head-on into another car on Manchester road, east of Hanley road, Maplewood, at 8:45 o'clock last night.

The dead are J. Edward Stamm Jr., 32 years old, a salesman, of 7025 Amherst avenue, University City, who was returning with his wife and three other persons from the hunt club, after a stop at a roadhouse, and Norman Kerner, 17-year-old high school student, 3740 Tennessee avenue, riding in the other machine.

Most seriously injured were Mrs. Howard K. Reeder, 6514 Berthold avenue, said to have been driving the car from the hunt club, who suffered a skull injury, severe lacerations of the face and internal injuries; Fred J. Rebholz, a real estate man, 3937 Holly Hills boulevard, crushed chest; Mrs. Stamm, fractured jaw and internal injuries; Andrew Kadlez, 3517 Utah street, fractured skull, and Russell Harrell, 16, 5604 Finkman avenue, fractured skull.

Others injured were Wilbur F. Hannauer, 3147 Allen avenue, a St. Louis District Assessor and son of Joseph W. Hannauer, former member of the Election Board, face lacerations; and Carl Roberts, an errand boy, 3523 Utah street, lacerations of the face and body, head injury and shock.

Had Drinks at Tavern.

In addition to Mrs. Reeder and the Stamms, members of the steeplechase party were Hannauer and Rebholz. They were driving east on Manchester, after having had drinks at the Eleven-Mile House, at road, Kirkwood, about three miles road, KiKrkwood, about three miles west of the scene of the accident.

The westbound car was driven by Roberts, who told police he was driving on the right side of the road, and that the other car approached without lights. Both machines were coupes with rumble seats. Rebholz and Stamm were in the rumble seat of one car and Harrell and Kerner in the rumble seat of the other.

Hannauer, least seriously injured of his party and owner of the car, was pronounced intoxicated by physicians at St. Louis County Hospital, where the injured were taken. He was unable to give a coherent account of the accident, but finally told police Mrs. Reeder was the driver. However, police decided to hold him as a witness.

Got Into Wrong Car.

Police said they learned there had been a mix-up at the roadhouse; that Mrs. Reeder apparently got into Hannauer's car by mistake and that a member of Hannauer's party got into the machine of Mrs. Reeder's husband. The two cars were said to have started east near together.

When police reached the scene of the accident, the Hannauer automobile was facing east on the north side of the road and the Roberts car faced south on the south shoulder of the highway. Manchester road passes under a railroad viaduct and curves near the point of the crash.

4 IN AUTO DROWN IN POND

Car Goes Off Bridge; All Victims Over 70 Years Old.

By the Associated Press.

BETHEL, Me., Oct. 2.—Four men drowned today when their automobile plunged over a bridge into Mill Pond near here.

They were identified as Willis Waite, owner and driver of the car; William Kidder and Albert Root, all of Dixfield, and John Trask of Mexico, all over 70 years of age.

Endeavour Skipper Tells Of Wild Crossing; Fought Winds of 105 Miles an Hour

Men Lashed to Wheel One by One as All Fought to Save Racing Yacht in Atlantic Hurricane.

(Copyright, 1937.)

GOSPORT, Eng., Oct. 2.—It is ten times now that I have crossed the Atlantic ocean, but never did I strike a breeze like that which struck us when a day out of Newport with the steam yacht Viva towing us home.

The breeze came suddenly, soon hitting us with a force of 105 miles an hour.

With thunder deafening us and lightning blinding us, the Endeavour swung up and down like a pendulum.

As waves hit fore and aft and below, the crew were tossed like shuttlecocks. I never want another night like it.

Danger? No, you never think of danger in a storm like that. The whole ship was lit up by lightning and the ninety fathoms of towing rope dragged our bows down, threatening to sink us.

Men Lashed to Wheel.

We lashed the men to the wheel one by one for an hour at a time—as much as any of us could stand. When the waves swung the wheel it almost broke our backs and wrenched our arms from their sockets.

You can't think of danger at a time like that, unless you want to sink. You've got your ship to get clear and your men to look after.

"We're in a storm," said I to myself. "We've got to do our best to get out of it."

Then a wave hit me and the 21 of my men aboard. I sent all below except three—myself, Jack Gampton, the first mate, of Brixham and Bob Parker, who was lashed to the wheel.

Nearly Washed Overboard.

After I had made the arrangements with Parker at the wheel, a wave hit me and washed me down lee-ward. There's no rail to save you aboard the Endeavour. She pitched over as I slid across the deck. The mate grabbed me and pulled me to the center of the boat and that's why I'm here now.

Another wave then struck the ship and washed Parker off his feet. It swept him half the width of the boat but his safety cord saved him.

When I saw that happen I decided it was every man for himself. I ordered Parker below and the mate and I lashed ourselves to the wheel.

Log of Endeavour.

Let's go back to the start of my log on Sunday, Sept. 12. At 2 p. m. that day the Viva weighed anchor and left Newport for home with Endeavour in tow. My midnight entry reads:

"Log: Hundred miles. Wind light, S. S. E. Very hard rain."

On Monday, the 13th, we ran into the breeze. Here is the log:

"Rained hard whole night. Sky looking anything but good. Twelve noon, wind and sea moderate. Sky overcast. Position, latitude 40.24 north, longitude 66.45 west, 234 miles from Brenton Light Vessel."

At 1:45 p. m., the sea was making. I called up to the Viva to reduce its speed to nine knots. Endeavour was beginning to pitch heavily.

At 6 p. m., with the wind freshening from the southeast and a big sea running, I called to the Viva to reduce her speed to five knots.

At 8 p. m., it looked as though we were in for a dirty night and readied our sea anchor for use in case of emergency. I called Viva and told him if we had to slip would ride at sea anchor.

Hurricane Wind.

At 10:30 p. m., the wind unexpectedly reached hurricane force. The ship was all awash.

"Visibility nil," the log continued. "Hard driving rain and vivid lightning. Heavy claps of thunder. Fortunate in having sails stowed, all but mizzen."

When that was written the rain was coming in solid blinding sheets. I couldn't see six inches ahead of me.

The mate and I were standing huddled half-way forward, clinging for our lives. Everyone else was below.

"I wonder what's happened to the Viva?" I said to the mate. We thought she was still towing us, but then we suddenly swung around stern first.

The next thing, seas poured down the main cabin, which was fitted as the crews' quarters for the voyage home.

The sea anchor saved the situation. My log says that at 11:30 p. m. the ship started making sternway. Either the tow-rope had parted or the Viva had cut away.

Ship Unmanageable.

Our ship was entirely unmanageable and I decided to let go the sea anchor. One hand came up and lent the mate a hand and we got the anchor overboard.

We lashed the wheel, battened down the hatches and with the little mizzen set in order to keep

PENSIONS ASKED FOR VETERANS UNABLE TO GET REGULAR JOBS

Congressional Action Demanded by National Council of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 2.—The Veterans of Foreign Wars demanded today that Congress enact legislation providing for pensions for all American war veterans who are unable, because of age or other disability, to obtain regular employment.

This action was part of a four-point program adopted by the National Council of Administration of the V. F. W., the organization's policy-determining body which is holding its annual meeting here.

Commander-in-chief Scott O. Squyres, Oklahoma City, said of point No. 3 of the program, labeled "jobs or pensions for all veterans":

"We believe America owes every overseas veteran the opportunity of earning a decent livelihood. If industry is unable to find a place for these veterans, and if they are to be denied civil service preferences in Government jobs, we insist Congress must consider the future security and welfare of these veterans through the enactment of pension legislation."

Other points of the program were: Keep America out of war; adequate care for widows, orphans and dependent children of overseas veterans; promotion and protection of Americanism.

DEPUTIES ROUTE STRIKERS PICKETING MICHIGAN PLANT

Walkout at Port Huron Unauthorized, Organizer for the Union Says.

By the Associated Press.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 2.—A squad of deputies led by Sheriff William L. Van Antwerp fought strikers blockading the gate of the American Enameled Magnet Wire Co., a subsidiary of the Electric Autolite Corporation, here today.

Charging that the management was discharging all workers who joined the United Automobile Workers of America Local Union No. 127, 100 men formed a picket line in front of he plant gate. Sheriff Van Antwerp demanded that the entrance be cleared within five minutes. When the pickets failed to obey, he led a charge of deputies who swung clubs. No serious injuries were reported.

The entrance was cleared but pickets continued to march in front of the plant.

William Kics, local organizer for the United Automobile Workers, said early in the day the strike was unauthorized and asked the members of his union to wait until Monday before starting to picket the plant.

PRESIDENT HEADS FOR MONTANA; WHEELER'S HOME

Leader of Fight Against Plan to Pack Supreme Court Not on Train, but Colleague Is.

ROOSEVELT VISITS GRAND COULEE DAM

Real Motive in Making Trip Remains Mystery — Belief Grows He Will Call Special Session.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN, EN ROUTE FROM THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST, Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt was heading tonight into Montana, home state of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, leader of the fight against the President's plan to pack the Supreme Court. Montana's other Democratic Senator, James Murray, who broke with Wheeler to support the plan, boarded the train at Spokane, Wash., last night, and had dinner with the President.

Whether Wheeler had been invited to join the presidential party could not be ascertained, but the belief was virtually unanimous that he had not. A similar snub was administered in Wyoming to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, and in Nebraska to Senator Edward Burke, Democrats who joined Wheeler in opposing the court plan.

The President maintained complete silence concerning Friday night's radio speech by Justice Hugo L. Black. Inquiries made through his secretary, Marvin McIntyre, elicited only the terse response: "No comment."

In his only public allusion to the Black controversy—made during a White House press conference immediately after the newspaper disclosure that Black had once been a member of the Ku Klux Klan—Mr. Roosevelt said there would be no comment until after Black's return from Europe. The prevailing belief on this train is that there never will be any comment on the subject from the President. The Supreme Court will reconvene before Roosevelt returns to Washington.

Lunche With Cardinal Mundelein.

Intense interest was aroused on board the train tonight by a casual announcement from Secretary McIntyre that the President has an engagement to lunch with Cardinal Mundelein, of the Catholic Church, during the President's stay in Chicago next Tuesday. Newspaper men, with exception, immediately associated this meeting with the disclosure of Justice Black's former membership in the Klan, and the political repercussions caused by the disclosure.

How or when the luncheon engagement was made, could not be learned. It appeared that the President's popularity with Catholic voters might be either helped or harmed by the meeting. If it turns out to be entirely cordial, many Catholic laymen might accept it as evidence of the Cardinal's confidence in the President. If anything occurs to indicate that the prelate is dissatisfied with the course of events in the Black matter, it certainly would do the administration no good, with the members of that church.

Visits Grand Coulee Dam.

The chief item on today's presidential program was a trip of inspection to Grand Coulee, Wash., site of the gigantic dam being constructed with PWA funds. During a brief, extemporaneous talk there, the President repeated his purpose to employ the power and irrigation resources of the northwest, creating new homes and farms for the farm refugees of the drouth and dust stricken of the middlewestern plains.

The Grand Coulee Dam, largest masonry structure ever undertaken by man, will be an impressive sight. Spanning the mighty gorge through which the turbulent Columbia River rushes toward the Pacific, it will rise 550 feet in the air. The backwaters will form a lake 151 miles long, reaching to the Canadian border.

The United States Reclamation Service calculates that more than 2,000,000 acres will be irrigated from the lake, and that this land—not now under cultivation—will be settled by persons who, in turn, will consume much of the power generated at the dam. Unless that grandiose hope materializes, it is difficult to see how the Government will find a market for power.

The surrounding country is a wild expanse of rugged mountains

JUSTICE BLACK TO TAKE SEAT BUT DISPUTE GOES ON

Ceremony Tomorrow at Supreme Court — Roosevelt Keeps Silent on Speech of Appointee.

LEAVES PARTY TO FACE KLAN ISSUE

Colleagues Seeking Re-election Likely to Be Confronted With Question They Believed Dead.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Justice Hugo L. Black, having admitted he was once a member of the Ku Klux Klan in his nation-wide radio address last night, prepared today to take his seat for the first time Monday as a member of the United States Supreme Court.

Both his friends and opponents, however, carried on the dispute as to his fitness for the position to which he was nominated by President Roosevelt.

Generally his friends took the position that he had made an adequate explanation of the Klan charges when he said that he had joined the order 15 years ago but later had resigned and never rejoined. They echoed his hope the controversy would end with his radio statement.

Many among those who opposed his appointment said their views were not changed by his speech.

Roosevelt Keeps Quiet.

President Roosevelt maintained complete silence on the speech. Observers speculated whether the President would have anything to say on the matter when he returns after his western trip. He is due back Wednesday.

At the Supreme Court all was in readiness for the former Democratic Senator from Alabama to take his seat when the tribunal reconvenes after its summer recess. Black was sworn in as a Justice soon after his nomination was confirmed, but it was expected that Monday he would take another oath at the bench in keeping with the traditional formalities for seating a new Justice.

Alleging that Justice Black should be barred from serving because he was a member of the Senate when the Supreme Court Retirement Act was passed, Albert Levitt, former Federal Judge in the Virgin Islands, has asked the Court to refuse him a seat.

Levitt argues the retirement act increased the emoluments of Supreme Court members. Appointment of any Congressman to an office whose emoluments were increased during his term is forbidden by the Constitution.

The Court may deny Levitt's petition, thereby killing it, or it may direct him to file a formal complaint after which arguments would be heard and a decision rendered.

Courtesy Confirmations.

Whatever other results are to follow Justice Black's admission, Senate "courtesy" confirmations of its own members nominated for the bench or almost any other Government post except in the Cabinet are on their way out.

The episode foreshadows to the minds of most Washington observers as complete an extinction for courtesy confirmations for Senators as closed-door executive sessions of the Senate to consider nominations or treaties have already suffered.

Unquestionably, as political observers here see it, the long-awaited Black statement in reply to charges of Klan membership does not relieve presidential embarrassment over having named a former Klan member to the Supreme Court. It has not eased the situation for party colleagues of the Justice soon to seek renomination and election in sections where slumbering anti-Klan sentiment, now rearoused, may be a local political factor.

SPY KILLED IN GANGSTER FASHION IN SWITZERLAND

Three Arrests, Two in Paris, After Body Is Found Riddled With Machine Gun Bullets.

PARIS, Oct. 2. — Miss Renate Steiner, a Swiss, 29 years old was arrested in Lausanne today and Louis Cucomet, 35 and Dmitri Shirenski, 40 in Paris, in connection with the killing of Ignace Reiss, 38.

Reiss, a Pole, who is known in several capitals as a secret agent was found murdered near Chamblandes, Switzerland, in the Canton of Vaud. His body had been riddled with machine-gun bullets.

His death was "the well-planned execution of an agent who talked too much," said Swiss police, who are working on the case in co-operation with the French Surete Nationale.

CHINESE SOLDIERS GET $14.50 FOR EACH GENERAL CAPTURED

Japanese Find Prize List on Prisoner; Rifle, $1.45, Warship, $14,500.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 2.—The current Chinese quotation on a live Japanese General is $14.50, Japanese military authorities report.

They said their information came from a Chinese Government "price-list" found on a prisoner taken in the Shanghai fighting. It purported to itemize the prize to be paid for the capture of everything from a Japanese rifle to a Japanese warship.

The quotations in United States currency follow:

For capturing a private, $5.80; an officer, $8.70; a General $14.50; a spy, $14.50; a rifle or pistol, $1.45; a tank, $145; an airplane, $290; a heavy machine gun, $23.20; and a destroyer, $2900.

The biggest catch of all is a major warship. Chinese authorities promised to pay their men $14,500 for the capture of one, the Japanese said.

Japanese authorities quoted the Chinese prisoner as saying, "It's nice work if you can get it."

WAR ORPHANS IN SHANGHAI FIGHT FOR FOOD IN STREETS

Hundreds of Famished Children Present Problem to Health Authorities.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—Hundreds of famfished, dirty, half-naked war orphans—are roaming the streets and alleys of Shanghai.

They spend their days in an endless hunt for food. At night they flock to refugee camps, hide in alleyways, or seek shelter in empty garbage cans or dry goods boxes. Unluckier ones lie in gutters or doorways.

The slightest display of charity brings an avalanche of youthful humanity, fighting desperately for any part of it.

These children present a new problem to health and police authorities. No agency is equipped to care for them.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, Oct. 2. — Japan's apparently irresistible North China army continued today to conquer important Chinese sectors and steadily drive the enemy back toward the Yellow River.

Many observers thought the backbone of Chinese resistance in the North was broken when a Japanese column invaded Shantung province, occupying the city of Sangyuan, on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

From Sangyuan, the Japanese reported their troops were moving south to Tehchow, an important rail center which has already been bombed several times.

This conquest stretched Japan's battle front from Shantung on the Pacific Coast 300 miles across central Hopeh province to northern Shansi.

In north Shansi another Japanese column, fresh from the capture of Taichow, was marching rapidly toward Taiyuanfu, provincial capital. A two-hour hand-grenade battle along the top of the city walls was necessary before the Japanese could force the main gate.

30,000 More Troops Land.

Foreign observers declared Chinese forces along the Peiping-Hankow and Tientsin-Pukow railroads were so disorganized that there was little likelihood of any concerted stand capable of staying Japan's advance.

Thirty thousand fresh Japanese troops were disembarked at Chinwangtao to reinforce and hasten Japan's southward drive toward the Yellow River.

The richest coal and iron deposits in China are nearly within the grasp of the advancing Japanese. The Shansi mines have been guarded jealously for the last 30 years by the famous warlord, Yen Hsi-shan, but he is now enfeebled with age and diabetes and the invaders expect him to offer no resistance to the seizure of the province and its treasure.

Taichow Walls Stormed.

The capture of Taichow resulted from what Japanese militarists described as one of the bravest maneuvers of the North China warfare.

DEFENSES WITHSTAND SHELLS AND BOMBS

Invaders Land More Soldiers for Bigger Offensive—Their Planes Raid Forts Near Canton and Gunboats Along Coast.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 3 (Sunday). — Japan's offensive by land, river and air buckled for the sixth consecutive day today against the concrete defenses of the Chinese troops entrenched in Chapei on the outskirts of the International Settlement.

After hours of fierce attacks and counter attacks, in which every weapon of modern warfare Japan could muster was employed, Chinese said their lines still were intact.

Huge showers of debris and smoke sprayed the battlefield as Japanese warplanes dropped demolition bombs. The fleet of Japanese warships in the Whangpoo River methodically criss-crossed the area with a moving barrage.

Wave after wave of tanks, protecting Japanese infantrymen, roared down on the Chinese positions. The Chinese devised pronged traps from torn-up railroad tracks. These stalled the tanks while Chinese machine gunners mowed down the advancing enemy soldiers behind.

Japanese Patrols Repulsed.

Japanese patrols, seeking to establish outposts in houses dominating the Chinese lines, were repulsed with what Chinese called heavy losses.

Foreigners in the International Settlement crowded rooftops to watch fierce fighting in streets so near it was as though they were watching a play in an outdoor theater.

Chinese estimated Japanese casualties at 16,000 killed and 12,000 wounded but Japanese spokesmen said the long-awaited "big push" was yet to come. These words apparently were borne out by a chain of transports landing troop reinforcements and munitions at several points on the Yangtze and Whangpoo Rivers.

Canton, the great port in South China, reported that Japanese planes had heavily bombed the Whampoa and Bocca-Tigris Forts. Other air raiders killed four sailors on the Chinese gunboat Hai Chow, when a projectile exploded on her decks, and damaged another gunboat, the Kinyu, so badly it had to be beached.

In the beaching operation a Japanese plane attacked the ship, killing two sailors and seriously wounding her commander with machine-gun fire.

Harbor Reported Blocked.

Reports from Hongkong said the defenders of Canton had blocked the harbor and river to forestall a direct assault by warships.

Confirming reports that foreign warships in the Yangtze River were running short of supplies, British authorities at Hongkong announced part of the crew of H. M. S. Capetown was returning to Hongkong overland.

On the fringe of the Chapei sector at Shanghai, American Marines completed today a new row of machine-gun nests along Soochow Creek, commanding a full sweep of the embattled north side district.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY DEFEATS PROPOSED ACTION IN SPAIN

Albania and Portugal Block Unanimous Approval of Threat to End Non-Intervention.

EFFORTS TO MAKE RESOLUTION FUTILE

Hungary and Austria Sought to Amend It to Death—Italy Invited to New Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 2. — Action by the League of Nations Assembly threatening to abandon non-intervention if foreign combatants were not withdrawn from Spain was blocked today by Albania, Italy's ally, and Portugal. They killed the resolution reported by a committee by voting against it. Thirty-two nations voted affirmatively and 14, most of them South American, abstained from voting. Unanimous consent was necessary to carry the resolution.

Members of the 27-nation Non-Intervention Committee remain free to act as the committee sees fit in accordance with their position taken in the vote in the Assembly. Thus France, if it wished, could open the French-Spanish frontier for shipment of munitions and other supplies to the Spanish Government.

During debate on the resolution, Austrian and Hungarian delegations advocated amendments which the proposal's sponsors said would destroy its entire significance. All were defeated.

The principal amendment would have changed the resolution to read that League members "might consider" an end to non-intervention, rather than "will consider" such action, if foreign volunteers were not withdrawn.

Though numerous South American nations have been reported to be friendly to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's cause, none has recognized his Government officially. Several, however, have been at odds with the Madrid-Valencia Government because of Spanish charges that an insurgent spy ring used South American legations as headquarters in Madrid.

The League resolution, one of whose leading sponsors was Maxim Litvinov, representing Soviet Russia, sought to put new pressure on Premier Mussolini to call home Italians fighting with the Spanish insurgents.

ITALY INVITED TO CONFERENCE

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 2.—British Ambassador Lord Perth and French Charge de Affaires J. F. Blondel delivered to the Italian Foreign Office today a British-French note asking Italy to join a three-Power conference on intervention in Spain.

The two diplomats discussed the situation for 30 minutes with Foreign-Minister Count Galeazo Ciano. They presented a joint note and it was understood that each made oral representations of a "rather strong nature" to induce Italy to join the conference for discontinuance of intervention in the Spanish civil war.

It was believed the Italian answer will be made in a communique tomorrow.

Italy Warned Its Troops in Spain Endanger Europe's Peace.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Great Britain and France instructed their envoys in Rome today to warn Italy that the continued presence of Italian troops in Spain menaced their interests and increased danger of an European war.

The British-French action was taken with the presentation in a joint note of an invitation to Italy to reach a solution of the Spanish problem in a tri-Power conference on intervention in Spain.

While the invitation was couched in moderate terms, Italy was given to understand that refusal to collaborate with Great Britain and France would force them to "reconsider their policy toward Spain" and take action.

The first stage of such action, observers said, undoubtedly would be the reopening of the French-Spanish border to the flow of munitions and men.

Earlier Soviet Russia, in a note sent to Lord Plymouth, charman of the 27-nation Non-intervention Committee, rejected a plan submitted by technical advisers of the committee recently to rebuild the non-intervention system.

It said the old non-intervention patrol ceased to be effective when France and Great Britain withdrew their warships, following similar action by Germany and Italy, and demanded abandonment of the entire non-intervention scheme.

The note came as a surprise and was described by some quarters as "a maneuver to anger Italy." It provided a further similarity to the condition which existed at the time of the Nyon conference on piracy in the Mediterranean.

Russian charges against Italy at that time led to an Italian boycott of the conference, but Premier Benito Mussolini later joined a patrol established by France and Britain, virtually on British and French terms.

Italian quarters, even as they did regarding the Nyon conference, scoffed at the proposed tri-power talks and insisted the non-intervention committee in London as the proper place to deal with the Spanish problem.

British and French delegates, however, said they were determined to keep the Spanish problem from the non-intervention committee's atmosphere of bickering.

If Italy refuses to attend the tri-power talks on settling the foreign volunteer question, some sources have said there was a feeling Britain and France would not stop at opening the Spanish frontier but might be compelled to seize certain Spanish territory in order to safeguard their security. Some sources said that if Italy accepts there was a possibility that belligerent rights for the Spanish warring parties might be granted and Italy's conquest of Ethiopia be recognized.

PLEA TO U. S. SUPREME COURT NOT TO RULE ON SIT-DOWNS

Apex Hosiery Co. Wants Decision of Court of Appeals to Stand.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Apex Hosiery Co. of Philadelphia asked the Supreme Court today to refuse to pass on litigation involving constitutionality of sit-down strikes. It urged that a decision of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals holding that such activity would "destroy the foundations of the Government itself" be permitted to remain in effect.

The litigation—the first involving sit-down strikes to reach the high tribunal—came before the Supreme Court on an appeal recently by the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers from the Circuit Court's decision. It arose from a strike at the Apex plant on May 6.

Pointing out that the strikers had evacuated the plant and that an agreement had been reached between the workers and employers, the company said "the question has now become moot."

"The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals," it added, "in no way affects the right of any law-abiding labor organization."

enough to shatter the city's walls or great gates, which were still intact after several air raids, the Japanese were compelled to storm the walls with squads of picked men, these sources said.

Facing machine gun and rifle bullets, the Japanese fighters managed to clamber to the top of the walls. From that position they engaged in a two-hour battle with the defenders entrenched in the streets and on the rooftops.

Finally mopping up the area around the main gate with handgrenades, a group of Japanese dropped to the streets and swung open the gate for the army outside.

Chinese resistance in the city was quelled as the entire Japanese force stormed the streets. The Chinese forces withdrew leaving more than 800 dead, Japanese estimated.

Theory Advanced Human Germ Spreader Is Responsible for Epidemic.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 2.—Japanese secret service men began an investigation today of the theory that the mysterious death plague in Fukuoka prefecture was the work of a human germ spreader.

The plague, spreading rapidly already has killed more than 300 persons since Monday and caused the serious illness of 6739. A majority of the dead were children.

Authorities sent 300 doctors, nurses, and bacteriologists to the City of Omuta where the disease first broke out. Nearly all primary school sin the prefecture have been closed.

The source of the plague has not been determined. The theory now advanced by officials is that some person or persons were infecting the water supply with germs of an unknown type. Though not definitely classified, the plague was thought to be a form of dysentery.

FRANCE WON'T LET ANDORRA BUY SUPPLIES FROM FRANCO

Rejects Little Republic's Request to Get Winter Stores From Spanish Rebels.

ANDORRA, Oct. 2.—Threatened with being cut off from the rest of the world by the annual snowstorms, the small country of Andorra has embarrassed France by asking for permission to obtain winter food supplies from Gen. Franco.

The French Government, which refuses to recognize the rebels in Spain, indicated the needs of the 6000 Andorrans could be taken care of without any dealings with Gen. Franco.

Since 1278 Andorra, on top of the Pyrenees between France and Spain, has been under the joint protection of France and the Spanish Bishop of Seo de Urgel. In winter snow blocks the mountain trails leading to the 191-square mile country, making it necessary to buy supplies for the winter.

This fall the 24 members of Andorra's General Council, dollar-a-year men who ride muleback to their capital, figured that the Spanish pesetas, the coin of the realm, would buy more supplies from Gen. Franco than from France. So they asked permission of the French Government to have supplies from Western Spain transported to Andorra over French territory. A spokesman for the French Foreign office termed the proposal impractical.

PICTURES OF TRAITOR TORN FROM SOVIET CALENDARS

Sheets for Dec. 10 Removed From Pads; Marshal Tukhachevsky Executed Last June.

MOSCOW, Oct. 2.—Soviet calendar sheets for Dec. 10 have been torn from their pads because they bore the portrait and biography of the late marshal Mikhail Tukhachevsky, who was shot this year as a traitor.

Although Tukhachevsky was executed in June, it was not until recently that somebody discovered his picture and a glowing account of his military career on the calendar issued by the Soviet printing office. The public was instructed in radio broadcasts to destroy the offending sheets.

and sagebrush plains. 'Spokane, the nearest town of any size, is 92 miles distant, consequently, it is obvious that if the dam is ever to justify its existence, thousands of families must be transplanted here, to make a populous region of what is now a wilderness.

Five-Year Job Ahead.

The site is impressive. One end of the dam is set into the flank of a mountain which slopes up steeply from the river's edge, and the other abuts on a precipitous granite cliff, which rises sheer for nearly 1000 feet. In the present stage of construction, slightly more than one-half of the foundation has been completed. It will not start generating power for about five years.

The presidential party disembarked from the train this morning at the village of Ephrata, and motored 60 miles to the dam, returning to the train late in the afternoon, for the trip which will take it tomorrow on a visit to another dam, at Fort Shelby, Mont.

During a 15-minute stop in Spokane, where a dense crowd of several thousand jammed the station platform to give the President a rousing reception, he made a brief platform talk. He admonished the people of the Northwest to conserve their land and timber, pointing to the example of the dust bowl. 'He repeated that people whose farms have been destroyed by drouth and erosion should be located on new homes in the Pacific Northwest.

Speculation concerning the President's real motive in making the trip at this time, is as active—and as futile—as when he entrained at Hyde Park, 11 days ago. There is, however, among those on the train, a growing belief that he will call a special session of Congress this fall, ostensibly to consider farm legislation.

Wheat Surplus Cited.

Today's developments served to emphasize an ironical aspect of the situation produced by the administration's crop policies and its power and irrigation policy. The same local newspapers which told how Grand Coulee will put 2,000,000 additional acres of farm land under cultivation, published the testimony given before a Senate Committee in Spokane today by Dean W. A. Schoenfeld, of Oregon State College, who warned that wheat prices are once more being threatened by a surplus. Senator Pope of Idaho also declared that Congress should deal with the situation.

This curious anomaly—in which the New Deal has consistently pursued a policy of bringing new acres under cultivation, while simultaneously urging farmers to cut down production, had long been remarked. The chief argument advanced by New Deal spokesmen in defense of this course, has been that the new lands being placed under cultivation are not suited to the crops in which large surpluses generally occur.

President Predicts Thousands of Acres Will Be Put to Use.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND COULEE DAM, Wash., Oct. 2.—President Roosevelt inspected Grand Coulee Dam, largest New Deal engineering project, today and described it as a development to provide homes, power and "thousands of acres of new land for future Americans."

The President spoke from his car atop a ramp in Mead Park—named after the late Reclamation Commissioner Elwood Mead—to a crowd which State patrolmen estimated at 5000.

"My head is full of figures," said the President as he opened his discussion of the project. "It is so much bigger than anything that has ever been tried before that there is no comparison. We look forward not only to the great good this will do in the development of power, but also in the development of thousands of homes—the bringing in of thousands of acres of new land for future Americans.

"And I think that in the State of Washington there is a splendid understanding of objectives of the development of these acres that are going to be irrigated."

He predicted "everybody who has had anything to do with the building of this great dam is going to be made happy all the rest of their lives."

The President arrived at the West Vista House overlooking the dam at 11:40 a. m.

The more than 5000 workers on the project put on a show for the President as the roar of construction proceeded at full blast.

On his trip eastward from Spokane the President was scheduled to arrive at Glasgow, Mont., about 3 p. m. tomorrow. From Glasgow the presidential party will go to Fort Peck, where the President will view the great earthen dam being built by the Government across the Missouri River.

REBELS TRYING TO RUN ASTURIAN ARMY INTO TRAP

Three Columns Move Against Government Forces Seeking to Defend Gijon in Northern Spain.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, French - Spanish Frontier, Oct. 2.—Spanish insurgents swept through Covadonga tonight along the Biscayan coast to new battlefields on the way to Gijon, last government port in the north.

The fall of Covadonga, where Pelayo, first King and eighth century founder of the Asturian kingdom, is entombed, came after many days of stubborn fighting.

Yesterday's occupation of the town was celebrated briefly today, before the insurgents took up their arms again for the drive west.

Fighting was heaviest around the sixteenth century Abbey and Church of La Virgen de las Batallas, but the tomb and dust of Pelayo, hero of Spain's Moorish wars, remained undisturbed.

Insurgent lines were reformed west of the Sella River, which winds through Ribadesella, Covadonga and Cangas de Onis, the last in govervment hands.

One column marched south along the slopes of the Covadonga Mountains. Another was close to Cangas de Onis. Insurgents predicted they would pocket retreating Asturian forces between there and the Europa Mountains to the southwest, where a third column has been advancing with heavy fighting.

The southern column, insurgents said, has overcome strong government resistance and seized Sierra Malporquero, and the towns of Pigoz and Confinal and is marching north out of Leon Province and into Asturias. The government, however, said its lines were holding.

The insurgents are about 30 miles from Gijon.

Heavy artillery and bombing planes accounted for the capture of Covadonga, insurgents said.

The Catalonian Cortes (Parliament) witnessed the flight of insurgent planes over government buildings today. No bombs were dropped.

The Government said today that 50 persons, many of them school children, were killed and hundreds wounded yesterday, when nine insurgent bombers flew over Barcelona and bombed the suburbs. Thirty-five buildings were burned, damaged or destroyed.

It was described as Barcelona's worst bombing of the war.

In Valencia, the National Cortes voted its good faith in the government.

Travelers arriving at Gibraltar from Seville said the insurgent high command had closed the frontier between Portugal and Guelva Province. They said unrest had existed for some time in insurgent-held Badajoz Province, north of Huelva.

Diary of Japanese Cut Off From Lines 19 Days

Tells of Suffering From Wound and Thirst in Swamp—Finally Drank From Creek Choked With Bodies.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 2.—The diary of a wounded Japanese soldier, lost and cut off by enemies for 19 days, has come to light in a military hospital here. It was taken from the uniform of Private Tokaji Toshiara.

He was wounded in the heavy fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops at Lotien, near Shanghai. He fell, and the tide of battle swirled around and past him. During the night three other Japanese, one slightly wounded, joined him.

In the morning they learned that they were not, as they supposed, inside their own lines. The two uninjured men pulled the wounded into the thick foliage of a swamp. There, hiding among the rushes, they waited for rescue.

The Soldier's Story.

The diary begins on the fifth day:

Fifth day—Drinking muddy water. We ate a half portion of dry biscuits, dividing them equally.

Sixth day—Flasks empty, and we have no more water to drink. We can hear the enemy around us. We are still hiding in this swamp and nobody dares go for water because of the danger. Oh! I wish somebody would come to get us. It is already 7 o'clock—another awful night coming. There comes a shell again. We don't know if the enemy knows where we are, but there are no rifle shots. Midnight — Again shells, but no sight of our own troops. Emperor, Banzai!

Seventh day—I want water, water, water! I am so thirsty.

The diary then describes, in great detail, how the wounded man crept away for water—and his momentary disappointment when he found the creek choked with bloated bodies. Nevertheless, he wrote, he filled his flask.

Could Hear Chinese Talking.

"Returned half hour later. All I can feel is heat and pain. Now we have water enough for the night, but we cannot sleep because of the shells. We can hear talking in the Chinese trenches tonight.

"A week already. Not so much pain from the wound this morning. We saw one of our own airplanes, and I whispered 'Emperor, Banzai!' We are now eating rice. I examined my pistol and still have 300 rounds. Hope someone will come tomorrow to get us out of this hell."

Two days pass. The diary repeats Toshihara's craving for food and water. Once, he and his companions sight Chinese soldiers nearby, and prepare for a last fight. The Chinese clear the creek of bodies, and then disappear.

Once, he writes, "I think of my wound to forget my thirst. Then I thing of water to forget the pain of my wound."

On the tenth day, he writes, "Fujiwara left here this morning to try to reach our lines. I hope he went in the right direction."

Tortured by thirst, a semi-delirious strain runs through his entry for the eleventh day—"no water . . . pain in my leg . . . where are our troops? . . . Where is Fujiwara? . . . Firing again in the evening . . . so dark cannot see even the flashes . . . my throat burns . . . I wish I had a bottle of beer or cider . . ."

Food Taken From Dead Soldiers.

The next day, the diary says, the other uninjured soldier, identified as Miyasaki, obtains food from the bodies nearby.

They get two tins of meat and some raw rice. They hear the sounds of a major battle in the distance. "How glad we are. Emperor, Banzai!"

Two days pass, and the sound of fighting comes nearer. Hopelessly confused in direction, they are unable to tell which side is retreating. The diary no longer mentions Toshihara's wound, his hunger, his sense of danger.

But in every page, there is the lingering horror of thirst. "Not a drop of water for two days," and again, "I fell asleep and dreamt about a beer hall. The sounds of fighting woke me, and we talked about my dream to forget our thirst."

Rescued After Chinese Retreat.

The battle rolls nearer, and then on the seventeeth day—

"We woke early in the morning and worshipped the rising sun. Suddenly, in the woods behind us, we saw our troops. We cried for joy. But we cannot let them know where we are because the Chinese are between us."

On the nineteenth day, after a fierce struggle, the Chinese retreat beyond the creek. Some of the Chinese soldiers pass within a few feet of the spot where the three men are hiding. For an hour or more, the two Japanese are in a soggy "no man's land," between the two forces, bullets singing over their heads, snipping pieces off the foliage that covers them.

"We thought we would all be dead by this time, but the God protected us. In the evening a rescue party came, I will never forget this day."

MANIFESTATIONS OF FEELING AGAINST JAPAN IN BRITAIN

Boycott Movement Stirs Oriental Students to Warning About Trade in India.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—A small group of Japanese students in a letter sent today to Lord Meston, president of the Liberal Party organization, spoke of "the hold which Japanese merchants have on trade in India" and said "any attempt to quarrel with Japan will have only the effect of intensifying the present fierce competition in India to the certain detriment of Britain."

Lord Meston again urged the British public to support the government in any action it may take to end Japanese "outrages," referring to the bombing of Chinese cities. A public movement to boycott Japanese goods is growing.

The executive committee of the National Union of Teachers, which has a membership of 150,000, passed a resolution declaring it "trusts the British government will do all in its power to prevent the continuance of such (Japanese) aggression."

Through its secretary, the London Labor Party asked Japanese Ambassador Shigeru Yoshida to "convey to your government our feeling of horror and indignation with which reports of these atrocities (in China) are being received, not only by members of the Labor Party of London but among the general body of London citizens."

CHINA NOT YET SEEKING SANCTIONS, KOO SAYS

Chinese Delegate to League Says Nation Demands 'Maximum Practical Measures.'

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, said tonight that China was demanding that the league take "the maximum practical measures against Japan."

He said, however, that direct sanctions against Japan have not been asked, and he appeared to believe that sanctions are not a necessary sequel to any possible league pronouncement declaring Japan an aggressor.

Dr. Koo emphasized that China, for the present, is not acting under Article 17 of the League Covenant, which provides for application of sanctions or punitive measures in the event that Japan is found guilty of having resorted to war in China.

He said that the present campaign is restricted to an effort to have Japan declared an aggressor and to obtain a league ruling that the Japanese blockade of China is illegal.

The subcommittee on Chinese-Japanese affairs, handling China's application to have Japan declared an aggressor, worked on the problem today. The historical survey before it included the Briand-Kellogg Pact, the Nine-power Treaty and the Boxer Protocol, which allows foreign countries to station troops in China at specific points.

24 OIL COMPANIES GO TO TRIAL TOMORROW IN ANTI-TRUST CASE

Three Trade Publications and Individuals to Face U. S. Court on Price-Conspiracy Charges.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 2.—The Federal Government's anti-trust case against 24 oil companies, three trade publications and 47 individuals goes to trial Monday before U. S. District Judge Patrick T. Stone. The defendants are represented by nearly 50 attorneys. More than 100 witnesses have been summoned. There are seven prosecutors. A panel of 100 jurors has been called. Admission of spectators will be by card only.

The defendants are charged with conspiring to increase gasoline prices, in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

SCHADING TRIED TO GET $2000 MOVIE MAN SAYS

Henry R. Wendt Declares He Refused to Pay Union Agent Who Is Sought After Bombings.

PROJECTION BOOTH FOUND WRECKED

But Theater in Kirkwood Opened on Schedule With Six Armed Policemen on Guard.

Henry R. Wendt, operator of the Osage moving picture theater in Kirkwood, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday he had successfully resisted last January an attempt by Arthur Schading, chief business agent of the electricians' union, to get $2000 from him as a condition for permitting union electricians to install sound equipment in the theater.

Wendt had non-union men do the work, and his theater opened on schedule, Jan. 7, with six armed policemen stationed about the building. "I was a bit jittery at the time," he said, "but I don't give a damn now. I think he's 90 per cent bluff anyway."

The theater operator's statement was made as police continued their search for Schading, whom they want to question about the three bombings Wednesday night in which offices of sign companies which do not do business with Schading's union were damaged.

Schading's expressed reason for the demand, Wendt said, was that the theater building, which Wendt did not own, but leased had been wired by non-union electricians. Wendt said he had intended, however, to have his electrical equipment installed by union electricians and union workmen had nearly completed the job. He understood that the $2000 demanded was to be an extra payment, over and above the wages to be paid to Schading's workmen.

Projection Booth Wrecked.

On the morning before the theater opening, other workmen summoned him to the building.

"I found the projection booth was a total wreck," Wendt said. "The wires had been pulled out of the walls, breaking the plaster. Fixtures had been jerked out and the switches of two projection machines had been ripped off. Everything had been damaged, and all was in a heap.

"An electrical engineer whom I know happened to be there at the time and he told me the thing to do was to get in touch with Arthur Schading.

"I ran to a filling station and telephoned Schading and asked him what the matter was. He told me the building was wired by non-union workmen.

"'What's that got to do with me?' I asked him. 'I didn't build the building. I've got to open tomorrow night.'

"Schading told me: 'We can put the building back in good grace if you pay me $2000.'

Took Along Guard.

"So I asked to see him, and Schading said he would see me at his office. When I went there I took Deputy Constable Norman Davis along with me, for protection, and as a witness. Davis was armed.

"At his office Schading repeated his demand for $2000. I protested and asked why he picked on me. He said: 'Sometimes we have to pick on an innocent guy to get at the other fellow. I'm sorry, but we've got to have $2000.'

"I told him I didn't have the money, and besides, I was under no obligation to pay it. He said: 'You'll pay it, or your show won't open.'

"I said: 'What if I don't pay it, and get non-union men to wire the booth?'

"'Go ahead and do what you please,' Schading told me. 'We know what to do. We can take care of ourselves.'

"Schading opened up his suit coat then and I saw he had two revolvers in shoulder holsters."

"What We Did to Landon."

At one point in the conversation, Wendt said, Schading asked him: "You read in the papers, didn't you, what we did to Landon?"

What Schading did to Landon, as the Post-Dispatch told last November, was to demand and get $1000 from the Republican State Committee, as a condition of permitting union men to handle the broadcast of the final campaign speech from the Municipal Auditorium of Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for President. There was no specific value received for the $1000 either in services, goods or commodities. Schading said the money was paid to recompense the union for "a felony in the industrial court"—the use of non-union labor on sound trucks sent into Missouri by the Republican National Committee.

Walter C. Meyer's Experience.

Walter C. Meyer, vice-president of the Missouri Jewelite Sign Co., also had some dealings with Schading in connection with Wendt's theater as his company constructed the sign for the marquee. When the sign was nearly completed Schading ordered the company, which then employed Schading's men, to stop work on it.

"I said: 'What if I don't pay it, and get non-union men to wire the booth?'

"'Go ahead and do what you please,' Schading told me. 'We know what to do. We can take care of ourselves.'

"Schading opened up his suit coat then and I saw he had two revolvers in shoulder holsters."

"What We Did to Landon."

At one point in the conversation, Wendt said, Schading asked him: "You read in the papers, didn't you, what we did to Landon?"

What Schading did to Landon, as the Post-Dispatch told last November, was to demand and get $1000 from the Republican State Committee, as a condition of permitting union men to handle the broadcast of the final campaign speech from the Municipal Auditorium of Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for President. There was no specific value received for the $1000 either in services, goods or commodities. Schading said the money was paid to recompense the union for "a felony in the industrial court"—the use of non-union labor on sound trucks sent into Missouri by the Republican National Committee.

Walter C. Meyer's Experience.

Walter C. Meyer, vice-president of the Missouri Jewelite Sign Co., also had some dealings with Schading in connection with Wendt's theater as his company constructed the sign for the marquee. When the sign was nearly completed Schading ordered the company, which then employed Schading's men, to stop work on it.

"'We're squeezing down on

HENRY R. WENDT

Wen't," Meyer quoted Schading as saying when he gave the order to stop work on the sign.

Later, Meyer told the Post-Dispatch, he went to see Schading to intercede for Wendt, pointing out that Wendt had not constructed the theater building, but only leased it. On that occasion, he said, Schading told him: "I'm going to make Wendt straighten out with us or jerk out all his equipment." The labor leader added, Meyer said:

"You're damn lucky we didn't make you take your sign down off the building."

Meyer's firm stopped work on the sign, in obedience to Schading's order, but Wendt had it completed, too, with non-union labor.

The Missouri Jewelite Co. is one of the four sign companies which are seeking a Circuit Court injunction to restrain Schading and other members of his union from interference with their business. Albert Bond Lambert Jr., son of the president of the Board of Police Commissioners, is president of the firm.

Union Bulletins Comment.

The officers of this company, and of others which do not deal with Schading's union were surprised to receive—the morning after last week's bombings—copies of the monthly bulletin of Schading's union, distributed previously only to members. The bulletin contained some comments on the sign industry, and the union officers' relations with the police department.

"'Papa' Lambert has not been so persistent in throwing the officials of this organization in jail," the bulletin read. "We have been unmolested since our last bulletin."

"No police department is going to tell the Electrical Workers' Union No. 1 who its officials are going to be. The membership will tell this story with their ballots. No police department is going to act as a Board of Jurisdiction award where the Electrical Workers' Local No. 1 is concerned. The labor officials with the proper authority will settle these questions."

The bulletin, issued over Schading's signature, mentioned that Frank Kauffman, since his discharge as chief electrician for the Police Department, had been hired as an organizer for the union, of which he is president. Kauffman, dismissed from his Police Department job last August after the Police Board president had ordered him to choose between his union office and police job, was released on bond Friday night after being questioned about the bombings.

So far none of those questioned by police has admitted any knowledge of the five bombings of sign companies which do not deal with Schading's union, or of the smashing of signs maintained by those companies.

Police attribute these acts of violence to the jurisdictional fight between Schading's union and the Sign Hangers' Union, both chartered by the American Federation of Labor. Schading has insisted that the painting, hanging and sheet metal work connected with sign construction and installation be done by his electricians. The other union is willing to let the electricians do the electrical work, but claims the other work for its members.

UNION ORGANIZERS STOP 150 TRUCKS ON HIGHWAY

Fayette County (Pa.) Deputy Sheriff Reports Several Minor Disturbances.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 2.—Deputy Sheriff Meal Wood of Fayette County reported today that more than 150 trucks were stopped on the National highway by union organizers who refused to permit the drivers to continue unless they signed up with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Wood said there were several minor disturbances, but that "No one was hurt, as far as I know."

State motor police from the Uniontown substation patrolled the road tonight and the pickets left, but a spokesman said they would return.

RELIEF IN CITY CUT TO MINIMUM FOOD ALLOWANCES

30,000 Men, Women and Children Hit by Drastic Curtailment in Funds for October.

Nothing but food—and minimum amounts of that—will be given to the 30,000 men, women and children on the relief rolls this month, because of a shortage of funds, Relief Administrator R. J. Crump announced yesterday.

Crump has but $136,000 available to meet October relief needs which he had estimated at $270,000. The 215 employes of the relief agency, Crump said, are working with no assurance that their salaries will be paid.

There would be, Crump said, no allowances for rent, fuel, clothing for school children, gas or electric light service, and the customary payment of carfare to free clinics for those in need of medical attention would be discontinued.

No Funds Appropriated by City.

The curtailment was made necessary by the failure of the city to appropriate any relief funds for October and the State Social Security Commission's allotment to St. Louis of only $136,608, with the requirement that the city supply the rest of the money needed.

The State money can be used only for relief. There is no money on hand to meet administrative expenses such as salaries, rent and the customary costs of operating the relief agency.

Crump's announcement of the drastic curtailment was made in response to inquiry by the Post-Dispatch when it became known that the State had allotted only $136,000 for relief costs here this month.

Out of the $136,000, the relief administrator said, must come about $40,000 in relief orders which have already been issued for October. In addition, about $16,000 has been set aside for operation of the four shelters maintained for homeless men and women, and for certain minor activities related chiefly to the distribution of surplus commodities and maintenance of WPA sewing rooms for which the relief administration has assumed responsibility.

That will leave about $80,000 to provide food during the rest of the month for those of the 30,000 recipients of relief who have not already received allowances from the $40,000 in relief orders already issued.

Estimate of Needs.

The estimate that $270,000 would be needed for the month was based on the expectation that about 1000 "cases"—individuals and family groups—would be added in October to the "caseload" of 7500 which existed Sept. 30. Crump said every effort would be made to provide food, at least, for the anticipated 8500 "cases."

In the past, expenditures for food have constituted from 57 to 60 per cent of the total relief budget. Recently, because of curtailments in other forms of relief offered, food expenditures have been about 70 per cent of the total.

Rent, not to be paid under the present arrangement, has accounted for about 22 per cent of relief expenditures, and in cold weather fuel costs come to about 10 per cent.

The Board of Aldermen reconvened Friday after its summer vacation, but took no action on the relief problem, although it was known that the city's previous appropriations for relief have been exhausted. The board will meet again next Friday.

Mayor Declines to Comment.

Mayor Dickmann, informed by the Post-Dispatch of the State's allocation for October relief in St. Louis, declined to comment. He said he had not been informed officially of how much money would be available or what the need would be. Budget Director Arthur C. Meyers declined to comment for the same reason.

Alderman Joseph B. Schweppe, chairman of the board's relief committee, said he had no present intention of calling a meeting of the committee or of introducing a relief appropriation bill. He again made the point that relief costs in St. Louis should be met by the State Social Security Commission, which gets its money from the two per cent sales tax. That tax, Schweppe estimates, yields about $700,000 in St. Louis each month.

"In my opinion," Schweppe said, "the city should not appropriate any more money for relief until we know definitely from what source the money is coming. We can't go on making appropriations from general revenue—it would bankrupt the city."

The need for relief will be even greater in the winter months, Schweppe pointed out, but he did not know what could be done about it.

LACY FILES BRIEF, REPLIES TO DISBARMENT REPORT

Argues Evidence Was Insufficient to Support Findings of Commissioner.

Verne R. C. Lacy, the city's No. 1 criminal lawyer, whose disbarment for professional misconduct has been recommended by a special commissioner of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, filed yesterday his brief and arguments in support of his 57 exceptions to the commissioner's report.

The document, comprising 28 pages, is devoted chiefly to argument that the evidence was insufficient to support the report of the commissioner, A. M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau, finding Lacy was guilty on all four charges made by the St. Louis Bar Committee and that the commissioner was confused in his understanding of the evidence.

Details of his contentions were given in his exceptions, filed previously. The Bar Committee has until next Saturday noon to file its brief, and Lacy may offer a reply brief on or before Oct. 13. Thereafter the Court of Appeals will consider the entire case for its final decision.

ARBITERS INCREASE PRICE PAID FARMERS FOR MILK 25C

Latter Asked for 30c a Hundred Pounds and Distributors Offered 15c.

An arbitration committee selected to settle a dispute between farmers and milk distributors over the price to be paid for Class 1 milk delivered in St. Louis last month decided yesterday that the figure should be $2.70 a hundred pounds, an increase of 25 cents over the August price.

The dispute arose after dealers increased the retail price of milk 1 cent a quart, the equivalent of 46.5 cents a hundred pounds, Aug. 20. The Sanitary Milk Producers, contending the requirements of the new standard milk control ordinance had increased their production costs, originally asked an increase of 60 cents a hundred pounds in the price they received.

After the farmers had reduced their demand to 30 cents, and the dairies had offered 15 cents, an agreement was made to arbitrate. The producers named Wilfred Shaw of Chicago, director of dairy marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association, and the dealers named Karl P. Spencer, St. Louis lawyer. Shaw and Spencer selected Prof. F. F. Lininger of Pennsylvania State College as the third member and chairman of the arbitration board.

DANIEL DODGE'S ENGAGEMENT REPORT NEWS TO HIS MOTHER

Mrs. Alfred J. Wilson, Here for Horse Show, Is Told of Toronto Statement.

Published reports of the engagement of Daniel D. Dodge, son of the late automobile manufacturer and heir to part of his fortune, and Miss Loreen MacDonald, Toronto (Canada) telephone operator, is news to his mother, Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, she told a Post-dispatch reporter yesterday.

Mrs. Wilson, considered one of the world's richest women after the death of her first husband, John F. Dodge, is in St. Louis visiting the horse show with her daughter, Miss Frances M. Dodge, a principal exhibitor.

Informed at Hotel Chase that a Toronto newspaper had quoted Miss MacDonald, daughter of a lakeboat captain, as saying the engagement had existed about 18 months, "but had not yet been announced," Mrs. Wilson said she was unable to confirm the statement.

"I have met Miss MacDonald, as I have met other friends of my son. Neither of them has told me they were engaged."

RAIN RESULTING FROM GULF STORMS FLOODS NEW ORLEANS

Some Streets Under Four Feet of Water From 13.5-Inch Deluge In 22 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—New Orleans residents waded today in a flood from rain caused by two tropical disturbances that merged in the Gulf of Mexico and were headed toward the Texas coast.

Every section of the city was affected. Water stood from a few inches to four feet deep in some streets, and thousands of persons were marooned in their homes or offices. Transportation and telephone service was demoralized. Some streets built of heavy wood blocks almost floated away. Water was several inches deep in Canal street, and entrances to stores were protected with sandbag levees.

Precipitation of more than 13.5 inches was measured by weather bureau observers within 22 hours ending at 1 p. m. It was the heaviest rain since the Good Friday deluge of 14.1 inches in 1927.

In the afternoon the downpour slackened, and it was hoped that city's big pumping system could lift the water over the levees into the Mississippi river in a few hours.

POLICE ASKED TO FIND EDWIN S. HARRISON

Curtis Manufacturing Co. Sales Executive Missing Since Thursday.

Police have been asked to aid in a search for Edwin S. Harrison, divisional sales manager and a director of the Curtis Manufacturing Co., who has not been seen since he left his home, 109 Arundel place, Clayton, Thursday afternoon. He then told the maid he would have dinner out with a friend from out of town.

In the absence of Harrison's wife, who was visiting in the East, police were notified of the disappearance Friday night by Dudley French, a friend, who resides near the Harrison home, at 6326 Alexander drive. Mrs. Harrison arrived home last night.

Harrison, 54 years old, had suffered from arthritis recently and saw a physician Tuesday. W. C. Hecker, president of the Curtis Co., said Harrison complained to him Thursday morning of being unable to sleep and said his doctor had told him he ought to go home and to bed. Hecker did not see Harrison again.

French said a memorandum, found on Harrison's desk at his home, mentioned a premium due on an insurance policy and gave the names of two banks where he rented safe deposit boxes. Keys to the boxes were alongside. French said he was not sure whether there was a connection between Harrison's disappearance and the memorandum, as it was possible Harrison had written it as a reminder for himself.

Harrison departed on foot, leaving his automobile at the house. He is 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighs 185 pounds and has blue eyes and light brown hair, streaked with gray, thin on top. He was wearing a gray suit.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL WITH BULLET WOUND IN HEAD

Had Pistol in His Right Hand; Registered as Being From Pittsburgh, Pa.

The body of a man registered as Harry Semple, or Temple, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was found yesterday afternoon seated in a chair in his room at the Maryland Hotel, Ninth and Pine streets. There was a bullet wound in the head, and in the right hand was an automatic pistol. The man had been dead several hours. He was about 40 years old.

He registered at the hotel Sept. 24, writing his name indistinctly. The body was found after a maid told the manager, William L. Adams, that the door of the room had been locked on the inside for two days. Adams opened the door with a master key and discovered the body, clothed in pajamas.

SLEEPING SICKNESS CAUSES TWO MORE DEATHS; TOTAL 84

Boy and Man Succumb; Eight New Cases Reported in City.

Deaths from encephalitis (sleeping sickness) since June 30 reached a total of 84 yesterday with reports to the Health Department that a boy and a man had succumbed to the disease.

Eight new cases were reported yesterday, sending the total since the outbreak of the disease in June to 375. The two additional deaths were of Daniel Graffort, eight years old, 1704 Cora avenue, and William Starmann, 70, 4614 South Main street. Both died at Isolation Hospital, the boy Friday and Starmann Wednesday.

DYNAMITE USED IN SEARCH OF LAKE FOR MISSING MAN

Volunteers With Grappling Hooks Asked to Aid in Hunt for Maxwell Goldman.

The section of Creve Coeur Lake in which Maxwell Goldman, orchestra leader, was last seen before he disappeared while fishing from a boat last Tuesday afternoon was dynamited yesterday. Another charge is to be set off today in the hope of sending the body to the surface. Dragging of the lake had continued until yesterday without result.

Members of the family appealed last night for volunteers with grappling hooks and other dragging equipment to aid in the search. Goldman, 55 years old, resided at 5928 Pershing avenue, and was employed at Bevo Mill.

She was taken to DePaul Hospital, where her injuries were said to be serious. The driver, who said he was William F. Lawson, a contractor, 1902 Maury avenue, said he lost control of his machine.

MRS. ELLEN CRAIB DIES; ILL FOR YEAR

Daughter of Late W. C. McBride, Oil Millionaire—Funeral Tuesday.

Mrs. Ellen McBride Craib, wife of Balfour Stuart Craib, retired merchant, and daughter of the late W. C. McBride, multi-millionaire oil man, died at 8 o'clock last night in Jewish Hospital, of a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Craib, ill a year, was taken to the hospital a week ago from her home, 15 Pine Valley drive, Clayton.

Besides her husband, two sisters, Mrs. Isaac Dee Kelley Jr. and Mrs. William D. Orthwein, survive. Funeral services will be at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, 7152 Forsythe boulevard, University City.

Ellen McBride was married in 1917 to Ralph A. Morriss, a real estate dealer, who died 11 months later. She was married to Craib, whose deceased first wife was Morriss' sister, in 1922. They lived in New York, where Craib was in business, until recently.

Her father, whose many donations to the Catholic Church included the $100,000 altar of St. Louis Cathedral, died in 1917, and her mother in 1924. McBride Boys' High School, named for her father, was founded by Mrs. McBride.

SIX ARRESTED IN MAPLEWOOD HANDBOOK SHOP RAID

Four Patrons and Two Alleged Operators Held Under $500 Bond.

Maplewood police and deputy constables yesterday raided a handbook shop at 7359 Manchester avenue, arresting six persons, two of whom were said to be employes of the place and the others patrons.

The raid was made at the direction of Chief of Police James Ryan of Maplewood, who had ordered operators of the handbook to close the place two weeks ago. Those arrested were booked before Justice of the Peace Albert M. Reilly and released after giving $500 bond each to appear before Prosecuting Attorney M. Ralph Walsh tomorrow. The two who were booked suspected of operating a handbook device and receiving bets said they were Robert Riley, 7080 Mitchell avenue, Richmond Heights, and Williard Treat, 6724 Lansdown avenue.

Chief of Police Ryan also said Maplewood's other handbook at 7207 Manchester avenue had closed after receiving his orders. The place was operated by Herman Kohn, who is being held in jail in Clayton in connection with the murder of Edward McGarry, professional bondsman. Kohn has admitted he shot and killed McGarry because the latter attempted to "muscle in" on the profits of the handbook shop.

BRITISH GUARDS SEIZE AGITATORS IN JERUSALEM

Two Accused of Inciting Shop Closings — Four Arab Leaders Exiled to Indian Ocean Island.

GRAND MUFTI IS PROTECTED BY 200

He Remains in Recesses of Mosque of Omar—Black Watch (Scotch) Regiment Arrives.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 2. — Britain hurried four Arab leaders to exile on a remote Indian Ocean island tonight as cleanup squads pushed the campaign against terrorism in the Holy Land.

Authorities announced heavily armed squads had seized two "well known agitators" in a sharp effort to quash organized Arab shop closings in Jerusalem and elsewhere.

This action came on the heels of the deportation to Seychelles Island of four leaders, including Dr. Hussein Khalidi, of the now outlawed Arab higher committee, by warship.

They were taken from Haifa aboard the cruiser Sussex which, it was understood, secretly transferred the four at sea to another vessel for the voyage to the island of banishment.

The leaders were charged with being morally responsible for four months of terror in the Holy Land.

The "well known agitators" who were arrested were accused of inciting shop closings—a maneuver which recalled the bloody six-month general strike against Jewish immigration fostered last year by the Arab higher committee. Their names were not announced.

Jacob Hussein, leader of the Arab youth organization, also was arrested.

The drive against the Arab heads was precipitated by last Sunday's assassination of the British Commissioner of Galilee and his bodyguard.

The Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Amin El Husseini, another object of the British drive, remained in the recesses of the mosque of Omar. A guard of 200 Arabs, sworn to defend him to the death, was on station at the entrance to the Mufti's private apartments.

British authorities deposed him from two offices and cut off his power over religious courts, control of religious funds and appointment of religious judges—but he remained the Mufti, a position carrying great spiritual prestige among the Moslems.

A troop cordon around the Mosque area was withdrawn and officials insisted the Mufti could move freely but the Mosque remained under close police surveillance.

The British force in the Holy Land was strengthened by the arrival of the Black Watch, famous Scottish regiment.

The Royal Sussex regiment, which was scheduled to leave for Egypt on the arrival of the Black Watch, was ordered to remain.

All gates of the old city were guarded.

Shop closings so far have been confined to the old city, where youths went through the narrow streets pouring kerosene over sugar sacks and strewing nails in the streets.

Some shops, however, closed in order to celebrate the Moslem feast of "The Night Journey of the Prophet."

Feeling ran high in Jaffa after the arrest of three Moslem soldiers and a general strike there Sunday was threatened. Several sheiks were taken into custody in Jerusalem for questioning, but released later.

STATE OF WAR IN BRAZIL PROCLAIMED TO FIGHT REDS

Decree Issued Despite Senate Minority Protest That It Presages Military Dictatorship.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 2.—President Getulio Vargas tonight declared Brazil in a state of war for the next 90 days to combat the spread of Communism.

The decree, demanded by Gen. Pedro Aurelio Goesmonteiro, army Chief of Staff, through the Ministers of War and Navy, designated the Minister of Justice and Interior, Jose Carlos de Macedo Soares "to superintend the execution." The Minister, however, announced that at the request of "military authorities," the decree would be enforced in the States of Sao Paulo and Rio Grande do Sul by the commanders of the second and third army corps areas.

A Senate minority fought the action, charging the president was becoming the instrument of an eventual military dictatorship and contending the evidence that Communism was rampant did not justify the conclusion that emergency powers were necessary. The measure passed the Senate by a vote of 138 to 52.

The decree was issued on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the revolution of Oct. 3, 1930, and for the second time suspended th three-year-old constitution. The first suspension was effective from Nov. 27, 1935, to May 20, 1937.

Colorful Crowd of 12,000 at Bridlespur Race Meet

Everybody From Debutantes and Dowagers to Ringside Bookmakers Present—One Bus Equipped With a Bar.

A socially variegated crowd ranging from debutantes and dowagers to town wits and a ringside bookmaker or two witnessed the Bridlespur Hunt's ninth annual race meeting on Huntleigh Downs course yesterday afternoon.

The crowd, conservatively estimated at 12,000 although the management announced 18,000, came, in about every variety of vehicle and dress. Streams of shiny automobiles jolted over the dirt road leading to the track and parked in fields near the clubhouse alongside tallyhos which had brought coaching parties. A group of young married pairs came in a chartered bus equipped with its own bar. They also made their bets among themselves, scorning to descend to patronize the trackside bookies who braved official disapproval and did a brisk business.

A Rustic Touch.

The bus bar was not the only one as there was one of enormous length beneath the clubhouse stands and there were two or three refreshment stands walled with corn stalks cut green and imparting a rustic touch to the scene.

Bright amid the milling crowds along the rail and in the clubhouse stands were the crimson-coated members of the Bridlespur Hunt, called "pink coats."

The "pink coats" are the elect of the foxhunting fraternity. They are entitled to wear hunting scarlet only after a severe novitiate and a special invitation.

Individualism ran riot in dress. Saucy alpine hats were by no means confined to the women, as some men also wore them. One splendid gentleman strolled through the paddock gate in formal afternoon attire with silk topper and ascot tie, and professional jockeys wore racing silks.

Individual Color.

Varied individual portraits could be drawn. There was the stout woman who stood upright in her box at a tense moment, a cigarette in one hand and field glasses in the other and implored a horse to "Come on in, baby." Then there was the pink coat who changed costumes with greater frequency than an oldtime vaudeville artist. He first appeared in plaid sport coat which he changed to hunting pink for a race and after that he put aside his pink coat and became an ice cream colored coat with riding breeches to match.

In the feature race, the August A. Busch Memorial, three jockeys were thrown at the first jump after leaving the post and were taken to St. Mary's Hospital in an ambulance. The mishap occurred too far from the clubhouse for spectators to see what had happened but the loudspeaker's call for the ambulance caused exclamations of anxiety.

The riders, Tommy Fitzwater and William Keston of Fairmount race track, and Stewart Mattson, Lake Forest, Ill., were not seriously hurt. The accident narrowed the field to four horses.

These and their riders continued around the two and a half mile course, which dipped up and down hill and among trees still bushy with summer foliage, so that spectators had difficulty in following the race.

Ondott, the favorite, was beaten by Daffy, a horse which had scarcely been considered by the experts. Four of the 11 entries were scratched, leaving only seven starters.

Army Band Parades.

The weather was warm beneath a gray October sky. From the clubhouse one could look across several miles of rolling woodland and pasture to where suburban residences rose against green hills. In the oval center of the course, where many spectators milled, was a flagpole with guy ropes so gaily hung with colored pennants that it looked like a Maypole. From a stand nearby a band played such quick, bright, tingling tunes as "Arkansas Traveler" and "You're in the Army Now." There was another band present, the Third Regiment Band from Fort Myer, Va., which played at the horse show. Between races this band paraded past the clubhouse, playing, drawing several rounds of applause. The clubhouse stands were painted powder blue and a row of flags fluttered behind the top tier of boxes.

Bareback Mule Race.

The meet began with a comical number—a race between St. Louis County farmers over whose lands the Bridlespur members hunt. The farmers rode bareback on mules and as they came down the stretch one rider slid off the flank end and chased his mule disconsolately over the finish line while the others slapped their animals fore and aft and yelled as if thousands instead of $55 were at stake.

The field was large due to the electric news which went out recently that "Butler's mule is dead." Butler's mule, named High Heels, had won the event with such regularity in recent years that prospective rivals had become discouraged.

But the owner of High Heels, Lawrence Butler, had another mule named Scarlett (Gone With the Wind) O'Hara. Like Augustus, who seized the scepter from falling Caesar's hands, Scarlett galloped home so far ahead of the field that Butler's rivals despair of winning until another fortuitous death occurs in his stable.

Two of the thrown riders remained in the hospital, Mattson, who suffered a concussion of the brain, and Fitzwater, with cuts on the scalp and body. The riders said the dust stirred up by horses in front obscured their view of the jump. Fitzwater was the first to attempt the jump and the others piled up on top of him. Their horses were rounded up by mounted field attendants. Fitzwater and another rider had been thrown previously while making a jump in the fourth race, but had gotten up unhurt.

The feature race carried a purse of $1000, divided among the first four horses, with $650 going to the winner. The trophy, a $1500 gold cup, presented by members of the family of the late August A. Busch, must be won three times to be held permanently.

Smart Fall Sports Clothes.

Smart fall sports clothes appeared en masse. A day too warm for furs brought out tweeds, and plaid wools, and styles ranged from whole suede suits with contrasting accessories and mantailored coast with Ascot ties, to modified Scotch Highlander outfits in which hats, coats and pleated skirts were made of matching plaids. One enterprising shopkeeper presided over a box full of mannequins dressed in the latest sports attire. There were orchids in abundance. Great clusters of them were worn in shoulder bouquets, sometimes complementing a deep purple or wine colored hat. Others were pinned carelessly to the front of a coat, or splashed color across a black purse.

The party in the chartered bus took their own photographs from motion pictures to candid camera shots. In the group were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Simmons II, Mr. and Mrs. John Kennard Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Truman E. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Franciscus, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus, Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Walker III, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Green Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rand, Mr. and Mrs. Chapin Newhard, Mr. and Thomas Pettus, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Clarkson, Mr. and Mrs. John Crago, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D'Oyley Hughes, Harry Hall Knight, Howard O'Fallon Jr., and Samuel Caldwell, who recently moved here from Omaha.

Coaching Club Anniversary.

The Claytonshire Coaching Club, celebrating the fifth anniversary of its founding, made its annual appearance in two tallyhos and a coach, scarlet and gray banners flying and trumpets sounding as they pulled up in the enclosure near the band stand after lunching at the St. Louis Country Club. From the eight charter members who rode to the Downs in a brougham in 1933, membership has grown, until yesterday, with a few additional guests, they not only filled the seats but clung to the steps of three vehicles. They, too, had their own private bar, set up near the coaches and flying club colors. In the party were Harry Langenberg Jr., guiding spirit of the organization, which also does its New Year's day calling in tallyhos; Tankerville J. Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Trustin B. Boyd, G. Vietor Davis, Arthur B. Shepley, Wickham Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John Valle Janes, Oliver Langenberg, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Van Ness Jones, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Seddon Jr., Allen T. West Jr., Dickson Pierce, Tom McPheeters, Mr. and Mrs. Ingram F. Boyd Jr., Firmin Desloge Jr., Albert Blanke, Louis Walker, Miss Mary Pettus, Mrs. John I. Beggs McCulloch, Miss Louise Neade of Dayton, the guest of Miss Jane Johnson; Miss Mary Elizabeth Bascom, Miss Judith Gamble, Miss Caro Holmes and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bound.

Debutantes, many just returned from summer trips and busy for the fall season beginning Wednesday with the Veiled Prophet ball, took time out from fittings and party preparation and went in groups. One box held Miss Nancy Lee Morrill, Miss Frances McPheeters and the two Sullivan debutantes, Miss Anne Eugenia and Miss Mary Julia. Miss Anne Wendling and Miss Betty Berkley were in another group; Miss Eleanor Lee Carter and Miss Susan Meston in another, and Miss Katherine Cushman and Miss Josephine Fuzz were each with parties of friends.

One of the smart suede costumes was worn by Mrs. Adalbert von Gontard, who presented the trophy in the August A. Busch Memorial, the feature race. Her suit was gray, and she carried a wine-colored suede bag and wore a wine red felt hat. She arrived with Mr. Von Gontard and Walter Reisinger of New York. Mrs. Edward Magnus was in rust-colored suede partly concealed by a topcoat, and her daughter, Miss Miquette, wore a suit of almost the same color.

Texas Prison Rodeo.

By the Associated Press.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 2.—The first of several rodeos will be held at Huntsville prison this month. Convict broncho busters, steer riders and ropers will take part. Prison officials will open the gates to outside spectators.

To Elect A A A Committeemen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. — The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that a series of local meetings will be held throughout the United States, starting Nov. 8, to elect county committeemen for the administration of the A A A farm conservation program. The meetings, which will be completed by the end of November, will also include discussions by farmers of current farm problems and objectives of the 1938 conservation program.

Additional Editorial Comment On Justice Black's Radio Speech Admitting He Once Was Klansman

New York Sun Calls 'Confession' a Mess of Factitiousness and Inconsistency — Few Found Defending Him.

FOLLOWING are additional excerpts from editorial comment throughout the country on United States Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black's radio address Friday night, in which he replied to charges of unfitness because he had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan:

The New York Sun: The preamble to Black's confession was a mess of factitiousness and inconsistency. The Bill of Rights was praised by a man who, as Senator, trampled upon the article of the bill which provides that the people shall be secure against unreasonable search and seizure. Equally hollow was Black's allegation that the storm which has raged about his appointment was "a planned and concerted campaign." Nothing could be further from the truth. He has been on trial as a man nominated to the greatest and most respected court in the whole world. He has finally pleaded guilty to a charge which, while not disqualifying him technically from holding the office of Associate Justice, should morally disqualify any man from such a place.

Baltimore Evening Sun: Since Hugo L. Black was a Southern politician of the cheaper sort, it was almost inevitable that he should have joined the Ku Klux Klan in its halcyon days. A little later it went into eclipse. The fact that it was a racket became more and more apparent until even the most backward politicians could see the writing on the wall and publicly denied any connection with it. Hugo Black differs from the others only in the unimportant detail that he didn't see fit either to admit membership or to denounce the objectives of the Klan until public pressure forced him to do so. Despite his public admission of last night, the fact remains that he did try to slip into the Supreme Court without letting the unpleasant facts in his record be known.

Washington Evening Star: Justice Black's answer to the charge is a confession of its truth. No secret has been made of the embarrassment of the President in the whole matter. Millions of Americans of every racial stock and every religious belief will not forget this sole tangible accomplishment of President Roosevelt's attempted liberalization of the Supreme Court.

Lynchburg (Va.) Advance: Justice Black took occasion to attack those who had revealed his affiliation with the klan. He charged them with an attempt to incite religious bigotry and create racial strife. He denounced them as imbued with intolerance and desire to fan flames of prejudice. Strange words, indeed, to come from a man who admitted unequivocably that he not only incurred the favor of an organization but became a member of the order, which is generally regarded as builded upon the very tenets which Justice Black now so vehemently denounces.

Nashville Banner: Associate Justice Hugo L. Black may possess courage, but he assuredly lacks candor. It was an effort as clearly marked by inconsistencies as by its secretiveness, where silence was the conceived better strategy and by suppressions of the record where the whole truth would have been destructive in its embarrassments. The silences of the speech were his Klan connection comes late. He would be in better case today had he made it at the time his nomination to the court was before his fellow Senators for confirmation. The country will judge for itself.

Boston Transcript: The speech was the pose of a man who had sinned and repented. The gesture will deceive nobody. It will not lessen, in any degree, the size of the dark stain which has covered this judicial appointment from the beginning. Nor will it convince the people that Mr. Black is any more fitted now than ever he was for a place on the highest court in the land.

The Chicago Daily News: Justice Black's answer to the charge is a confession of its truth. No secret has been made of the embarrassment of the President in the whole matter. Millions of Americans of every racial stock and every religious belief will not forget this sole tangible accomplishment of President Roosevelt's attempted liberalization of the Supreme Court.

Lynchburg (Va.) Advance: Justice Black took occasion to attack those who had revealed his affiliation with the klan. He charged them with an attempt to incite religious bigotry and create racial strife. He denounced them as imbued with intolerance and desire to fan flames of prejudice. Strange words, indeed, to come from a man who admitted unequivocably that he not only incurred the favor of an organization but became a member of the order, which is generally regarded as builded upon the very tenets which Justice Black now so vehemently denounces.

Nashville Banner: Associate Justice Hugo L. Black may possess courage, but he assuredly lacks candor. It was an effort as clearly marked by inconsistencies as by its secretiveness, where silence was the conceived better strategy and by suppressions of the record where the whole truth would have been destructive in its embarrassments. The silences of the speech were eloquent of fear to make full disclosure.

Bridgeport (Conn.) Times-Star: While we advocate forgiveness, we do not in any sense wish to imply that Mr. Black's appointment is worthy of our approval. Christian tolerance, if there is any left in the hearts of those who politically dislike Roosevelt and Black, should at this late date forgive the early Klan indiscretion on the score of political expediency.

New Haven Journal-Courier: Mr. Justice Black takes his place upon the high court a confessed ex-Klansman, having secured confirmation at least in part by the concealment of evidence from the President and the Senate. Mr. Roosevelt and the demi-liberals are welcome to him. The sensitive will avert their eyes.

New Haven Register: Justice Black explains that he is a champion of civil, economic and religious rights of all Americans, implies that he will forever be one, that he wishes good will to take the place of prejudice and suspicion, but he seems not to understand that the most effective and immediate proof of true liberalism within his power to give, of true regard for the prestige of the court, of true respect for good will and of unselfish service toward quelling bad feelings would be his withdrawal.

Rochester Evening Gazette: At a time when all of his fellow members were conveniently ignoring his past, Mr. Black dared not come forward and destroy his own prospects by making such a statement as he has now put forward in his own defense. He was then, and he is now, a sleazy politician.

Providence Star-Tribune: We don't like the idea of a Supreme Court Judge having been at any time or for whatever purpose associated with the Ku Klux Klan, but the issue is not religion, it is not race or creed; the issue is economics, and however much this one incident in Judge Black's past and his lack of frankness is to be regretted, the principal consideration is his forceful views on liberal economic and social problems.

Dayton Daily News: In view of the widespread taint of the Klan in those dark post-war days, some forgiveness can be claimed and allowed. We wish that Justice Black could have made a clean confession of error, pleaded the disturbed mentality of the times, then show forth, as Black could and did, fruits meet for the repentance professed. Black did not go this whole way and by that length he failed of that full claim to public sympathy.

Charlotte (N. C.) News: The burning question for Senator Black to answer in his statement last night, was, did he recall, while his colleagues in the Senate were defending him from the charge of Klan membership, that he had been made a life member of that outfit? Apparently he did recall it. He had been given a card—'unsolicited,' it is true, which he did not even keep. But he didn't return it.

Columbia (S. C.) Record: That he now regrets, wishes to forget and has been trying to live down (Klan membership) should be accepted, and his record on the Supreme Court left to speak for itself. It may indeed happen that as a burnt child who dreads fire he may turn out to be a champion of the Bill of Rights.

St. Petersburg (Fla.) Evening Independent: Last night's statement does not establish Mr. Black's fitness for the Supreme Court, which has been challenged on other grounds than Klan membership. But it does seem to dispose of the charge that he is liable to display racial or religious intolerance.

Minneapolis Journal: From his uneasy spot at the bar of public opinion, Mr. Black replied to the Ku Klux Klan charge as follows: "Guilty, but I was just foolin'."

Newark Evening News: The News said at the time of his nomination that its objection to Mr. Black was that he is Mr. Black. Now he is more Mr. Black than ever, so let him put on his robe, and let the court, with its eight and its one, resume its business.

Richmond (Va.) News Leader: A full, frank statement, ringing true in every word and ending with an offer to resign in order that the President and the party might be relieved of odium, would have given Mr. Justice Black a reputation we fear he never can get now. The spectre of a white hood amid the black gowns of the court will not down.

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger Dispatch: Justice Black's answer the Klan charges is a plea of guilty. His repudiation of the poisonous Klan philosophies now does not wipe out the unwholesome record of the silence that was broken only after public clamor had become so great that he was compelled to break it. He has been guilty of amazing lack of candor.

Rochester Times Union: One of the most unpleasant and deeply humiliating experiences in the entire history of this country reached its climax last night. The record to which he (Black) so proudly refers indicates he has repeatedly shown lack of consideration for the effect on the political and economic structure of the United States or for the effect upon millions of the people of the measures he advocates. This is closely akin to stubborn bigotry and intolerance. The conclusion is inescapable that a man so deficient in moral courage is not fitted for the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Justice Black ought to resign.

Milwaukee Journal: Why were the people of the United States asked to listen to this humiliating talk by a politician who joined the klan when it suited him, resigned when it suited him? He left President Roosevelt in ignorance of his klan affiliation. He sat in the Senate and heard his brethren question his affiliation when a single word would have enlightened them. Mr. Roosevelt thought he ought to have six appointments to the court and Hugo L. Black is what he did with the one appointment he has had.

Alabama Journal (Montgomery): Justice Hugo L. Black's frank utterance should have the desirable result of further disarming those who grope desperately for any weapon that would injure or embarrass President Roosevelt, the New Deal and those representatives of the people who have attempted to carry out the purposes of the present administration in restoring the government to the people.

Wilmington Journal-Every Evening: He did make forthright declaration of tolerance in his radio address, coupling with it the theme that by his acts in the Senate the people know him. By those acts as well as by his past the people should judge him. We said at the time of his appointment, we have repeated since then, and we reiterate now that on the scores of native ability, mental attitude, and legal training he is not qualified to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. It is unthinkable, but it still is true, that a man who ever took the bigoted, un-American oath of the klan is to sit on the bench from which there is no appeal.

Oklahoma City Times—"The weak thing that is proven on Mr. Justice Black is that he accepted membership in a movement he knew to be against the best interests of the American form of government, for political expediency . . . It is not in the cards, but Mr. Justice Black would enhance his national prestige and do President Roosevelt a great service by resigning."

Denver Post: "Two things Justice Black of the United States Supreme Court did not explain in his precedent-shattering public confession of his relations with the Ku Klux Klan are more important than what he did explain. . . . He did not explain why he ever joined the Klan in the first place, and he did not explain why he quit it."

FORMER BANKER SENTENCED

Ex-Lieutenant Governor of South Dakota Admitted Falsifying Reports.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 2.—Former Lieutenant Governor Robert Peterson was sentenced today to three years in Leavenworth penitentiary by United States District Judge A. Lee Wyman when he pleaded guilty of falsifying national bank reports.

Peterson formerly was president of the First National Bank at Centerville. He served as lieutenant governor in 1935-36. He pleaded not guilty last January to charges of misappalication and embezzlement of bank funds totaling $112,019.

TELLS OF HUGO BLACK'S ROLE IN MURDER TRIAL

Birmingham (Ala.) Reporter Says Justice Once Defended Alleged Killer of Priest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 2.—Associate Justice Hugo L. Black of the United States Supreme Court made one of his few ventures into a criminal court 16 years ago to defend a Methodist minister accused of shooting a Catholic priest because the priest had permitted the minister's 19-year-old daughter to join the Catholic Church.

Such is the story from a Birmingham correspondent published in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. The murder of the priest occurred on the evening of Aug. 11, 1921, in Birmingham. The man accused of the murder was described as a clergyman who loitered about the Jefferson County Courthouse seeking meager fees for performing marriages. When these were sparse, the story states, he took part-time jobs in Birmingham barber shops.

The minister was indicted for second-degree murder following the shooting of the priest, which occurred on the day the minister's daughter was married by the priest to a Puerto Rican, a member of the priest's church. The trial was regarded more as a struggle between the Klan and the Catholic Church, according to the Post-Gazette story, than an inquiry into who killed the priest.

The questions of race and religion seemed paramount throughout the trial, and after four hours' deliberation the jury acquitted the minister. The presiding judge described the verdict as "an honest one."

Two years later, Hugo L. Black joined the Klan, the Post-Gazette story said, and three years after that he was presented with the "golden passport" of life membership. At the same time, one of the jurors in the 1921 case was elected a member of the Grand Tribunal of 12 of the Realm of Alabama in the Invisible Empire and assigned to a court to try Klansmen charged with violation of their Klan oath, the Pittsburgh paper continued.

The Judge in the shooting case, William E. Fort, eventually went to Washington to become an Assistant United States Attorney-General under an appointment recommended by Justice Black when he was Senator.

Women's C. of C. to Meet Thursday

The first fall meeting of the Women's Chamber of Commerce will be held at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning in the American Hotel. Dr. H. I. Spector, assistant City Health Commissioner, will be the principal speaker. There will be a luncheon.

INDIVIDUAL VIEWS ON JUSTICE BLACK

Senator Johnson of California Says It Is Sorry Thing He's on Court.

Following are additional views expressed by members of Congress and others after Justice Hugo Black's address Friday night.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Rep.), California: Despite his rhetoric and his touching allusions to his Negro, Jewish and Catholic friends, one damning fact stands out in bold relief. He voluntarily became a member of the Klan, was initiated into it, and subscribed to its tenets. He thus foreswore the Constitution of the United States, and all his protestations and pretty words cannot disguise the ugly fact that he then would have denied the right of religious freedom to his American brethren. . . . With his record it is a sorry thing that he should go upon the Supreme Court of the United States.

Samuel Untermyer, New York lawyer, head of the non-sectarian anti-Nazi League and of other non-sectarian and Jewish sectarian organizations, and a leading opponent in New York of the Klan: I was greatly impressed with Senator Black's speech. It seemed to me that his explanation should close the discussion. Of course it is true that he was a member of the Klan. So were many thousands of others in the South at the time. His record in the Senate and his associations and appointments while in the Senate impressed me that he is today a man of liberal views on racial and religious questions.

Paul Block, newspaper publisher whose Pittsburgh Post-Gazette printed a series of articles linking Justice Black with the Ku Klux Klan: There should be no disposition to be vindictive. If Justice Black since that day when he became a life member of the Klan has put out of his heart and mind the ideas and ideals of that organization, the people of America will be glad to know it. But the record of the past is unmistakable. The facts are against him. No man with that record ought ever to sit upon the highest court in the United States of America.

Congressman R. T. Wood, Democrat and Missouri State president of the A. F. of L: I don't see that it's an issue one way or the other. What a man belongs to is his own personal affair, and I don't see how it can affect the party or the nation one way or the other. It has nothing to do with the great issues.

Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri: It will be noted that he does not apologize for having joined the Klan.

Senator Lynn Frazier (Rep.), North Dakota: A fair explanation.

Senator James A. Pope (Dem.), Idaho: Most effective . . . final statement on the matter.

Senator A. Harry Moore (Dem.), New Jersey: If I had known Justice Black had been a member of the Klan, I would not have voted to confirm him.

Senator Dennis Chavez, [illegible] Mexico. I did not hear one word from Justice Black that would indicate he was sorry for having joined an intolerant and un-American organization.

DEAN SWEET TELLS OF WAR IN CHINA

Back After Three Months in Orient, He Says U. S. Should Be More Censorious of Japan.

On his return to St. Louis yesterday from a three-months' trip through China and Japan, the Rev. Sidney E. Sweet, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, said he felt that the United States should adopt a more censorious attitude toward Japan to show "that it is opposed to aggressive warfare," and should not continue a neutrality policy which "might be much more harmful to China than to Japan."

He added that he believed most Americans living in the Orient felt the same way and that, while they did not desire any American entanglement in the present undeclared war, they thought that the Japanese aggression should be officially condemned.

Dean Sweet said he was greatly impressed with the Chinese defense to date and that "while there is no chance of the Chinese defeating the Japanese and winning any great victory, it is highly possible that the Chinese will hold out and extend the war to so many fronts that it will be economically and financially impossible for Japan to continue."

Dean Sweet was accompanied on the trip by his wife, and for a great part of it by their son, Sidney E. Sweet Jr., who is instructor in English and History at Yale-in-China at Changsa.

They had plenty of opportunity to see the war at close hand. Had their boat going down the Yangtze River from Nanking to Shanghai not been late, they would have been in Shanghai on Aug. 14, quartered there in a hotel which was struck by bombs four times.

DEAN SWEET TELLS OF WAR IN CHINA

He added that he believed most Americans living in the Orient felt the same way and that, while they did not desire any American entanglement in the present undeclared war, they thought that the Japanese aggression should be officially condemned.

Dean Sweet was accompanied on the trip by his wife, and for a great part of it by their son, Sidney E. Sweet Jr., who is instructor in English and History at Yale-in-China at Changsa.

They had plenty of opportunity to see the war at close hand. Had their boat going down the Yangtze River from Nanking to Shanghai not been late, they would have been in Shanghai on Aug. 14, quartered there in a hotel which was struck by bombs four times.

As it was their boat was stopped by a blockade at Chingkiang, about 100 miles up the river from Shanghai, and for a week they lay there at anchor. They would get to shore occasionally with some Englishmen who came out to the boat to see some friends.

Chingkiang at the time was also receiving its share of bombardment. "We would ask if the raids were over for the day," Dean Sweet said, "and then my son and I would go ashore and play tennis."

The boat finally turned around and went back to Nanking. Here there was delay in getting a boat for Hankow, and, quartered in a hotel outside the city walls, the Sweets could watch the raids and the fire of the anti-aircraft guns.

Dean Sweet said he thought that the bombing of the inland towns had been of little military significance to date. "It has terrorized the people to some extent—it was pathetic to see women and children sleeping in streets waiting to be taken out of the city—but the raids have also helped to unite the Chinese."

In Hankow, there again was delay getting a train for Canton and Hong Kong, and the Sweets finally arrived in Hong Kong just in time for the typhoon. Six windows in their hotel room were broken, and the room was filled with glass and water.

Had their plans gone as originally made, the Sweets would not only have been in the bombed Shanghai hotel, but also on the S. S. President Hoover when it was bombed. They came home instead on the President Lincoln, about a month later than they expected. Dean Sweet was still wearing his summer straw hat.

HITLER TO TALK TODAY AT HARVEST FESTIVAL

250,000 Farmers to Gather at Bad Pyrmont — Speech on Food Situation.

By the Associated Press.

BAD PYRMONT, Germany, Oct. 2.—A quarter of a million farmers will gather on Bueckeberg, a hill near here, tomorrow to celebrate with Chancellor Hitler Nazi Germany's harvest festival. Hitler, in a speech to be broadcast throughout the nation, will discuss Germany's serious food situation.

Soldiers numbering 10,000 will clash in a sham battle as a curtain raiser for the speech.

Farmers from nearby sections began arriving tonight with their families in wagons and busses, while 500 special trains will bring the rest of the huge audience. One special was provided for Prentiss B. Gilbert, Charge d'Affaires in the American embassy in Berlin, and other diplomats.

An estimated 100,000 persons already were here to find quarters in a tent city or nearby towns.

Peasant costumes representing native dress in all sections of Germany will be seen at the festival.

That a Rexall Drug Store has values not to be found in any other store—that Rexall Drug Stores numbering over 10,000 are owned and operated by the leading men in their communities—that Rexall Drug Stores save you many wasteful in-between profits by their plan of cooperative merchandising?
Louis K. Liggett says "yes!"
"Yes, I believe Rexall Products to be the answer to America's desire for better quality at lowest possible prices due to The Rexall Plan."
LOUIS K. LIGGETT
Founder of the Rexall Plan of Drug Store Merchandising
The REXALL PLAN
The Rexall Plan of drug store merchandising was founded in 1903. It is a simple plan whereby the leading independently-owned drug store in every city, town or community join together in marketing their own drug store products of better value for less money under the trade names—Rexall, Puretest, Firstaid, Klenzo, Kantleek, Cara Nome, Adrienne, and others.
The SHADOW LIFTED
Rexall's own staff of Research Scientists work in Rexall's own Technological Laboratory to make sure that every Rexall Product is worthy of your use. Thus, Rexall lifts the shadow of doubt with knowledge and proof.

LINKS SHOOTING WITH ARREST OF LABOR RACKETEER

Prosecutor T. E. Dewey Thinks Max Rubin Was Attacked Over Max Silverman Case.

SEIZED FUGITIVE'S BAIL SET AT $250,000

New York Police Lay Killing of Sam Gapel Friday Night to Inter-Union Quarrel.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. — Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey said today the capture of Max Silverman, accused of heading a labor racket, was clearly linked with one of two shootings of labor leaders here last night.

Dewey referred to an attack on Max Rubin, president of the Cloak Drivers' and Helpers' Union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, who is in a hospital tonight with an even chance of recovering. Rubin, walking on a Bronx roadway, was shot in the back of the head by a gunman in an automobile.

The fatal shooting, a few hours later, of Sam Gapel, treasurer of a painters' and decorators' union, although having no apparent connection with the attack on Rubin, also was attributed by police, relatives and union associates of Gapel to an inter-union quarrel.

At the arraignment of Silverman, described by Dewey as "Labor Racketeer No. 1," the defendant's counsel objected to Dewey's references to "the attempted murder" of Rubin.

Rubin Careless, Dewey Says.

Dewey, who has boasted that he never lost a witness in his long series of racket trials and investigations, recalled that Rubin testified before the grand jury which indicted Silverman and others on charges of extorting tribute from big baking firms.

"Rubin was offered police protection about a month ago which he rejected," Dewey said, "and now he is paying the penalty."

Silverman was brought here by plane yesterday from Los Angeles after being a fugitive for 21 months. His counsel made no objection when bail was set at $250,000. Another warrant was served on Silverman at the hearing, charging him with conspiracy to obstruct justice in the investigation of the Sam Drukman murder case in Brooklyn more than a year ago.

The Court expressed the opinion that the warrant would hold him for hearing in the Brooklyn case Monday even if the $250,000 bail was raised.

Supported by Gangster Money.

"Business men and working men have shown such fear that it has taken two years to bring about these indictments and this arraignment," said Dewey.

Describing Rubin as "a former partner" of Silverman, Dewey said the man attacked "was missing for 12 months up until about four weeks ago and of those 12 months he was a fugitive for nine months from my office."

Rubin came back to New York about a month ago, Dewey said, intimating that he then began giving information to Dewey's office after being "supported in New Orleans and kept in hiding there by gangster money."

Dewey linked Silverman with the unsolved killing in 1934 of William Snyder, president of a teamsters' union local. He said Silverman was present at "a meeting of the flour racket leaders consisting of 14 persons" at which Snyder was killed.

DRIVER OF TRUCK KILLED IN CLAYTON ROAD CRASH

Machine Apparently Got Out of Control, Ran Into Ditch and Hit Telephone Pole.

Harry Johnson, 4314 Papin street, a driver for the Kahlmeyer Bros. Ice & Fuel Co., 310 South Newstead avenue, was killed yesterday when the truck he was driving crashed into a telephone pole on Clayton road, about 300 feet east of Woods Mill road.

Johnson, who was 32 years old, apparently lost control of the truck while driving west, and the machine struck a ditch and then hit the pole. The cab of the truck was crushed in.

TWO BOTTLES OF CHAMPAGNE BROKEN ON CRUISER'S PROW

Third Vessel to Carry Name of Nashville Launched at Camden (N. J.) Yards.

By the Associated Press.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 2.—Two bottles of champagne were smashed on the prow of the navy's new light cruiser Nashville today and the vessel skidded down the ways into the Delaware River.

Miss Ann and Miss Mildred Stahlman, daughters of James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner, broke the bottles in the launching ceremony at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation. They were the official delegates of the State of Tennessee, named by Gov. Gordon Browning.

Stahlman was representative of the City of Nashville at the christening of the vessel, the third to carry the name of the Tennesee city

O'BOYLE IS REAPPOINTED AS FIRE CHIEF UNTIL 1941

Lawrence Cornoyer, Deputy, Also Retained; Six Promotions in Department Announced.

Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle and Deputy Chief Lawrence Cornoyer have been reappointed for terms ending in 1941, it was announced yesterday by Director of Public Safety George W. Chadsey, who also made public six promotions in the department.

Three firemen promoted from the rank of private to lieutenant were Anton Busch, Walter A. Raftery and P. A. Deveraux; two from assistant engineer to engineer, R. J. Canning and Joseph J. Ellebrecht, and from private to engineer, Louis G. Wuensch.

Twenty-five new privates will be enrolled, Chadsey said, to fill vacancies in the department.

Chief O'Boyle and Deputy Chief Cornoyer were originally appointed in 1933. Both are veterans of the service.

ADMITS LOSING $45 GAMBLING WHEN HOLDUP STORY FAILS

Gasoline Station Attendant to Face Court Tomorrow for Making False Report.

John King, filling station attendant at 4842 Natural Bridge avenue, admitted to police yesterday afternoon that his report of a $45 holdup at the station earlier in the day was false. He said he had lost the money gambling and had offered the robbery story to explain its disappearance.

King, to appear in Police Court tomorrow on a charge of making a false report of a crime, said he is 37 years old and lives at 2012 Tower Grove avenue.

JOSEPH C. BAKER'S FUNERAL

Six Sons of Plastering Contractor Serve as Pallbearers.

The six sons of Joseph C. Baker, plastering contractor, 6523 Bartmer avenue, who died Wednesday of diabetes at St. Luke's Hospital, were pallbearers at his funeral yesterday afternoon at Bauman Brothers' funeral establishment, 2504 Woodson road, Overland. Burial was in Mount Lebanon Cemetery. Mr. Baker was 73 years old and was to have celebrated his fiftieth wedding anniversary this month.

Besides the six sons, Todd, Grover, George, Joseph, August and Tillman Baker, all of whom reside in St. Louis except Todd, a resident of South Bend, Ind., Mr. Baker is survived by his wife and four daughters, Mrs. Lottie Lombardo, Mrs. Lena Petersdorff, Mrs. Hazel Liebrum and Miss Marian Baker, all of St. Louis.

PAINTER HANGS HIMSELF

Wife Discovers Peter Wenta's Body in Garage.

Peter H. Wenta, a painter, 7122 Picadilly avenue, ended his life yesterday afternoon by hanging himself from a rafter in a garage at the rear of his home. He was 69 years old.

His wife, who found the body when she returned home from a shopping trip, told police her husband had been in ill health for two years. There were no notes.

'TRUTH SERUM' TRIED ON CONFESSED KILLER

Under Drug, He Sticks to Original Story of New Mexico Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 2.—Under the influence of a so-called truth serum, Layton Mosley, 28 years old, today stuck to his original statement that he shot Tom Deal, an oil field worker, to death in New Mexico, and robbed him after being picked up as a hitch hiker, and buried Deal's body in a sandy prairie grave near Eunice, N. M.

While still in a hypnotic state from the injection of the drug, Mosley denied having anything to do with the disappearance of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lorius of East St. Louis, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of DuQuoin, Ill., last seen in New Mexico in May, 1935.

Mosley's statement was forwarded to New Mexico officers searching for Deal's body. Police said Mosley would not be taken to New Mexico to aid in the search unless authorities of that State take steps to extradite him.

Police said this was the eighteenth time the so-called truth serum has been used in attempts to gain confessions. In 15 cases persons under its influence made statements that later resulted in signed confessions.

MANY FINE TREES IN FOREST WHERE BIG OAK STANDS

Notable Specimens of Gum, Pecan, Ash, Red Oak, White Oak, Cottonwood and Cypress.

SOME ARE 4 TO 7 FEET IN DIAMETER

Three of Largest Already Cut Down by Lumber Companies — Others Threatened.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Oct. 2. — Seven unusually large trees of different families than the Big Oak, in Missouri's last hardwood forest near here, most of which has been purchased by lumber companies for cutting, were pointed out by logging superintendents during the last few days to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

Massive, mature specimens of their kind, as the Big Oak is of the burr oak variety, they indicate the suitability of soil and climate in the area for growth of timber and forest preservation. A movement to save the Big Oak and its surrounding acres of forest now is under way.

The seven specimens, gum, pecan, ash, red oak, white oak, cottonwood and cypress, ranged from 4 feet, 3 inches to 7 feet in trunk diameter at 3 feet above the ground, excepting the cypress, which was measured at 4½ feet up, because of its spreading, buttressed base.

Three Already Down.

Three of the specimens, the gum, ash and pecan, already are cut down, and measurements were taken of remaining stumps and logs cut from them. All seven, however, were pointed out as the largest, or among the largest of their kind in the forest, as known to the logging superintendents of the camps visited.

None of the seven specimens was in the area immediately surrounding the Big Oak, where cutting of timber has not begun. Within the Big Oak area are 14 principal kinds of trees, the hardwoods averaging 21 inches in diameter. The general average of the entire forest, with the softwood trees, like cottonwoods, which grow more rapidly, is 26 inches trunk diameter at the sawing point.

Largest of the seven specimens were a cottonwood and a cypress, each 7 feet in diameter. The circumference of the cottonwood is 22 feet 2 inches, and the cypress is 22 feet 7 inches. Both are softwoods, not as valuable as hardwood trees. Both are on land purchased by the Mississippi Valley Hardwood Co., Inc., of Memphis, which also is owner of the tract on which the Big Oak stands.

140 Feet in Height.

Noah J. Boyd, superintending logging operations for the Dillman Industries of Caruthersville, which is cutting the softwood trees on the Mississippi Valley company's land, estimated the height of the cottonwood at 140 feet. Two others, nearly as large in height and diameter, stood within a 100-yard radius in the mixed forest tract there, the three of them sturdy, rough-barked specimens, younger and faster-growing than most of their neighbors, and devoting their energy more to girth and length of body than to head and limb.

The venerable cypress stood in a company of similar patriarchs of the forest, buttressed to wet, black soil. Time had made their almost black bark scaly and furrowed and hung their branches with shrouds of vines.

The big tree's 120-foot spread of branches was only scantily covered with the cypress' characteristic, pale green, feathery foliage, and patches were dead and brown. "Pecky and wind-shaken," Boyd pronounced it, meaning that a fungus gnawed its vitals, making the "pecky-wood cypress" of commerce; and that strong winds, buffeting its huge head, had cracked its layers of wood lengthwise. From 25 feet up, the tree had three trunks.

A companion tree measured 22 feet, 2 inches in circumference, and up from the ground around them their roots protruded in cone-shaped cypress knees, as much as four feet high. It is the tree's unique method of securing air for the root area from above the saturated soil, or standing water.

A Giant Pecan Tree.

At the camp of the Shannon Bros. Lumber Co. at the southern end of the 30-mile forest, Negroes were sawing into logs a pecan tree that had been felled. It measured 5 feet, 1 inch in diameter at the base where cut, and tapered only to 4 feet at the top of its sound trunk, 66 feet long. The tree had stood 100 feet high.

"It was the biggest pecan I've ever seen," L. Robbins, logging foreman of the camp, said. "We'll get 6534 feet out of it."

Next of the hardwood specimens was a hollow ash stump, pointed out by Robbins, that measured 5 feet, 8 inches in diameter.

Obviously one of the deans of the forest, its tough wood had held its 115 feet of height against wind

t Wednesday Workers' Un- A. F. of L. other casket Friday night ith the same ach instance n of the un- agent, estab- s, a 40-hour for overtime increase.

A Giant Pecan Tree.

At the camp of the Shannon Bros. Lumber Co. at the southern end of the 30-mile forest, Negroes were sawing into logs a pecan tree that had been felled. It measured 5 feet, 1 inch in diameter at the base where cut, and tapered only to 4 feet at the top of its sound trunk, 66 feet long. The tree had stood 100 feet high.

"It was the biggest pecan I've ever seen," L. Robbins, logging foreman of the camp, said. "We'll get 6534 feet out of it."

Next of the hardwood specimens was a hollow ash stump, pointed out by Robbins, that measured 5 feet, 8 inches in diameter.

Obviously one of the deans of the forest, its tough wood had held its 115 feet of height against wind and lightning until the saw and ax brought it crashing down, although the entire center of the tree's base had rotted out. There was less than a foot-thick rim of wood around the cavity.

Where the top of the tree had been sawed off, the trunk was 3 feet 4 inches in diameter, showing a trunk taper of 18 inches. Boyd said 32 feet of solid ash logs had been cut above the cavity. Nearby, lumberjacks were sawing up a 3-foot ash log.

A Big White Oak.

A stout, worthy rival of the Big Oak, which has a diameter of 6 feet 5 inches at 4½ feet above the ground, and is considered to be one of the largest oaks in the United States, is on land purchased by the Menge company of Louisville.

A white oak, it measured 5 feet 1 inch in diameter, and 18 feet 10 inches in circumference at 3 feet above the ground. Apparently a healthy, sound tree, its main trunk divides into three branches about 45 feet in the air. These, with six massive limbs, form a magnificent crown. The spread of the branches is 115 feet, and the tree's height was estimated to be 120 feet by E. F. Waters, logging superintendent for the Mengel company.

Waters believes his company has of the finest tracts of gum trees in the entire forest. They stand one after the other, in long rows down the forest aisles, tall, symmetrical pillars holding high their comparatively small crowns of lustrous, star-shaped leaves.

A stump of one in that area measured 4 feet, 3 inches across. Five logs, each 16 feet long, had been cut from the tree, totaling 80 feet besides the 10 feet of trunk, which had been left on the mangled top.

A bolt of lightning has struck the biggest red oak of which any of the logging men knew, and split its heart-wood 75 feet down from the top, where a recent lightning scar is apparent. The tree, a mature specimen, is dying. Four limbs are badly broken, and it has two trunk cavities at the base. It is 120 feet high, and the trunk measures 5 feet, 9 inches in diameter.

It will be cut down with hundreds of others that are being dragged out daily by tractor and truck, devastating this forest of giants, "not only the last in Missouri, but in this section of the country," Waters, who has been in the business for 30 years, said.

Injured Man Transferred at Sea From Freighter to Liner

PASSENGERS watching the transfer in mid-ocean of Bernard Edwards, severely injured on the American freighter Silver Sword, from a small boat to the liner Manhattan. Ropes were lowered and made fast to the head and foot of the stretcher on which the injured man lay. 5 KILLED, 20 HURT BY COLLAPSE OF DETROIT SEWER

At Least 30 Workmen Trapped When "Sand Boil" Causes Pressure Explosion in New Tunnel.

VICTIMS BLOWN DOWN PASSAGE

Seaffolding Hurled 150 Feet in Air and Planks Fall Near Children at Play.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Five workmen were killed and at least 20 others injured here today when a bulkhead collapsed under pressure in an interceptor sewer being constructed under West Jefferson avenue.

Workmen said the bulkhead, which separated finished and unfinished portions of the sewer, let go and blew a number of the men down the tunnel. The most seriously injured were those nearest to the bulkhead when it collapsed.

"A terrible roar and a rush of air that seemed like it was going 75 miles an hour," was the way Henry Wodriski and George Francis, two of the surviving workmen, described the pressure explosion which accompanied the cave-in.

Described as "Sand Boil."

Joseph Finkelstein, another workman, said the bulkhead was being pushed through clay and that when it encountered sand about five feet from the completed portion of the tunnel, it collapsed.

Sewer "hogs," as such workers are known, describe the occurrence as a "sand boil" in which heavy air pressure forces loose sand under the bulkhead and dislodges it. The sudden rush of air from the presure conditions inside the bulkhead causes an explosion.

The bulkhead, a cylinder 22 feet in diameter, was being forced through the earth with hydraulic jacks, the displaced earth oozing back through ports like toothpaste. It was being shoved forward 25 feet a day. On the pressure side of the bulkhead, workmen labored under heavy air pressure designed to keep the air lock in place.

Scaffold Blown 150 Feet in Air.

At West Jefferson and Campbell avenues, an underground scaffolding was blown 150 feet into the air. The falling lumber tumbled about the heads of children playing nearby. None was hurt.

Police said at least 30 men were trapped by the explosion. As fast as survivors were brought up from the tunnel 30 feet below ground, ambulances carried them to nearby hospitals. Most survivors were said to be suffering from severe shock, but several were reported in serious condition.

The identified dead, all of Detroit, were E. De Smit, 38; Emil Desimpler, 44; Joseph La Bare, 38; Wilbert Ellis, 22, Negro.

Detective Benjamin Brainard said the fifth victim was believed to be Cyril F. Klyn, an inspector on the project.

"We heard this awful blast, but we could not tell where it was," Francis said. "We grabbed the manhole steps, and I guess that's all that saved our lives. It was a good thing we got off the scaffold we were working on, because the whole works blew right up through the open space we were working in.

"The manhole cover—it weighs about 100 pounds—landed 90 feet away. There were planks from the scaffold scattered 100 yards away."

The interceptor sewer was designed to pick up sewage running in from laterals throughout the west side of the city and carry it parallel to the Detroit River to sewage disposal outlets.

ASKS FOR BODY OF AMERICAN KILLED IN PLANE AT ATHENS

Lillian Gish Requests That Remains of John Raymond Henderson Be Disinterred.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 2.—Lillian Gish, American actress, requested through the United States Department of State today that the body of John Raymond Henderson, buried in the Protestant Cemetery, be disinterred and sent to the United States. Henderson, an American, was killed with two others yesterday when the British Imperial Airways flying boat Courtier sank in descending on Phaleron Bay.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The office of Guthrie McClintic, theatrical producer and husband of Katharine Cornell, said today that John Raymond Henderson, Broadway press representative, who was killed in an airplane accident in Athens, Greece, left a will in which he said he wished to be cremated. His brother and father, who live in Omaha, Neb., asked the McClintic office to arrange for shipment of his body to the United States, and Lillian Gish, now acting in a McClintic play, volunteered to help because she knew someone in the State Department.

INDIANS HONOR GANDHI ON HIS 68TH BIRTHDAY

Mass Meetings, Prayers for His Health and Prohibition Drive Mark Day.

By the Associated Press.

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 2.—Mass meetings throughout India and the launching of a prohibition campaign in Madras marked the celebration today of Mohandas K. Gandhi's sixty-eighth birthday. Followers prayed that the little leader head "a final desperate campaign for India's freedom."

Gandhi, weak following an illness, took no part in the celebrations, but received greetings from all over the world.

Mass meetings were held in towns and villages, native cloth was hawked in the streets, and spinning meetings were held throughout the day. One of Gandhi's chief planks in a program for raising the economic level of the poor Indian and making him more independent has been the fostering of native spinning.

He planned, as his birthday present to the people, to offer a village educational scheme, to replace what he contends are costly and unsatisfactory methods.

In keeping with Gandhi's recommendation of a total boycott of liquor and a three-year program to establish dry laws was the drive in Madras Province. Officials smashed liquor bottles in the streets and tea shops were opened to compete with toddy shops. Total prohibition went into effect in one district.

Pandit Jahawarlal Nehru, president of the India Congress party, urged that leaders exert new pressure against British rule and other party men offered declarations renouncing all forms of violence "as a national present from terrorists."

Gandhi, exponent of passive resistance, has long implored of Indian leaders that they follow peaceful methods in their drive for independence.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS SAID TO BE ON DOWNWARD TREND

U. S. Public Health Service Reports Decline in Weekly Number of Cases.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A Public Health Service spokesman said today that infantile paralysis in the United States was "definitely on the downward trend."

He cited figures to show that for the week ended Sept. 25 there were 730 new cases as compared with 879 the preceding week.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—A decline in the number of reported infantile paralysis cases brought from the Board of Health today an announcement that public and parochial school kindergartens would be permitted to open Monday.

Chicago schools originally were scheduled to open Sept. 7, but an outbreak of the paralysis interfered. High school classes started after a nine-day delay and upper grades opened for the first time Monday. First graders went back Thursday.

John Romaszkiewicz, national president of the alliance, will be the principal speaker and Henry Bratkowski, president of the home association, will officiate. A banquet, followed by dancing, will be held.

RADIO RATE CONTROL FAVORED BY M'NINCH

New Communications Commission Chairman Outlines His Policies.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Frank McNinch, new chairman of the Communications Commission, indicated today he would seek legislation to bring radio rates under commission regulation.

"I question the wisdom of any policy which would leave free from regulations charges made by public utilities," he told his first press conference in his new capacity. Previously he had declared that radio was a public utility.

McNinch asserted his policy would be one open at all times to the public.

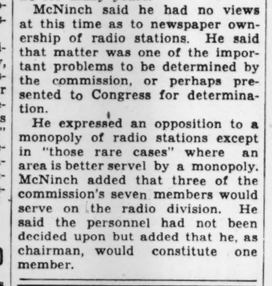
"There will be no covering up of anything by me," he said, "I care not how far or high up it goes."

"My own conscience and judgment shall be my only guide," he said. "I shall do what I can to prevent or break up any trafficking, if any, in broadcast licenses." He said that in his opinion there had not been "covering up" in the commission in the past.

McNinch observed President Roosevelt had given him a free hand in handling commission matters. He said he recognized the public as his only boss, and added that he had been serving that public for many years.

McNinch said he had no views at this time as to newspaper ownership of radio stations. He said that matter was one of the important problems to be determined by the commission, or perhaps presented to Congress for determination.

He expressed an opposition to a monopoly of radio stations except in "those rare cases" where an area is better servel by a monopoly. McNinch added that three of the commission's seven members would serve on the radio division. He said the personnel had not been decided upon but added that he, as chairman, would constitute one member.



SAGGING FRANC GETS NO AID FROM CABINET

French Ministers Say Condition Is Sound; Speculation for 'Political Reasons.'

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The French Cabinet issued optimistic statements today but failed to announce any practical measures to protect the sagging franc.

(The franc struck an 11-year low in New York, closing at 3.28 cents, a day's loss of .155.)

While the franc dropped steadily in foreign trading, Cabinet Ministers met with President Albert Lebrun at the summer palace in Rambouillet.

It had been predicted there would be a split between Socialist and Radical-Socialist Ministers. This failed to develop and political observers close to the Cabinet said a temporary truce had been fixed up to last until completion of cantonal elections, Oct. 10-17.

A long communique confirmed the Cabinet's opposition to exchange control and called for nationwide work, discipline and union. However, it carried no word of how the Miinsters planned to end the franc's decline.

Because some Socialists want exchange control and Radical-Socialists oppose it, practical measures were to be postponed until after elections, those close to the Cabinet said.

In a lengthy statement, the Cabinet said France's financial condition was sound and that any weakness in the currency was due to speculation induced by world unrest. Speculation was for "psychological and political" reasons, the statement said.

It pledged France's adherence to her monetary agreement with the United States and Britain and attempted to reassure France that the Government had taken energetic steps to increase industrial discipline at home.

Sources close to the Government said a split in the Cabinet was averted only when Socialists, led by former Premier Leon Blum, agreed to admit the possibility of changes in the present 40-hour week law or postponement of its application in many industries.

Blum already had indicated that Socialists, who are the main defenders of the 40-hour law, would be willing to accept a change in the method of the act's application.

Industrialists insist industry cannot be speeded up, as Finance Minister Georges Bonnet proposes, if the 40-hour week be applied to all industries.

SHOT TO DEATH IN MEXICO

Victim Brother-in-Law of Man Who Flew Atlantic to Wed.

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 2.—Jose Ramon Rivero, 27 years old, brother-in-law of Juan Ignacio Pombo, Spanish Atlantic flyer, was shot to death in his office here last night.

Police arrested Manuel Sainz, a salesman, after two witnesses identified him as the man who broke into the ofice and fired four shots at Rivero.

Authorities said busines differences led to the shooting. Rivero is a brother of Maria Elena Rivero, whom Pombo married after his flight from Spain to Mexico in 1935.

SPEED TRAP INQUIRY BY COUNTY GRAND JURY

Judge Witthaus Instructs Body to Investigate Reports on Fee Collecting.

The St. Louis County grand jury, sworn in yesterday at Clayton, was instructed by Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus to investigate reports of speed traps and roadside courts in the county.

The Automobile Club of Missouri had asked that the complaints of motorists made this year, be investigated. The complaints involved deputy constables in St. Ferdinand, Normandy and Carondelet Townships.

Judge Witthaus told the grand jurors newspapers had published reports that "certain township officers were making unjustified arrests of motorists for the sole purpose of collecting fees." "This charge is serious and should be given your consideration," the Judge declared.

"It is imperative that traffic regulations be imposed and the proper enforcement of these regulations is not open to criticism, but the need for vigilance in the promotion of safety should not be used as a subterfuge to cloak improper arrests made only for the purpose of collecting fees," he added.

"While the public is entitled to full protection, the motorist has a right to be secure when he is observing the law and be protected from any form of extortion or persecution. If officers have violated the duties of office by abuse of authority, it is your duty to take such action as the conduct of such individuals merit."

Remarking that the grand jury was the first to he convened since the last election, Judge Witthaus declared: It must be borne in mind that honest elections constitute the foundation upon which good government must be built." The Court explained that complaints of irregularities in the last election were "neither numerous nor definite," but he told the jurors that any information indicating a violation of the election laws should be carefully investigated.

Slot machines make their appearance in St. Louis County periodically, Judge Witthaus said in instructing the jury that keepers and operators of slot machines are violating the law.

Members of the jury, selected by Sheriff A. J. Frank, were: Bert Shockley, general contractor, Wellston; Louis Kesselring, painting contractor, Glencoe; Mayor Walter Douglas of Brentwood; Clarence S. Fisher, an auditor, Lemay; John R. Skinker, insurance agent, Valley Park; M. D. Maguire, general contractor, Normandy; Frank A. Mallorus, truck gardener, Larimore Station road; Robert T. Schwabe, laundryman, Webster Groves; Edward A. Holscher, president of an office furniture concern, Glendale; John H. Heutel, automobile dealer, Sappington; William Dierberg, president of the Creve Coeur Bank, Creve Coeur; Charles Campbell, president of the Community Holding Co., Clayton. Skinker was appointed foreman.

After receiving the Court's instructions, the grand jury met briefly and then adjourned until 9:30 a. m. Wednesday.

A. F. L. DELEGATES GATHER IN DENVER FOR CONVENTION

Administration's Labor Policies Widely Criticised in Preliminary Discussions.

GREEN, HOWEVER, KEEPS HIS COUNSEL

Miss Perkins and N L R B Targets of Most of Attacks—Accused of Partiality to C I O.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Oct. 2.—Criticism of the Roosevelt administration's labor policies marked preliminaries to the American Federation of Labor convention today. The convention will open Monday.

Most of the Federation leaders centered their fire on Secretary of Labor Perkins and the National Labor Relations Board, accusing them of partiality to John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department, told the department's convention that "powerful influences" were at work to place legislative restrictions on trade unions and hinted that he felt some of the administration's labor advisers would favor such legislation.

Green Takes No Part.

William Green, Federation president, took no part in criticism of the New Deal. A life-long Democrat, he is said in some labor circles to be one of the administration's best friends among A. F. of L. officers.

The Federation's executive council opened the fire on Miss Perkins by dropping her from the list of dignitaries invited to address the convention. Although the council gave no reason publicly for this action, Roy Horn, president of the Blacksmith's Union, voiced the sentiment of some leaders when he openly accused Miss Perkins of C I O partiality.

After the Labor Secretary had refused to indorse the Federation's proposal to amend the Wagner Act to protect craft unions, Horn said, "I felt like taking off my hat to Hitler and Mussolini and apologizing for every mean thing I ever said about them, because a little dictator with a wisp of hair under his nose is much more preferable to me than one who wears a skirt."

Then he added: "First we get a Secretary of Labor that none of us wanted and none of us ever heard of before we got her, and now she tells us what union we shall belong to. If they get away with that, they will soon tell you how to vote and what church you shall worship in."

Hostility to N L R B.

The Labor Board's ruling against the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in the National Electric Products Co. case stirred A. F. of L. leaders to anger.

The I. B. E. W. had obtained a closed-shop contract from the company during a scrap with the United Radio and Electrical Workers, a C I O union. The C I O protested to the Labor Board, which ordered an election to determine which union had a majority of the workers.

Federation leaders objected. Green said the A. F. of L. would carry the case to the courts and would insist that Congress amend the Wagner Act to prevent the board from stepping into disputes between bona-fide unions.

Dodge Wage-Hour Bill Issue.

Many complaints against the Labor Board's regional representatives were voiced at the metal trades convention.

Frey said the board "has apparently found it difficult, if not impossible, to maintain judicial impartiality between the A. F. of L. and the C I O," and that some regional representatives "have acted much as though their principal responsibility was to function for the benefit of the C I O."

Both the metal trades and building trades conventions avoided the wage and hour bill issue. Their officers dismissed the subject by telling the delegates they would have ample opportunity to voice their sentiments when a wage and hour bill resolution came before the A. F. of L. convention.

NURSERY COMPANY EMPLOYES STRIKE FOR HIGHER WAGES

Westover and Wilbur Employes Seek 15 Cents an Hour More; Recently Organized by A. F. of L.

Employes of the Westover Nursery Co., 8100 Olive Street road, and the Wilbur Nursery Co., Clayton road, went on strike this week in an effort to secure an increase of 15 cents an hour in wages.

George Davies, business representative of the Building and Construction Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, said the workers had been recently organized in a drive to unionize greenhouses and nursery employes and landscapers.

The strike at the Westover Nursery, involving 22 men, was called Friday. Ten workers stopped work at the Wilbur Nursery Tuesday, Davies said. The present wage scale is 30 and 35 cents an hour, depending upon experience, he said. Officers of the two nurseries declined to comment.

Westover and Wilbur Employes Seek 15 Cents an Hour More; Recently Organized by A. F. of L.

Employes of the Westover Nursery Co., 8100 Olive Street road, and the Wilbur Nursery Co., Clayton road, went on strike this week in an effort to secure an increase of 15 cents an hour in wages.

George Davies, business representative of the Building and Construction Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, said the workers had been recently organized in a drive to unionize greenhouses and nursery employes and landscapers.

The strike at the Westover Nursery, involving 22 men, was called Friday. Ten workers stopped work at the Wilbur Nursery Tuesday, Davies said. The present wage scale is 30 and 35 cents an hour, depending upon experience, he said. Officers of the two nurseries declined to comment.

Austrian Movie Star Comes to U. S.

HEDY La MARR,

STAR of "Ecstasy," the generally barred movie, as she arrived at New York Thursday on the Normandie. The 22-year-old Viennese actress has a film contract and is en route to Hollywood. "Ecstasy" was barred from the United States by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau late in 1934 on the ground it was "obscene and immoral" because of several scenes in which Miss LaMarr appeared nude. He was upheld by several court decisions. To prevent the picture's release in Europe, Miss LaMarr's husband, Fritz Mandel, wealthy Austrian munitions maker, bought up all prints of it except the one confiscated in this country.

MRS. HAHN AWAITS POISON TRIAL CALMLY

Case of Woman Accused of Murder Scheduled for Oct. 11 in Cincinnati.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Anna Hahn apparently is not worried, jail attendants said, today, that in little more than a week she likely will face the State's demand for her life in what Prosecutor Dudley Outcalt has called the "biggest mass murder in the country."

Mrs. Hahn, 31 years old, specifically is charged with administering fatal doses of poison to George Gsellman, 67, and Jacob Wagner, 78, German-born as she is herself and acquaintances with whom, Outcalt contends, Mrs. Hahn had placed herself under financial obligation..

Her trial, before Common Pleas Judge Charles S. Bell, is scheduled to open Oct. 11.

The trial date is exactly two months and a day from the time she was arrested "on suspicion" as authorities here and in Colorado Springs, Colo., investigated the death in the latter city, of George Obendoerfer, moderately wealthy Cincinnati cobbler.

Then followed inquiries into the deaths of three other elderly German-born acquaintances of Mrs. Hahn. She denied at first that she accompanied the 67-year-old cobbler on the trip, but her 12-year-old son, Oscar, supplied information which enabled Police-Lieutenant George Schattle to obtan an admission the entire trip was planned.

Philip Hahn, her husband, turned over to police a half-emptied bottle of a violently dysenteric oil. Traces of the oil were found later in vital organs of Gsellman and Wagner. Hahn said he took the bottle away from his wife during a quarrel and removed it to his office locker for safe-keeping.

Mrs. Hahn came to the United States eight years ago and since, Schattle said, had received between $50,000 and $70,000 from elderly Germans, including a $12,000 home bequeathed to her by Ernest Kohler, who died in 1933.

COMMUNITY CENTERS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Winter Program Will Not Officially Start Until Next Week, However.

Seven community centers operated by the city recreation department will be open from 2 until 10 p. m. daily, starting tomorrow, but the winter program will not officially start until next Monday. Activity this week will consist mainly of open house programs and registration of children and adults.

The new Vashon Community Center for Negroes, Market street and Compton avenue, constructed at a cost of $105,000, will be opened for the first time. Adams Center for Negroes, Jefferson avenue and Adams street, will be open for registration, but will have no programs until workmen finish repairing a floor.

The other five centers to be operated are Sherman Park, Kingshighway and Easton avenue; Mullanphy, Eleventh and Mullanphy streets; Buder, Ewing and Hickory street; Soulard, Seventh and Soulard streets, and Cherokee, Thirteenth street and Utah avenue. The centers will close in May.

At the open house parties to be held at each center, except Adams, W P A orchestras will furnish the music for popular dancing and staff members will be on hand to meet adults and children planning to attend winter sessions. The program will be offered Thursday night at Mullanphy and Buder centers and on Friday at the other four.

As in previous years, emphasis will be placed on instruction in ballet, acrobatic, tap and toe dancing. Women's gymnasium classes, a popular feature, will be continued. Athletic games for boys and girls will be organized when registration is completed, as will groups for sewing, knitting and other handicraft work.

C I O STEEL STRIKE OFFICIALLY STILL ON

All Major Plants Operating but Picketing Continues at Some of Them.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—The C I O strike against independent steel companies officially is still on, four months after it was called, although employers say its effects now are negligible.

John L. Lewis never has called off the walkout, in which 16 persons were killed and 300 injured. In many places, a survey showed today, pickets still pace outside the plants from which Lewis seeks signed contracts empowering the C I O to speak for its members in collective bargaining.

"We are making steel now at less cost than ever before," said an official of the Republic Steel Corporation. "The strike taught us some lessons. We know how to make steel more efficiently."

"There are still some men on strike, but we don't need them."

All Major Plants Open.

None of the principal plants of Republic or of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Inland Steel Co., or Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the other three strike-involved concerns, remains closed. Some of them, notably in Ohio, reopened under National Guard protection after a month's tieup.

The Indiana plants of Inland and Sheet & Tube reopened with C I O approval, under the spur of gubernatorial intervention, even though the companies insisted they signed no agreement.

The strike, called May 25 and 26, shut down many of these mills while the processors were enjoying their best business since 1929. Second quarter earnings of Republic, Sheet & Tube and Inland were nearly $10,000,000 less than for the first quarter. The national operating rate, sunk to depression depths by the strike, soared again to within a few points of 1929 figures when the plants reopened. Now the rate is down about 76 per cent, but executives in the industry explain demand is likely to be increasingly moderate until new automotive orders arrive.

S W O C Leaders' Claims.

Van A. Bittner, Steel Workers' Organizing Committee director for the Chicago region, said 1100 men remain idle at Republic's South Chicago plant, near which 10 persons were killed by police last May 30. The company said it was operating normally, with 1600 to 1800 men.

John Mayo, director for the C I O steel unit in Ohio's Mahoning Valley, where the strike made 30,000 idle, declared 3950 remained on strike. In Cleveland, where 6000 were out in June, union leaders declined to give estimates.

Pickets continue to march before the Chicago and Ohio plants. At Canton, O., where the strike started, the C I O maintains a 24-hour picket line. At Monroe, Mich., pickets were withdrawn from Republic's subsidiary Newton Steel Co. just before Labor day.

N L R B Hearings.

The National Labor Relations Board completed this week a month-long hearing on C I O charges that Republic discriminated against unionization of employes. The board did not announce when it would publish its findings. A hearing on similar charges against Inland Steel continues.

Republic remains a major C I O objective because it is the country's third largest producer, ranking only behind U. S. Steel and Bethlehem. Its chairman, Tom Girdler, has declared himself and his company unalterably opposed to the "Carnegie-Illinois contract" through which U. S. Steel units last spring recognized S W O C as the bargaining agency for its members. Girdler asserted Republic's signing of such a contract would lead to "the closed shop and checkoff" of union dues.

Even with all but several thousand workers back at their jobs, most steel men feel Lewis still is determined to obtain from "Little Steel" the representation "Big Steel" gave him.

That is why both sides agree that the strike is not over.

KOSHER MEAT STRIKE STARTS IN NEW YORK

Fist Fights Start When Some Shops Ignore Shut-Down —20 Arrested.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A shutdown strike of many of the kosher butcher shops of the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area began at sundown tonight in protest against prices charged by wholesalers of meat.

Fist fights started with the strike. Pickets around shops which ignored the shutdown clashed with working employes. Twenty or more persons were arrested in The Bronx and Brooklyn on charges of disorderly conduct or assault.

How many shops were participating could not be determined immediately. More than 5000 belonging to the Federation of Kosher Butchers and serving an estimated Jewish population of 2,500,000 were called on to keep their doors locked. Ordinarily they open for business at sundown after the daytime observance of the Jewish Sabbath.

David H. Greenwald, attorney for the federation, said flying squads of pickets were being sent through Manhattan and Brooklyn to picket any stores that might ignore the order.

About 400 large markets, affiliated with the New Deal Kosher Butchers' Federation, were open as usual refusing to join in the demonstration, which the federation described as "ridiculous and impracticable."

Greenwald predicted a general meeting of the federation tomorrow afternoon would call off the strike in response to an appeal made by William Fellowes Morgan Jr., New York City Commissioner of Markets. Morgan asked for a postponement of the closing for a week while his department and Federal Department of Agriculture officials investigate the costs and methods of meat selling.

Pendleton Dudley, director of the New York office of the American Institute of Meat Packers, said he expected the strike would end and that packers would slaughter as usual Monday.

Louis Wagner Jr., a director of the State Association of Retail Meat Dealers, said the institute has "a more powerful monopoly today than existed in the days of Teddy Roosevelt." Joseph Eschebacker executive secretary of the State association, declared an investigation might reveal startling facts about price controls.

Reports Drop in Marriage Licenses.

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill., Oct. 2.—Records of County Clerk Guy McCoslin, reports that only seven marriage licenses have been issued here since July 1. McCoslin said he issued an average of one license daily before the law requiring physical examination of marriage applicants became effective.

COAL PRICE BELOW MINIMUM FIRST SET IS EXPECTED

Federal Commission Sends Out Calculation on Cost of Producing Bituminous Fuel.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The coal commission sent to soft coal producers east of the Mississippi today, calculations of basic production costs in the bituminous coal industry upon which the commission soon will base minimum coal prices.

The producers' district boards will be asked to adjust the basic cost figures for the various coal regions in line with wage increases and other material cost increases since last January.

Some of the producers, it is learned, expect that the commission's final figures on the cost of producing bituminous coal will be lower than the tentative figures of $2.22 a ton for the Appalachian region and $1.88 for the Mississippi Valley region set by the commission at the beginning of the price conferences.

14,841 at Horse Show Closing; 69,349 For Week

Exhibition Drew Largest Crowd Since 1904; Miss Frances M. Dodge Principal Winning Exhibitor.

The St. Louis National Horse Show, featuring performances by 24 United States Cavalrymen from Fort Myer, Va., attracted more spectators, 69,349 paid customers for the week, than any horse show given here since 1904. Last night at the final performance, 14,841 persons witnessed the show at the Oakland Avenue Arena.

Miss Frances M. Dodge of Rochester, Mich., regarded as one of the wealthiest young women in the United States, daughter of a late automobile manufacturer, was again the principal winner at the show. Her 22 horses won the largest number of cash prizes, ribbons and cups. Last year her stables also collected most of the prizes.

Spectators last night worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm as drivers of horses in the $1000 Championship Stake for roadsters sped around curves to the accompaniment of fast music.

The crowd's favorite, Senator Crawford, a high-stepping, brown horse, owned by Spindletop Farm of Lexington, Ky., won first prize. By whistling, applauding and cheering, the spectators had made known that they would take no other decision.

Early in the evening, Miss Anna Lee Glenn was thrown by her mount, Black Prince. The horse then led attendants a merry chase about the tanbark, eluding a dozen would-be captors. The band leader finally hit on the expedient of playing slow music. All horses, including the riderless one, slowed to a walk, and the capture was effected. Miss Glenn, unhurt, brushed the dust from her clothes and remounted. She failed to place, however.

While the firemen were presenting their life-saving exhibition, a white-clad Negro attendant suddenly dashed out into the center of the Arena, closely pursued by three husky fire-fighters, quavering with simulated terror. He was led back to the practice tower in the south end of the Arena, climbed to the fourth floor "window" on a ladder and was lowered to the ground by a fireman, who held his hands as he slid down a rope head first. The audience enjoyed it immensely, although perfectly aware that it had all been carefuly rehearsed.

Last Night's Summaries.

The summary of last night's events follows:

PROPOSAL TO AMEND WAGNER ACT OPPOSED BY U A W A HEAD

Homer Martin Says Union Can't Be Responsible for Work Stoppages Without Closed Shop.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. — Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, told the annual conference of the Women's Trade Union League that he opposed proposals to amend the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

Referring to frequent stoppages in automobile manufacturing since last winter, he said, "Critics have forgotten to say that in practically every instance of unauthorized strikes there was open provocation on the part of the employers.

"It is impossible for us to assume absolute responsibility for work stoppages . . . until we are responsible for the entire working force of that industry." He referred to the union's demand for a closed shop.

Those who propose to impose responsibility upon labor by amending the Wagner Act, he said, "are simply trying to force upon labor an artificial responsibility which they themselves hope may collapse and thus destroy the labor movement in the mass production industries."

HERE COMES PACKARD FOR 1938

-the only cars that can make you all these promises!

MIRACULOUS RIDE—The new Packard Six and new Packard Eight (formerly called Packard 120) bring you the gentlest ride ever offered to motorists—a ride that literally re-makes roads!

UNEQUALLED SAFETY—These new Packards are outstanding in safety. Side-sway is minimized and the danger of skidding is greatly reduced.

REVOLUTIONARY REAR END—The foregoing things have been accomplished by a trio of epochal improvements which now bring the effect of independent wheel suspension to the rear end.

NEW QUIET BODY—As a result of years of research in cooperation with a great University, Packard brings you a really quiet all-steel body with an all-steel top.

MORE LUXURIOUS SIZE—Both the Packard Eight and Packard Six are seven full inches longer in wheelbase than last year. Bodies are far wider. Trunks challenge those of any cars for roominess.

SERVICE NEEDS CUT—The need for service is still further reduced. Example: Chassis lubrication is now needed, in normal usage only twice a year!

ENDURING BEAUTY—The famous Packard lines are now more beautifully streamlined than ever. But they still proclaim your car a Packard, still guard it from early style obsolescence. Only Packard gives you both long mechanical life and long style life!

EASY AVAILABILITY—YOU can afford one! See your Packard dealer. He will give you proof that, if you can afford to buy and operate any new car, you can afford to buy and operate a Packard!

NEW 1938 PACKARD SIX & EIGHT {FORMERLY CALLED THE PACKARD 120}

YOU HAVE A DATE TUESDAY EVENINGS

Each Tuesday evening, at 9:30 E.S.T. over the N. B. C. Red Network, Packard brings you one of the most entertaining full-hour shows on the air! Lanny Ross, Charles Butterworth, and Florence George head a brilliant cast that entertains each week one of the topmost stars of radio, stage or screen!

New Packard cars for 1938 are being shown by the Berry Motor Car Co., distributer and local dealers.

The Packard Motor Car Co. has completely redesigned its Six and "120" models. Both are in every way new cars for 1938. They are larger, better looking inside and out and some of their new features are designed for greater economy, longer life and more riding comfort.

The "One Twenty" is now called the Packard Eight. Its companion in the lower price field will continue to be known as the Packard Six.

Important betterments have been made in the two larger, more costly Packard Super Eight and Twelve. The Packard "lines" for 1938 will be the Six, Eight, Super Eight and Twelve with wheelbases running from 127 to 148 inches and 35 different body types.

Longer hoods and an increase of seven inches in their wheelbases give the Six and Eight the appearance of much bigger cars, although they are actually only slightly longer in their overall engths.

New Rear Spring System.

A wholly new system of automobile rear spring suspension is one of the chief features of the Six an l Eight.

Rear springs of the "junior" cars are mounted in rubber, and leaves are separated with rubber and oil-impregnated bronze discs to give practically the effect obtained with independently suspended rear wheels.

New transverse stabilizers and improved shock absorbers form important parts of the new Packard rear spring suspension system. Redistribution of car weight and location of the rear seat ahead of the rear axle contributes to riding ease.

The "Safe-T-flex" system of independent springing of front wheels with its steel torque arm holding the wheels against any misalignment, is retained, as are hypoid rear axle gears and self-energizing hydraulic brakes.

Bodies of the Six and Eight are now completely made of steel, with one-piece steel tops. Eleven different sound-deadening materials are used in the bodies.

All cars have slanting Vee type windshields and the traditional, but further refined, Packard radiator and hood lines. The Six and Eight have thermostatically operated, full-length radiator shutters, as have the Super Eight and Twelve.

Body and Style Changes.

The new windshield gives a deeply recessed instrument board, with new-type instruments.

There is a built-in provision for almost full-length windshield defrosters.

Nine different adjustments are provided for the front seats.

Seat cushions are elevated at the same time seats are moved forward and backs change to conform to any new position.

In appearance, much has been gained by more stream-lined fenders and new louvre treatment. The head lamps, of a new four-beam type, are directly stream-lined, mounted in the front fender skirts, and there is a stream-lined moulding of the luggage trunks into the rear panels of all trunk type bodies.

New body hardware has incurving safety type door handles. Door locks are of the button type. A car cannot be locked with the key remaining inside.

Engines have new autothermic tin-plated aluminum alloy pistons and a new type of compression piston ring on "senior" cars. Better engine cooling is obtained on both "junior" and "senior" lines of cars.

Air drawn through the radiators is dissipated more quickly through new and novel channels which Packard calls "cooling tunnels." They have large openings in the lower skirts of the front fenders which carry the heated air from the engine compartment away under the car.

There is an increase of 1-16 inch in the bore of the Six to 3⅛ inches, and the engine produces 100 brake horsepower. The Eight develops 120 horsepower; the Super Eight, 135, and the Twelve, 175.

Chrysler Dealers See New Models at Meeting and Banquet

At a meeting of dealers held Thursday afternoon, with a banquet in the evening at the Coronado Hotel, the plans of the Chrysler factory were outlined and the new Chrysler cars for 1938 were shown.

The speakers included Earl Wilson, director of sales for the Chrysler Sales Corporation; B. C. Helm, regional manager for Chrysler; L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., the distributer, and L. D. McConnell, regional manager for the Commercial Credit Co.

Two hundred and eighty-five dealers from St. Louis and the territory attended the meeting and banquet.

General Motors Institute Trains 12,380 in School Year

General Motors Institute at Flint, Mich., has completed its 1936-37 school year with a record-breaking total of 12,380 men and women receiving instruction in the varied courses offered.

Approximately 1,250,000 man-hours of instruction, including conference hours involved in advance training, were reported, compared with 1,060,000 hours in the preceding year.

The institute's 1937-38 program is under way, with prospects of an even larger enrollment.

Plymouth's Tenth Anniversary Marked At St. Louis Meeting

New Cars Shown to Dealers at Session—Public Announcement This Month.

A meeting to mark the tenth jubilee anniversary of the Plymouth car was held Thursday at the German House and was featured by an advance showing of the new 1938 Plymouth cars to more than 1100 dealers and salesmen from St. Louis and all parts of Missouri. The meeting was one of 35 held in key cities throughout the country. Details of the new cars will be made public later this month, according to M. V. Dunavant, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Earl B. Wilson, director of sales for Chrysler, spoke briefly after the showing of the new models, discussing the Chrysler Corporation's prestige and engineering and manufacturing achievements.

D. L. Beck, Seattle regional manager for Dodge, cited Plymouth's sales record, which he said was without precedent in the automobile industry, since the first Plymouth model appeared 10 years ago. He said that Plymouth sales in 12 weeks of this year, amounting to 140,000 cars, were double the entire volume of the company's registration in the first 12 months of Plymouth's existence.

"We see many sound reasons," Beck said, "for feeling that 1938 will be a good year. The number of Plymouth owners is greater than ever before and they represent a tremendous factor for increased volume."

Special motion pictures were shown, dramatizing Plymouth's rise to a place among the three leaders of the industry and illustrating new, exclusive features of the jubilee model for 1938.

Cadillac-La Salle Plans to Be Told at Session Here Tuesday

Plans to continue the sales increases that gave Cadillac-La Salle an all-time record with the 1937 models will be outlined at a meeting to be addressed by Cadillac officials here this week.

The session, at the Coronado Hotel on Tuesday, will be one of a series throughout the country to precede public introduction of a new series of cars late in October. The 1938 Cadillac-La Salle program is said to include several outstanding developments.

The trip into the field by executives follows an annual convention in Detroit.

D. E. Ahrens, sales manager for Cadillac-La Salle, will head the Detroit group. Besides an address on the 1938 market possibilities, C. V. Crockett of the engineering department, will describe the mechanical innovations in the new models; F. J. Denney, advertising manager, will discuss enlarged advertising plans and E. L. Rickenbaugh, sales promotion manager, the program of his department for 1938.

Detroit Street R. R. Orders 250 More Ford Transit Busses

The Detroit Street Railway has ordered 250 more Ford transit busses for fall and winter delivery. Delivery of these units will bring the number of Ford busses operated by the D. S. R. up to 1081.

The new busses will be similar to Ford transit busses already on the street. They will be used to improve service on lines and to start service on new routes.

The order approved by the D. S. R. provides for the purchase of 250 more busses early next year if conditions warrant.

Willys Cars for 1938 Include Extra Models And Commercial Units

Body Styling Retained—Mechanical Improvements—Cars Now Displayed in This Region.

New Willys 1938 passenger and commercial cars are now being shown by dealers here. The new models were first seen in St. Louis on Monday, at a meeting of dealers held at the Gatesworth Hotel by Ollie Haupt, Inc., the distributer. Plans of the Willys organization for the coming year were explained at the meeting by Harry White, assistant general sales manager for Willys-Overland; Harry Brasseale, zone manager, and Ollie E. Haupt, president of the distributing firm.

White said that the production schedule called for manufacture of 125,000 units, an increase of about 100 per cent over the 63,465 cars sold in the 1937 model year, and that the Toledo factory force would be increased from 5000 to 6000 employes.

Additions to the Willys passenger car line included an economy and de luxe coupe and a custom sedan. Sedan models now include standard, de luxe and the new custom types, while the coupe models include standard, de luxe and economy models.

The Commerical Units.

Entry of Willys-Overland into the commercial car field is marked by introduction of a new type of ultra economical light delivery car complete with closed cab; a half-ton pick-up with enclosed cab and complete equipment; a half-ton cab chassis; a cowl chassis without cab, and a commercial chassis without cab or cowl. The last three models are essentially for the use of any type of commercial body. All half-ton commercial units will have heavy commercial type springs and rear axles.

All models closely follow the original Willys lines, which are covered by patents. Striping in a variety of colors adds to the attractiveness of the hood louvers. The drip molding follows the general roof contour of the body.

The individual styling of the hood, which lifts completely from the front to provide easy access to the motor, is retained. Piano type hinges are now used on the hood.

The bodies in the passenger car line are low in appearance and the fullness of contour gives wide seating space, especially in the front seat of the sedan models and in the coupe. The overall length of the car is 178 inches.

Improvements Made.

Added protection against dust and heat has been provided by a new type of hood sealing.

In the chassis, improvements include a faster steering gear ratio, for driving ease and a change in low and intermediate gear ratios, for flexibility and power on grades.

Willys construction in the past has been characterized by the use of axles, frames, steering gear and other parts subject to load and wear, with a 305 greater strength factor than is usually considered sufficent for cars in its weight classification. This construction is retained.

Ollie Haupt, Inc., is moving its Willys car headquarters from Delmar boulevard to a larger building at 5640 Gravois.

Pontiac Convention and New Car Showing to Dealers This Week

More than 4400 Pontiac dealers and salesmen are expected to arrive at Pontiac, Mich., Tuesday, the day before a three-day convention will open in the Masonic Temple.

Department heads will present by charts, motion pictures and stage shows the company's merchandising policies for 1938.

H. J. Klingler, general manager, will unveil the new Pontiac cars for 1938.

Following a banquet, an elaborate entertainment consisting of "big name acts" from New York and Hollywood will be presented in the auditorium.

Dealers will leave Thursday in more than 4000 new 1938 Pontiac cars. Drive-away activities will center at the State Fair Grounds.

It is believed that this will be the largest drive-away in the history of the automobile industry.

Friday will be devoted solely to organization meetings at the central office in Pontiac for members of the central office, regional and zone staffs.

First Air Conditioning for Autos Claimed for Nash Cars for 1938

Behind closed doors the first automobiles having conditioned air systems for winter driving will be previewed in Chicago tomorrow by Nash distributers.

Officials of the company declared that the cars embodied the first application of thermo-dynamics to the interior of automobiles. The system, they said, is based on entirely new principles of car ventilation and heating.

With the new system, they asserted, it is possible to drive a car in below-zero weather, yet maintain within the car an ever-changing supply of fresh, clean air at constant temperatures which are controlled by the driver. A reversal of present methods of car ventilation insures against chilling draughts.

L. M. Sprinkle, president, and L. A. Miller, vice-president of the Nash distributer here, will be among those attending the convention. Sprinkle said that the Nash factory had completed a $2,000,000 expansion program so that production could be doubled in 1938 over that in 1937, and that Nash sales locally had increased 66 per cent over 1936, and in June, July and August 121 per cent.

New Hupmobile Cars, Introduced Here, of 6 and 8 Cylinder Types

Goodloe Automobile Co. Is Appointed Distributer of 1938 Lines for St. Louis Area.

Two wholly new lines of Hupmobile cars for 1938 are being shown in St. Louis by the Goodloe Automobile Co., 5841 Delmar boulevard, which has been appointed distributer, and dealers.

The new Hupmobiles come on two chassis, a six and an eight, with three body styles on each chassis. The six on a 122-inch wheelbase, has an L-head, 101-horsepower engine for which unusual gasoline economy is claimed. This chassis is available with standard or custom bodies in a six-passenger sedan, a trunk model sedan and a three-passenger coupe. Standard and custom bodies are identical in roominess and exterior lines, the difference lying in upholstery materials, appointments and accessory equipment. In both, greater body width and length provides more comfort and much more leg room. The custom model has choice of upholstery fabric and full complement of accessories.

The eight, which is a custom model only, is on a 125-inch wheelbase and has an L-head eight-inline, 120-horsepower engine.

Exterior Appearance.

A dynamic head-on appearance is given by a distinctive radiator grille from which the top of the alligator type hood flows in a pleasing line back to the cowl. Headlights are molded into the side sections of the hood in a distinctive manner, flanking the curved chrome-trimmed grille. Harmonizing with the grille, chrome strips are carried from the sides of the headlamps along the hood side panel decorating the horizontal hood louvres. The "V"-type divided windshield, higher and wider, with a more pronounced rake, provides greatly improved vision and less reflection. Vision from the rear seat also is materially improved through windshield, window and seat arrangement.

The all-steel body rounds into a curved top of rigid steel construction, insulated to deaden road noises. Twin rear windows are slanted to prevent reflections and to provide maximum rear view. The sloping rear deck provides the door of the spacious luggage and tire compartment.

Speed-lines and a rakish, slender appearance are given to the cars by a chrome strip which extends at the belt line from the radiator grille to the rear deck, terminating in belt lamps of novel design. One-piece fenders flow with the body lines entirely obscuring the undergear.

The streamlining of the entire body is carried into a graceful slant from the top of the car to form a smooth surface designed to avoid air resistance. A distinctive rear-end appearance is lent by twin rear windows which match the divided windshield in front, twin belt lamps and the license lamp which is mounted in the center of the luggage compartment panel. Front bumpers have grille guards.

A feature is the spacious luggage and spare tire compartment. Water and dust proof, this compartment protects baggage and the spare tire from weather and theft.

A new conception of instrument arrangement is featured on a novel plastic instrument panel. The instrument board, said to be the largest plastic installation ever made in an automobile, consists of a walnut-grained frame which carries five large sections of lustrous translucent plastic in a two-tone color combination. The instrument board is set off by the use of two-tone plastic in the steering wheel. Door handles and window cranks carry out the harmonious color scheme.

The center panel forms a radio speaker grille about which the instruments are assembled. Provision is made for installation of a built-in windshield defroster to operate from the car heater. Safety glass is standard in all windows as well as in the windshield, and control-air ventilation is provided in front and rear compartments.

The front seat, 55½ inches wide, is designed to accommodate three persons and is adjustable forward and back four inches with an elevating arrangement which raises the seat when moved forward.

Doors are wide, particularly the rear doors. All doors are hinged in front.

Double-action hydraulic brakes have double weather protection brake seals which exclude water and mud from the brake mechanism.

The Hupp super-drive (overdrive) is standard on eights and optional on sixes.

Clay Goodloe is president of the distributing firm, which has redecorated its building and added service equipment. Lu Goodhart is in charge of wholesale sales and F. Johnson of the service department, while W. E. Yount is retail sales manager.

ROBBERS HOLD TWO 4 HOURS

Release Man and Wife in New Mexico Mesquite Thicket.

By the Associated Press.

ESTANCIA, N. M., Oct. 2. — Two robbers, who held up Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lunberg of Chicago, east of Moriarty yesterday, were sought throughout New Mexico today.

The Lunbergs were held prisoners nearly four hours, Sheriff J. Frank Stevens said, and finally turned loose in Mesquite Thicket more than a mile from their automobile, which was left with deflated tires on a lonely road two miles off the highway west of Palma. The robbers took $73 in cash and clothing and jewelry.

Premier of Tadjikistan and Three Commissars Removed—Armenian Chief Denounced.

ESPIONAGE BASIS OF SOME CHARGES

Still Others Are Alleged to Be 'Bourgeois Nationalists'—3 to Die for Spoiling Grain.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 2.—The Stalinabad publication Tadjikistan Communist reported today President Shirinsho Shotemor, Premier Abdullah Rakhimbaieff and three commissars of the Tadjikistan republic had been deprived of office. The Premier was accused of being a spy of "a foreign Fasist country" while the President was charged with protecting Government employes who were spies.

Commissars of justice, education and light industry were removed as "bourgeois nationalists" who let industry lag or allowed anti-Soviet nationalism to be taught in the schools.

Tadjikistan borders on Afghanistan.

The Communist organ Pravda recently denounced the Premier as an official "who sold himself to the intelligence service of a neighboring foreign state."

The Tadjikistan Communist also indicated many older leaders had been removed from Communist party jobs. The Tashkent publication, Truth of the East, reported the removal of Akmal Ikramoff as secretary of the Communist party's central committee in Uzbekistan where he was a political leader. Israel Artykoff, secretary of the Comsomol, also was removed. They were accused of giving jobs to enemies of the Soviet Government.

Five employes of a grain collection organization were shot at Kazakstan for mixing selected seed grain with ordinary grain. Twenty persons, including a woman, were executed in Irkutsk in an anti-crime campaign. Three persons were found guilty of spoiling grain in Archangel and sentenced to death.

Pravda today denounced Premier Guloyan of Armenia, as a Nationalist along with Secretary Amatuni of the Communist party there.

Secretary Vereikis of the Far Eastern Communist party, the most powerful politician of his region, was described by Pravda as the protector of Editor Ashver of the Pacific Ocean Star, whom it called the "Radek of the Far East." (Karl Radek, once a leading Soviet publicist, now is serving a 10-year prison sentence.)

Movements to separate the republics of Turkmenistan and the Crimea from the Soviet Union also were reported by Pravda.

PLANS COMMUNIST INQUIRY AFTER SON IS KILLED IN SPAIN

Father to Ask for Investigation of Possible Red Activities at Kansas U.

DODGE CITY, Kan., Oct. 2.—Ed Henry, a paint company salesman, said today he would seek an investigation of possible Communist activities among students of the University of Kansas, as a result of the reported death of his son on a Spanish battlefield last month.

A letter from Kenneth Graeber, who accompanied Don Henry, 19 years old, to Spain, advised the Henry family the young university student died Sept. 3, of wounds suffered the previous day on the Aragon front, when serving with the loyalist army.

The father said he found letters in his son's belongings which indicated Communist sympathizers may have financed the European trip.

WON'T SUBPENA ROOSEVELT

Minnesota Sheriff Refuses to Serve Paper in $375 Suit.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 2. — Ramsey County Sheriff Thomas J. Gibbons refused today to attempt to serve a subpena on President Roosevelt when the President is in St. Paul Monday night. Gibbons returned to attorneys a subpena requiring President Roosevelt to testify in a $375 suit filed by Clifford W. Gardner, St. Paul attorney, against Linue J. Hammond, Assistant United States District Attorney.

Gibbons said the President's constitutional rights barred serving the subpena. The purpose of subpenaing the President has not been explained.

Members of Crew of Panama-Pacific Liner Accused of Failing to Obey Orders.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Fourteen members of the crew of the Panama-Pacific liner California will be tried on formal charges of misconduct, it was ruled today by the Marine Board of Investigation of the Department of Commerce.

The ruling was made at the conclusion of an informal preliminary hearing. The men are accused of failing to obey orders involved in sailing from Cristobal, C. Z., Sept. 22. Capt. William B. Oakley, master of the California, complainant, was represented by Andre V. Cherbonnier. The men were represented by William L. Standard.

After trying the men, the board will report findings and recommendations to the director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection in Washington, whose decision may be appealed to the Secretary of Commerce.

The board was composed of Supervising Inspector Captain George Fried, Capt. Karl C. Nielsen, Inspector Hulls and Howard C. Bridges, acting inspector of boilers, sitting in place of James Smith, who died today after a sudden illness yesterday.

TWO OPTICAL GOODS MAKERS ACCUSED OF DISCRIMINATION

Charged by Federal Trade Commission with Giving Some Customers Special Prices.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The Federal Trade Commission today charged two leading manufacturers of optical goods with giving discriminatory prices to some of their customers, usually the largest customers. Separate complaints were issued against the American Optical Co. of Southbridge, Mass., and the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. of Rochester, N. Y.

The commission said the American Optical Co., with 320 branch offices throughout the United States, did $18,500,000 of business last year.

Named with Bausch & Lomb were: Colonial Optical Co., New York; McIntire, Magee & Brown, Philadelphia; Riggs Optical Co., Consolidated, Chicago; Riggs Optical Co., Inc., San Francisco; Southeastern Optical Co., Richmond, Va.; and White, Haies Optical Co., Columbus, Ohio.

MASSACHUSETTS MAN ADMITS SHOOTING GIRL AND YOUTH

Carpenter Says He Wounded Them When Attempting to Steal Their Auto.

By the Associated Press.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 2.—Leo F. Mockus, 27-year-old carpenter and father of three children, signed a confession tonight after 16 hours of questioning, stating he shot Arthur Gay, 19, and his companion, Miss Sylvia Paulding, 16, in an attempt to steal their automobile early today.

Mockus was identified by Miss Paulding, who suffered a flesh wound in the arm. She said he fired when Gay tried to wrest a pistol from him after he had held them up in a parked automobile at 3 a. m. She accused Mockus of trying to attack her and said she fought him off with a slipper.

LEGIONNAIRES MARCH IN STREETS OF PARIS

About 2500 on Pilgrimage to War Shrines, Take Part in Parade.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The Yanks marched up the Champs Elysees again today.

But they differed from the khaki-clad young men who moved in seemingly endless streams along the same avenue 20 years ago.

They are older now, broader of girth and a trifle less military in tread—and accompanying them were wives and children.

About 2500 former soldiers, here on a pilgrimage to World War shrines, took part in the parade.

Parisians lined curbs to watch the ranks move behind massed banners from Rond Point to the Triumphal Arch, where Legion Commander Daniel Doherty "rekindled" the flame sympolizing perpetual homage to France's World War dead by passing the ceremonial sword through it.

Dozens of wreaths were placed on the tomb on behalf of various Legion posts.

The Americans will proceed to Versailles for dedication of a statue of Gen. John J. Pershing on Oct. 6 and later go to Hill 204 near Chateau Thierry for dedication of the American expeditionary battle monument.

600 American Veterans Arrive at Naples, Italy.

By the Associated Press.

NAPLES, Oct. 2.—Six hundred American Legionnaires arrived here today aboard the liner Rex under the leadership of Commander Harry Colmery. A battalion of Italian ex-service men meeting the ship passed in review. The Legionnaires will go to Rome, where Premier Mussolini will receive them tomorrow.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OBSERVANCE BEGINS TODAY

Chief O'Boyle and Safety Council Head Urge Householders to Inspect Premises.

Fire Prevention Week will be observed in St. Louis beginning today. In calling attention to the observance, Fire Chief John J. O'Boyle and Carl Barker, president of the St. Louis Safety Council, urged householders and business men to inspect their premises for fire hazards.

Fire caused the death of 39 St. Louisans last year and 24 in first eight months of this year. Property loss has averaged $1,300,000 a year since 1931. A total of 219 persons were burned to death in Missouri in 1936.

The following rules for fire prevention were prepared by the Safety Council: Inspect pipes and flues before starting fires; remove rubbish and waste paper and keep premises clean; don't use explosive cleaning fluids; don't use gasoline, naphtha or kerosene to start fires; notify the gas company of gas leaks; inspect electric wiring; don't let children play with matches or near open fires; keep oily mops in closed metal containers; and know where the nearest alarm box is situated.

Farmer Killed by Derailed Train.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Oct. 2. — Harve Marlow, 54 years old, farmer, walking beside the Missouri Pacific tracks, 20 miles east of here, was killed when 11 cars of a freight train were derailed. A man walking with Marlow was also believed to have been killed although his body has not been found.

For the "Morning After" When Your Head Feels Like A BALLOON

Here's Quick, Sure Relief

Yes, when you have overindulged and your head aches, your stomach is upset, and you feel "dead on your feet," do what millions of people do to end that terrible feeling. Simply mix 1/5 of a glass of Pluto Water with 4/5 of a glass of hot water and drink. In one hour or less a complete bowel elimination will be attained. All excess poisons in the intestinal tract will be carried away. When this happens, your head clears, your stomach settles, your energy returns. You feel as good as new. Pluto Water is an efficient saline water. Get either the 25c or the large 50c size, which contains three times the quantity, from your druggist. Have a bottle handy, so that when you eat or drink "not wisely but too well," you can take this pleasant, sure, quick way to feel like new in one hour or less.

Skipper of Endeavour I Tells of Wild Crossing

the ship tow let her ride it out. Nobody slept that night.

The men kept jogging at the pumps to keep the ship dry. By remaining cool the men kept their heads. The boys handled themselves splendidly. There was never a complaint.

Well, we rode it out. Here is my log for Tuesday:

"At 3 a. m., the wind abated and we veered to the southwest. At 5:30 a. m., dawn found the ship had ridden out the gale remarkably well and without damage."

At 6 a. m., I called the Viva by radio. There was no reply. At 7 a. m. we started to get the torn hawser aboard and after a hard struggle succeeded.

We found the tow-line had been parted 90 fathoms away from our bows. The Viva did not know she had parted from us until dawn came and she found we were not behind.

Radio Breaks Down.

The log continues:

"Still trying to contact Viva but failed as water seeping into the radio caused a short circuit. First decided to ride until 4 p. m. to give Viva a chance to wish us and a little later, wishing to take advantage of a fair sea, got the sea anchor aboard and set the trisail and staysail.

"At noon, put ship on courses E. S. E. At 4 p. m. sky becoming overcast, overhauled ship's gear, set rigging taut.

"6 p. m. Smart breeze S. W. Pouring rain. Prepared sea anchor for emergency, hoping be no repetition of previous night.

"Midnight. Rain, showers, squally.

"Wednesday, September 15: 4 a. m. Wind dropping. 8 a. m. calm, ship rolling heavily."

At ten a. m., the trisail started to break away. I ordered the trisail lowered for repairs. At noon a seaplane passed us, flying west and flying low. We thought she was heading for Bermuda. If she saw us she paid no attention. No doubt she thought we were a fishing smack.

No Sail In Sight 13 Days.

That was the last thing we saw except sea, lightning and rain for 13 days. We bobbed up and down with never a sail in sight and never a sign of smoke.

The shift of the waves got monotonous. We were so anxious to let the people in England know we were sailing home safely. That was our biggest trouble.

We got out of the rain on Thursday. A fine day broke after a starry moonlight night. Here is the log for the 16th:

"8 a. m. Set light staysail, weather nice and fine. All hands take advantage to dry their clothes and oil-skins. Sent man aloft to overhaul the rigging. Day's run 164 miles. Ship doing well, averaging 8 knots.

"Thanks to cook, had a good hot dinner."

The ship kept jogging along nicely until noon on the 17th when a big swell sent the ship rolling. It took all the wind out of our sails.

The log for September 18 reads: "One water tank empty. At midnight ship rolling heavily."

For three days we ran into fog banks, the ship lurching heavily with a beam swell. The crew walked like acrobats and I kept hoping for a wind to steady her, and while we waited for the wind, had to lower the trisail to save it.

In the evening of the 21st, weather conditions were ideal and cheerful. We had just set the big staysail and were making nine knots when the worst moment of the crossing came.

It was one calculated to upset the entire ship's company. We had decided to listen in on the radio when we could and tried every night without success. However, at 8:15 that evening, Jack Sergent, launchman who runs the little dynamo and looks after the radio, gave a shout that he had got England.

Radio Bulletin From England.

He heard the voice of an announcer. Here is the log's entry:

"At 8:15 p. m. received a news bulletin from England for the first time. All surprised to hear announcer say American Coast Guard patrol had given up search and that we either had foundered or were proceeding to England under our own sails."

Naturally, all were distressed to think we would cause anxiety at home and immediately tapped out a message on 600 meters to the effect we were all well, hoping some ship would pick up the report from us.

The Viva must have returned to Newport after the breeze and reported us missing. All of us were unanimous in feeling the British Broadcasting Co. could have left out the word "foundered" in the announcement.

Everyone was upset when they heard the news but although they pulled long faces they did the best they could. I told Dan Mutton, the bos'n who does a bit of Morse, to tap a message through trying to tell our people we were safe.

The 600-meter wave-length is used only for S O S but we decided to take the bull by the horns and let everyone know we were well.

Mutton called all ships to ask them to report us well. He tapped it out two or three times, all but the watch on deck standing there to watch him.

The boys were very upset, especially those with wives and families. They were afraid to think what the shock might do to them. It was a terrible word to use. We were in no way overdue anyway.

Mutton's message calmed the men and they went down about their jobs, trying to make the best of it and hoping they would hear back home. We kept a still closer watch for passing steamers and kept flares ready to send up. But we never saw sail nor funnel.

Then on the twenty-third came good news and bad. My log entry, timed 8 p. m., reads:

"Wind becoming light. Sky overcast. Received news bulletin, and all relieved when heard it, announcing that steamer (couldn't distinguish name) had picked up our message and reported us 'all well.'

"All were grieved to hear of the tragic death of Capt. Williams of Endeavour II. It was a very sad end. He was held in high esteem by all who knew him."

Message Contradicted.

We never knew until we got to Falmouth that the message we were all well had been contradicted and that we all were thought to be dead. I had been "dead" for six days once before. That was in 1930 when the Shamrock V was supposed lost on her way from England to the Azores.

All the wireless people said the Shamrock was lost with all hands. That's why Mrs. Heard didn't worry when I was reported dead this time. She knew the boat would ride it out.

Here is the log for the twenty-fifth:

"Second water tank empty. Started extra tanks installed for the voyage.

"8 a. m. Sky overcast, barometer falling, wind freshening. Bishop's bearing north 83.5, east 63.8.

"4 p. m. Weather looking dirty. Ship rolling heavily throughout the night."

Sept. 26 was calm until a big swell came in, the ship rolling very heavily.

Shortly before the Endeavour sailed in triumph into Gosport, I inscribed these words in the log:

"Heard Viva arrived off the Needles and turned back to meet us. Got tow-rope ready."

Louisiana Marshal Shot by Negro.

OPELOUSAS, La., Oct. 2.—Sheriff D. J. Doucet of St. Landry Parish, reported tonight Lester Senegal, a Negro, shot and killed Gilbert Burleigh, town Marshal of Sunset, near here, and possee was hunting him. The Sheriff said Burleigh arrested Senegal on charge of automobile theft.

500 THEATER

VEILED PROPHET TO RETURN TO CITY TUESDAY NIGHT

Fifty-Eighth Parade to Be Followed by Public Festival for First Time in Event's History.

CEREMONY ON STAGE, DANCING IN PLAZA

Ball to Be Held at Auditorjum Wednesday Night When New Queen Will Be Named.

To the usual glitter and social ceremony of the annual Veiled Prophet's parade and ball, to be held this week for the fifty-eighth time, will be added for the first time a public festival in Memorial Plaza, following Tuesday night's parade.

The 20 electrically-lighted floats of the parade, designed in the theme of "Childhood Memories," will follow the same seven-and-one-half-mile route and two-hour-and-fifty-minute time schedule as in the past. The procession will begin at the Prophet's den, Ranken and Laclede avenues, at 7 p. m. and return about 9:50 p. m., requiring about 30 minutes to pass a given point.

Route of travel will be as follows: Laclede avenue, Sarah street, Olive street, Jefferson avenue, Washington avenue, Broadway, Olive street, Jefferson avenue, Laclede avenue. Traffic will be cleared from the route by 6 p. m.

11 Bands to Furnish Music.

Ahead of the leading float, devoted, as always to the Veiled Prophet, the masked and costumed guard of honor and eight costumed trumpeters will march. There will be 11 brass bands of 14 musicians each, with new uniforms consisting of gray caps and trousers and blue coats.

One of the band leaders, serving in that capacity for the first time, will be Benno Seymour, son of the late Charles Seymour, who was a V. P. parade musician for 50 years. The younger Seymour was one of the trumpeters for the last 10 years. Another leader will be Paul Vegna, whose American Legion band has won first prize at the last two annual national Legion conventions.

After the parade, the Veiled Prophet, and a group of his gaily-uniformed principal retainers will be driven privately to a stage in the center of Memorial Plaza at Fourteenth street. The group will promenade around the open-air stage to the strains of the triumphal march from "Aida," one of the traditional marches of the Prophet.

This ceremony will be followed by folk dancing by 100 men and women representing groups of Polish, Italian, German and Ukrainian origin. For this there will be a special orchestra and, in addition, Coloman Katona, St. Louis musician, will play the cymbolom, a Hungarian instrument similar to the piano but played by hammers.

The rest of the evening, until after midnight, will be devoted to public dancing on the asphalt of Chestnut street, with the music of a 30-piece band. Gov. Stark and Mayor Dickmann have been invited to attend and the public dancing will be opened when they and Plaza Festival Committee members are asked to dance with the costumed folk dancers.

Parking in the immediate vicinity will be prohibited after 2 p. m. Tuesday.

Ball at Auditorium.

For the ball, to be held this year for the second time in Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium, the doors for the main floor will be opened at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday and for the gallery at 7 p. m. The only reserved seats, as usual, will be the boxes. Admission will be by ticket.

The identity of the Prophet's Queen for the coming year—always a carefully guarded secret—will be disclosed when she is summoned to the court at the climax of the ball.

Strictly formal dress will be the rule for main floor guests, meaning formal or semi-formal dresses for women, without hats, and white ties, white vests and tail coats for men. There is no rule on dress for the gallery.

Special entrances to the building for holders of various classes of main-floor tickets have been abolished and ticket holders will use either the Fourteenth street or the Fifteenth street doors. Gallery guests will enter by the south ramp on the Fourteenth street side.

The traffic approach to the auditorium will be eastbound on Market, or by way of Olive and Seventeenth streets and Market. At the auditorium entrances cards with parking directions will be given drivers of motor cars. After the ball taxicabs will be available at the Fifteenth street exit.

Some of the guests will go afterwards to the new Queen's supper dance at Hotel Jefferson. The automobile route to the hotel from the auditorium will be by way of Fourteenth street, Clark avenue, Twelfth boulevard and Locust street.

CHAUNCY BUTLER DIES AT 89

Son of Founder of Butler University at Indianapolis.

By the Associated Press.

PALATKA, Fla., Oct. 2.—Chauncy Butler, 89 years old, son of the founder of Butler University, died at his home at Interlachen last night. Born in Indianapolis, Ind., he served with the 132nd Regiment of Indiana Volunteers at the age of 15 in the Civil War.

His father, Ovid Butler, established Northwestern Christian University, now Butler, at Indianapolis. For 25 years the son served as secretary of the university.

ST. CHARLES CO. FARMHAND ACCUSED OF SHOOTING MAN

Albert Gottfried of West Alton Struck in Right Leg by 60 Shotgun Pellets.

A warrant charging assault with intent to kill was issued at St. Charles yesterday against Albert Nay Mohon, a farmhand employed near West Alton, identified by two witnesses as the man who shot Albert Gottfried, a bricklayer of West Alton, at 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

Gottfried was struck in the right leg by 60 shotgun pellets when he stepped outside a tavern in which he has living quarters. The shot came from an automobile parked about 60 feet away.

Mohon was arrested after two farm youths told Sheriff Joe Borgmeyer they were with Mohon when he fired the shot, and that he forced them to drive him across the Mississippi River, then threw the gun away. Mohon declined to make a statement.

EDUCATOR ON VOCABULARIES

Says Differences Between Ordinary and Superior Is 1800 Words.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 2.—The average person by adding 1800 more words to his vocabulary can advance from the ordinary to the superior, according to Prof. John M. Steadman Jr., of the English department of Emory University. The vocabulary of the average person is 11,700 words; a superior vocabulary is 13,500.

"There is such a small difference that anybody can rise from the average to the superior with a little effort," says Prof. Steadman.

PART TWO

MENOW SET... WINNIN...

TIGER RUNS SECOND AND FIGHTING FOX TAKES THIRD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Hal Price Headley's Champagne Stakes winner, Menow, today won the forty-eighth Belmont Futurity, richest race in the world for two-year-olds, establishing a new world record of 1:15 1-5 for six and a half furlongs.

The strapping son of Pharamond II-Alcibiades made his own pace down the long straight Widener course and hit the wire four lengths on top, an easy winner.

Tiger, championship aspirant owned by the Milky Way Farm of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, barely earned the place in a photo finish with William Woodward's Fighting Fox.

With the $56,825 he won today, Menow replaced Tiger as the leading money winning juvenile of the year with earnings of $65,825. Twice beaten by Tiger in the west, the Lexington-owned colt has won three of six starts. Coupled with Bourbon King and Dah He, Menow was a close second choice at 9 to 5 in the field of a dozen crack youngsters. Tiger, an entry with Mountain Ridge, ruled favorite at 7 to 5.

Claim of Foul Disallowed.

A claim of foul was lodged against the Headley entry by Alfred Robertson, who rode Tiger. "Robby" said Bourbon King hit him at the three-sixteenth pole, but the stewards, after due deliberation, decided to dismiss the claim.

A crowd of approximately 22,000, as compared to last year's throng of about 3000 less, braved a threat of rain to witness the final card of the successful meeting. It was hazy and dull all afternoon but the track was at its best.

The former world's record for the distance over a straight course was 1:16 2-5, made by Pompey in the 1936 Futurity. Menow's mark also tops all previous records made over a course with turns. Menow carried 119 pounds, seven less than Tiger.

Charlie Kurtsinger, who rode War Admiral to victory in the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes triple crown this season, was astride Menow. After the race, the "Flying Dutchman" from Louisville said Menow was the best juvenile he ever rode.

Tiger drew $7800 for finishing second; Fighting Fox, Galland Fox's full brother, $4400 for third, and Mountain Ridge, Tiger's partner, $1000 for fourth.

It was also the first Futurity victory for Owner Headley and Trainer Duval Headley, sorrel-topped nephew of the owner.

"Two-Year-Old of the Year."

Menow had the speed of the field and clearly outran his classy rivals. Kurtsinger broke him well in a perfect start and the Westerner quickly dashed into a clear advantage. Fighting Fox, winner of the Grand Union Hotel Stakes but a disappointment since, the highly-esteemed Tiger, Dah He and Mountain Ridge were closely bunched and hot on the Headley star's trail.

There was no threatening this strong looking, dark bay youngster, however. Showing the same speed that marked his Champagne effort, in which Tiger's renowned stablemate Sky Larking broke a leg and had to be destroyed, the well-backed colt simply burned up the long, straight carpet known as the Widener course and took irrefutable hold to the title of best two-year-old in training. Tiger, making a valiant if futile effort to catch up with the winner, overcame the trouble caused by his brief jam with Bourbon King and, with true courage, nipped the fast Fighting Fox on the wire.

Firethorn Wins Gold Cup.

Walter M. Jeffords' sturdy five-year-old horse, Firethorn, galloped to an easy six-length victory in the eighteenth Jockey Club Gold Cup, gruelling two miles test. This marked the son of Sun Briar's second triumph in this event, he having previously captured the event in 1935. In second place, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Arthur, last year's winner and favorite in the three-horse field, could not threaten the winner in the last half mile. Moonton, the early pacemaker, finished third. Firethorn earned $6050 and the coveted gold cup.

The Grand National Steeplechase Handicap, with its $9200 purse and a cup going to the victor, saw Mrs. Payne Whitney's Sailor Beware becoming the thirty-seventh winner of the test of about three miles. Sailor Beware uncovered form that was lacking in his recent efforts and beat Thomas Hitchcock's 6 to 5 favorite Yemasee, winner of his last four starts by three lengths. The latter just lasted to head F. Ambrose Clark's London Town for the place.

An Oligarchy of Wealth?

ONE-EYE CONNOLLY, who has built up an income of sorts through the self-propagated myth that he is the world championship gate-crasher, has soured on New York. He admits that he is going to make no attempt to crash the five-cent world series gate this year.

CONNOLLY

We might add that he probably has not yet crashed it, except through the medium of a regulation ticket bought and paid for by somebody, perhaps himself.

Nevertheless, it may be interesting to learn why the third of this dynasty of One-eye crashers is confessedly not interested in the world series — the one event that really might require all his skill to crash. There are no such thing as "Annie Oakleys" to a world series event.

"I am off these world series affairs," says Connolly "Because the wealthy clubs of the league have a monopoly. Poor club owners haven't a chance."

Mr. Connolly and the Facts.

ONE-EYE stops right there. He doesn't go into detail. He leaves a palpitating population in mid-air. Perhaps many of his readers assume that he is right. Others may believe he is a bit balmy. Still others may conclude that this fighting member of the National Hobo Association is just developing a trace of "red" in his system.

But, at any rate, the viewpoint invites a little investigation into the facts and these reveal a few things that are interesting. They show for example:

That in post-war times—let us say the last 17 years—the New York Giants have won seven pennants and the New York Yankees have won nine. The two New York clubs so completely dominated the situation in five of these seasons—counting the current campaign—that they became world series rivals that many times.

Combined, they represent almost half of the pennants won by the 16 clubs of the two major leagues, in 17 campaigns.

While the New York clubs were doing all this the other teams were faring as follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE — St. Louis Cardinals won five times; Chicago, three times; Pittsburgh, twice.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—Washington and Philadelphia won three times each; Detroit, twice.

How Poor Clubs Fared.

THAT leaves Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Boston and the Phillies as non-winners in the National League; St. Louis, Cleveland, Boston and Chicago were out in the cold in the American.

But let us not assume that lack of money was responsible for all this.

DAVIS IN FORM AS CUBS BEAT CARDINALS, 5-1

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Curt Davis, whose sore arm was one of the early-season handicaps of the Cubs, pitched brilliantly for Charley Grimm's club this afternoon and eliminated all possibility of the Cardinals finishing better than fourth by defeating the Redbirds in the second game of the series, 5 to 1. It was Davis' tenth victory of the year, his sixth in the last seven games and the Cubs' sixteenth decision over the Redbirds in 21 meetings.

As Joe Medwick struck out to end the game, the score-board showed the Pirates and Reds tied, but the defeat for St. Louis clinched third place for the Pirates, regardless of what happened today or tomorrow.

The Cardinals, who seemed to have their minds on quail, rabbits, duck, geese, road maps and bird dogs, made only six hits off the well-placed curves of Davis. He struck out five men, went through the game without issuing a pass and not until the ninth inning did the Redbirds advance a man as far as second. In the final frame, with one out, Terry Moore singled to center, took third on Jimmy Brown's double to left and scored as Mize was being retired on a grounder to Ripper Collins. The four other safeties off Davis, all singles, were scattered over as many innings.

Bob Weiland, blocked in his efforts to register his sixteenth victory of the year, had two bad innings, the first and the eighth. In the first Hack led with a slow, twisting grounder toward first and turned it into a hit because Weiland and Mize couldn't agree on a proper division of work.

The hit and run sign then was flashed and with Durocher drawn out of position, Billy Herman bounced a single through short, sending Hack to third. Demaree followed with a line single to right, scoring Hack and after O'Dea struck out and Herman was doubled on an attempted double steal, Cavarretta singled to center, scoring Demaree.

Weiland then held the Cubs scoreless until the eighth when Rip Collins started a rally with one out by sending a double down the right field line. Frey struck out, but Stainback singled to center, scoring Collins and then stole second. Curt Davis singled to center, scor-

Washington Shows Power in Defeating William Jewell, 45-0

By James M. Gould.

Starting rather slowly but gaining momentum as the game proceeded, the Washington University Bears yesterday broke into the 1937 victory column with a smashing 45-0 victory over William Jewell College of Liberty, Mo. The Bears made single touchdowns in the first and second periods, added two in the third and finished up with three in the final quarter. At no time were they in danger of being scored upon.

Jones Klein made three touchdowns, Bukant, Minkey, Warner and Brew each one. Warner converted two extra-point tries and Harris one. Coach Jimmy Conzelman used 29 players during the proceedings. That was just about his entire squad, excluding the players on the sidelines with injuries.

Jewell fought hard all the way but was out-manned as well as outplayed. There were crudities in the Washington play but, toward the end of the game, many of these were straightened out. At least, Washington showed it had a punch. Just how powerful it would have been against tougher opposition cannot be determined.

Shakofsky, Seibert Star.

McDonald, the two Bowles boys and Roberts stood out for Jewell with the Washington brightest stars turning up in the persons of Leo Shakofsky and Bill Seibert. Shakofsky, a sophomore from University City, was a great ball-carrier. Seibert who was a reserve end last year, was everywhere on the field receiving passes for long gains and making tackle after tackle.

Warner did some nice kicking—

ILLINOIS HELD TO SCORELESS TIE IN DE PAUL GAME

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 2.—Capt. Lowell Spurgeon's closing-minute passes were of no avail today and Illinois' football team was held to a scoreless tie by De Paul University of Chicago. The Illini rallied in the last three minutes with an air attack which ended with an intercepted pass on the goal line.

Chicago Loses To Vanderbilt, 18-0.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 2.—Using three complete teams, the Commodores of the University of Vanderbilt scored an impressive 18 to 0 victory over the University of Chicago here this afternoon on a rain-drenched field.

M'ILRAVY SUFFERS SKULL INJURY; VICTORS CONVERT TWO FUMBLES INTO TALLIES

Gophers Count in First Five Minutes on Pass and Their Negro Guard, Horace Bell, Kicks Field Goal —Howell and Callahan Score for Victors.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 2. — Minnesota's dream of marching to its fourth successive mythical national football championship exploded in an upset today that rocked the gridiron world.

In sunbaked Memorial Stadium before a sell-out crowd of 36,000 frenzied spectators, Nebraska conquered the mighty Gophers, hitherto defeated only once in three years, 14 to 9.

The result left the spectators, sweltering in midsummer heat, stunned and bewildered as they watched Minnesota ground into defeat, after losing only one in its 33-game gridiron parade that started in 1932. The one blot on Minnesota's record was Northwestern's triumph in the mud and rain last year.

There were certain factors in favor of the inspired Cornhuskers today. The first was that Major Lawrence "Biff" Jones, making his debut as a Nebraska coach, had dared to win. It was a gamble against what appeared to be overwhelming odds. It is remarkable that Coach Jones has not lost an opening game at any of the four institutions he has coached.

Gopher Fumbles Costly.

Then there were two costly Minnesota fumbles which Nebraska quickly converted into touchdown maneuvers.

Minnesota made more first downs, gained more yards, attempted and completed more passes, and yet was able to score only nine points, chiefly because the Huskers played an astonishing defensive game with a line of seven veterans charging and blocking brilliantly.

The game, an uproarious conquest for the Huskers, was not without its tragedy. Eldon McIlravy, a 20-year-old sophomore fullback from Tecumseh, Neb., was in serious condition tonight, suffering from a brain concussion and possible skull fracture as a result of a terrific pileup of players in the third period.

Rudy Gmitro, Minnesota halfback, was carried off the field at the same time suffering from what was first believed to be a broken back. Later, however, the injury was thought to be not serious.

After Minnesota scored on the first nine plays of the game and in less than five minutes of play, it appeared the Gophers were off on another touchdown march. Andy Uram, fleet Gopher halfback, who beat Nebraska a year ago with a 70-yard gallop in the last 60 seconds of play, had tossed a 15-yard pass to Vic Spadaccini who snared the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. Uram's attempt to place-kick, however, was a failure.

Then at the start of the second period came Minnesota's first disastrous fumble which the Cornhuskers quickly converted. Johnny Howell, Nebraska's veteran quarterback, punted to Bill Matheny, on Minnesota's 35-yard line, but the ball bounced out of Matheny's hands and rolled to Minnesota's 24-yard line. There Charley Brock, who played a whale of a game at center, recovered for Nebraska.

Howell Scores.

After two line smashes, Howell tossed a nine-yard pass for a first down on Minnesota's 13-yard line. The Cornhuskers blasted to Minnesota's four, and then Howell smashed center for a touchdown, bringing the spectators to their feet after Lowell English placekicked for the extra point.

After a scoreless third period, Horace Bell, Minnesota's Negro guard, drove the Gophers into the lead at the start of the fourth when he botted a field goal from an angle on the 23-yard line to give the Gophers a two-point margin.

Then came Minnesota's second costly fumble. After the Cornhuskers had failed at passes, Bill Anderson punted to Harold Van Every who bobbled. Bill Callihan recovered for Nebraska. Harris Andrews fired a 22-yard pass to Dohrmann who snatched the ball on Minnesota's 22-yard line. A second later, Andrews hurled another pass, for 14 yards, to Callihan, who scampered five yards down the center for a score without a Gopher tackler near him.

English again added the extra point making the score Nebraska 14, Minnesota 9.

The Gophers opened with a desperate forward passing attack in an effort to turn defeat into victory in the remaining seconds, but the alert Cornhuskers were there to block and finally to intercept one as the game ended.

COLORADO PINS 14 TO 6 DEFEAT ON MISSOURI

By the Associated Press.

BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 2. — A smart, alert Colorado University team that followed the ball and the breaks outplayed Missouri all over Norlin Stadium for an upset 14-to-6 grid victory today.

The Big Six team, touted as one of the best in recent Missouri history, was rated at least a touchdown better.

The Tigers made only one scoring drive, Art Murray hurling a 28-yard forward pass over the C. U. secondary to Clyde Nelson, Missouri end, for a touchdown in the third period.

Missouri stopped Byron (Whizzer) White, Colorado jack-of-all grid trades, only so far as touchdowns went. The Whizzer's great punting, passing and generalship coined both of the Rocky Mountain team's scores.

The first break came when White kicked 83 yards over the Missouri safety to the enemy one-yard line in the opening period. After Missouri punted out, Colorado roared back, White swinging off tackle for 17 yards.

Ervin Cheney, Colorado's 175-pound fullback from Lander, Wyo., plunged through left guard for the score.

Fumbles by Clay Cooper and Henry Mahley, Missouri backs, opened the second scoring chance for Colorado, in the second period. White flipped a 23-yard pass, then Cheney slipped off tackle for 17 yards to Missouri's three-yard line. He hit the line twice for the touchdown.

White capped both scores with neat conversion kicks.

McKinley's smooth football machine that crushed Beaumont, 25 to 0, and Amiel "Abe" Lange, star Goldbug back who scored three touchdowns in the opening half, were the features of the City High School league's first 1937 football doubleheader at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday afternoon. In the other game, Cleveland scored a safety early and a touchdown late to defeat Soldan, 9 to 0.

A crowd of 5000 saw the two games.

McKinley outclassed Beaumont, last year's champions in every department of the game.

Beaumont never threatened while McKinley, with Lange in the game, was a constant threat.

Wastes Little Time.

Lange wasted little time in showing his prowess by taking the ball on McKinley's 23-yard line and racing around his left end 77 yards for a touchdown, two minutes after the game started. He added the extra point on a place kick.

He was held in check by Beaumont for the remainder of the period, but in the second quarter he took two passes from Jim Newberger for touchdowns.

Bill Howle scored the fourth McKinley touchdown by intercepting a pass and running 60 yards for a score in the third quarter.

McKinley appeared even more powerful than pre-season forecasts indicated, for not only did Lange live up to the praises lavished on him, but the others in the backfield demonstrated that they too could run with the ball and pass as well as pave the way for Lange.

Beaumont Disappoints.

Beaumont, after its defensive play against University City, which it defeated 6—0, was a disappointment, but it could not cope with power that McKinley flashed yesterday.

Cleveland, despite its 9-0 victory over a Soldan team that showed surprising power, was not impressive. The line was slow to charge and Soldan's reverses and laterals in the opening half often caught it unprepared.

Cleveland scored in the first few minutes when a punt was fumbled by Dale Burnett and, as he recovered it behind his goal line, he was tackled by Henry Berger for a safety.

Cleveland threatened often in the second half with Hary Dickson and Charles Gualdoni carrying the ball but fumbles and intercepted passes together with a fighting Soldan line stopped them several times.

With only three minutes remaining to play, Cleveland drove 53 yards to a touchdown with Dickson, Gualdoni, and Clark smashing the line for big gains. Dickson scored from the one-yard line and Gualdoni added the extra point on a line plunge.

Harvard Crushes Springfield, 54 to 0 In Season Opener

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 2. — An efficient and well drilled Harvard football team opened its season today by overwhelming Springfield's inexperienced forces, 54-0, before a 15,000 crowd. The Crimson used about eight plays but put so much deception into them that it scored twice in every period. Springfield made only one first down and never advanced outside of its own territory.

OHIO CONVERTS PURDUE PASSES INTO VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Ohio State's "team without a star" halted Purdue's vaunted aerial attack today and converted two intercepted passes into scoring thrusts which resulted in a 13 to 0 victory before 49,643 fans in the first Big Ten contest of the season here.

It was the first contest between the teams since 1924, and the Bucks, playing heads-up football all the way, extended to six combats their record of never having allowed the Boilermakers to score a point.

With Cecil Isbell, the Big Ten's aerial artist, doing the passing, Purdue was expected to "pitch and catch" the Bucks into submission, but the Ohioans gained 85 yards on six intercepted heaves while the Boilermakers made but 74 on five completed tosses.

Dick Nardi, surprise starter at right half for Ohio, began and finished the first scoring splurge in the third period. Intercepting one of Isbell's passes on his own 35-yard line Nardi raced to the 47. Kabealo passed to Sarkkinen, substitute end, for 35 yards, and Ohio bucked it the last 17 yards, Nardi finally going over from the two-yard mark. Mastako missed the try for the extra point.

The other Ohio touchdown came in the final period after Zadworney, substitute back, picked off one of Vyverberg's toses on the 50 and raced to Purdue's 19 before being dragged down. On the next play, John Kabealo wriggled from the grasp of a Boilermaker tackler and tossed to End Fred Crow in the end zone for a touchdown. Schoenbaum place kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later William Phillips, sub quarterback, from Columbus, grabbed a loose lateral on the Purdue 49, and the Ohioans bucked their way down the field again, Nick Wasylik of Astoria, N. Y., finally going over from the three-yard line on an end run, only to have the play called back and Ohio penalized for offside. Lineup and summaries:

Northwestern Easily Defeats Iowa State, 33-0.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 2.—Northwestern's Wildcats, champions of the Western Conference, found the Iowa State Cyclones only a mild breeze today, winning, 33 to 0, before 30,000 spectators in Dyche Stadium.

Northwestern, with the fleet Bob Swisher of Peoria, Ill., pacing the attack with three touchdowns, scored in every period and presented a defense which kept the Ames, Ia., eleven from getting closer to the Wildcat goal line than the 25-yard marker.

LOUISIANA STATE DEFEATS TEXAS, 9-0

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—With the versatile Charles "Pinkie" Rohm in the driver's seat with a brilliant exhibition of running and punting, Louisiana State's Bayou Bengals tonight turned back the Longhorns of the University of Texas, 9 to 0, before 10,000 rain-soaked onlookers.

Daffy Wins Busch Memorial With Frock Coat Second, Ondott Third; 3 Riders Hurt

Daffy, gelding steeplechaser owned by Charles D. Pierce, Detroit sportsman, captured the Busch Memorial, sixth and feature event of the ninth annual St. Louis Race meeting before a crowd of 12,000 at Huntleigh Downs yesterday.

The attendance set a record for any St. Louis steeplechase and it is said to be the largest number of persons ever to attend a similar event in the middle west. Daffy ran the two and a half mile brush course in the excellent time of 4:40.2. Jockey R. Hayhurst rode the winner. The track was fast.

Second to Daffy by two lengths was Frock Coat, entered by the Mavo Ranch and ridden by Frank Blake. Ondott, local favorite of the Trails End stables and ridden by Frankie Slate came in third with fourth and last place going to Austett.

Three Fall.

The other three entrants all met with misfortune on the second jump the first time around. It started when Awkward Lad, owned by Mitchell Wallis of Racine, Wis., acted up at the post and carried his bad manners into the second jump where he hesitated, fell and rolled over on Jockey Stuart Mattson. Bland Hilltop and Better Brook, running imediately behind, piled up, injuring Jockeys Tommy Fitzwater and Bill Beaton. All three riders were rushed to the hospital but Keaton was released after being treated for slight lacerations. The other two were not seriously injured.

Daffy took all the jumps well and finished in good shape. Especially did he appear to be at perfect ease when taking the dangerous water and Liverpool ditch hazards; two hurdles that spelled defeat for several horses in other events. This was the second victory of the day for Pierce whose Theron captured the fourth event, Beginner's Luck.

In the first event, the Hit and Run, open to landowners and farmers over whose land the Bridlespur Club hunts, raced their favorite mules about two furlongs on the flat and amid much shouting, beating and very little form, Scarlet O'Hara, owned and ridden by Lawrence Butler, came in first by two lengths over Eli Yale, ridden by Ben Wirth and Breezy Jake, also owned by Ben Wirth, but ridden by Tom. Other entrants trailed in for a few hundred yards with one mule being led across the finish line by his disgruntled jockey.

Grasslands a Winner.

The second race, the Hunting Scarlet, open to members of a recognized hunt or officers of the United States Army, once around the timber course, was won by Grasslands, ridden by Hart Vance Jr., in 3:22.3. Grasslands, favorite of the betting public, second was Mr. Jorrocks, ridden by Harry Langenberg Jr., a nose behind the winner. Third place went to Arthur Hardin on Gobbler, a length behind the victor. Miss Mary Pettus, riding August A. Busch's Gin Fizz, came in fourth after leading the field to the last jump.

In the third, The Gone Away, for three-year-olds and upward over five and one-half furlongs on the flat, Oscillator, ridden by B. Barrett, and owned by the Hoover Brothers of Colorado, barely nosed out the favorite, Procrastinator, of the Trails End stables and ridden by Slate. Third place went to Noltso, owned by Z. Holub and ridden by R. Colosia. Time was 1:57.2.

The fourth race, Beginner's Luck proved a severe test for the thoroughbreds. The field of seven narrowed down to three finishers as the water jump and the Liverpool ditch took their toll of horses and riders.

Theron, owned by Pierce and ridden by J. Hellowell, won the race over the two-mile brush course in the good time of 3:45.4. Hellowell used the whip to urge his mount to greater speed as he drew away from C. J. McDonald's Addison, ridden by R. Hayhurst, the Irish jockey. The third to finish was, Cathedral, owned by Wallace Wakem and ridden by Allen Lee. Cathedral was a favorite in pre-post betting and was held at even money when the race was called.

Custodian First.

The fifth race, the sprint, for three-year-olds and upward, over four furlongs on the flat was won by Custodian, owned by C. Myers ridden by Jockey Collin. The time was 48:2 seconds. Ray X, owned by K. Kronk, and ridden by C. Thudium was second by a head. Third place went to Pretty Susan, ridden by P. Clelland.

The last event, the Young Entry, was captured by Jack Rabbit, owned by Julius Van Raalte and ridden by his son, Jack, in the time of 31:2. The race was over the flat, two furlongs, open to members of the Bridlespur Hunt Club of the Western Military Academy, who have not yet reached 16 years of age. Second place went to Gobbler, owned by Arthur Hardin and ridden by his son, Jack. Third place was taken by the Western Military mount, Beauty, ridden by Cadet J. Pardee. Fourth place was taken by John Peel, ridden by Owner Adrian Kahle.

University of Washington Defeats Southern Cal., 7-0, Before 65,000

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—The Washington Huskies stemmed off a final thrust by Southern California to defeat the Trojans, 7 to 0, in a Pacific Coast Conference game here today before 65,000 fans.

Early in the initial period, Ambrose Schindler, ace quarterback of U. S. C. fumbled the ball on a spinner play and Rich Worthington, Huskie right tackle, fell on it. It took Washington seven plays, including two sharp passes, to get the ball down to the one-yard line, where Jimmy Johnston, Huskie halfback, crashed over for the touchdown.

Al Cruver, fullback, place-kicked the extra point.

California Routs Oregon State, 24-6.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 2.—University of California's Bears coupled stout blocking with costly errors on the part of the opposition today to defeat Oregon State College, 24 to 6.

Some 25,000 fans saw Coach "Stub" Allison's bulky stalwarts open the Pacific Coast Conference championship race in victorious fashion.

The Bears scored four touchdowns and in each instance, the visitors from the Pacific Northwest set the stage by fumbles.

Oregon Upsets Stamford, 7 to 6.

By the Associated Press.

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 2.—Oregon made Pacific Coast Conference history today, defeating Stanford, 7 to 6. first decision over the Indians in 13 meetings.

Jay Graybeal, sophomore halfback for Oregon, scored on a pass in the second period and big Hufton, guard, booted over the winning point. Jim Groves rumbled over from the two-yard line for Stanford's touchdown in the fourth period. His try for point was blocked.

NEWARK ROUTS M'GEE, DEFEATS COLUMBUS, 8-1

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—Newark's Bears, champions of the International League, combined 11 bingles with five Columbus errors tonight to defeat the Redbirds, 8 to 1, in the fourth game of the little world series. It was Newark's first victory in four starts, the Birds having swept the three games played at Newark.

Joe Beggs, who won 21 and lost four for Newark during the regular season, kept the Birds under control al the way, allowing but eight hits and one unearned run.

"Blanker Bill" McGee started on the hill for the Birds and lasted until the sixth when a four-hit, four-run barrage drove him to cover. Potter, who has appeared in each of the four games, came in for one and two-thirds innings before giving way to a pinch-runner, and Ed Heusser finished.

Gleeson, left fielder, and Keller, right fielder, led the Newark attack with three hits in four attempts, each getting a double and two singles. Dick Siebert, first sacker, was the only Redbird to get more than one hit as Beggs kept the Columbus Club handcuffed in the pinches.

Two double plays, Beggs to Richardson to McQuinn, and Gordon to McQuinn, snuffed out Columbus rallies to help Beggs out of two of the few holes he got into.

A crowd of 10,201 saw tonight's contest, the gate receipts being $7,706.14, of which $4,623.68 went into the players pool, bringing the total prize for the athletes to $22,-268.50. The players do not participate in the receipts of future games.

Series statistics:
Total attendance (four games), 50,918; total receipts, $37,114.18; commission's share (four games), $3567.13; Cubs' share (four games), $4639.27 each; players' share (four games), $22,268.50.

ROOSEVELT IS BEATEN, 32-6, BY LOUISVILLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2.—There was little power to the Roosevelt High School team of St. Louis tonight and a barrage of passes sent them to a defeat at the hands of Male High here 32 to 6 before 1000 rain-soaked spectators at Maxwell Field.

Roosevelt's lack of reserves had as much to do with the outcome, probably, as any other factor and while more than three full teams of Purples alternated on the slow turf, eighteen athletes were forced to carry on for Roosevelt.

Male High scored first in the initial frame on a short jab over center by Tucker, after a long goalward march, and twice in the second. Tucker tallied from the 2-yard line on the first play of the period and Wender, a reserve, plugged right tackle for three and a marker near the close.

Riley hit right guard for six and another touchdown at the outset of the third and Boone closed Male's scoring with a 3-yard jab over center on the eighth play of the fourth quarter.

Brown scored for Roosevelt midway of the final frame on a 10-yard whirl around left end. The play climaxed a 81-yard march started by White, who went 12 yards to the 49. Brown then got 9, Vogelsang 3, and the team was given first down on the 35 when Male roughed the passer. Vogelsang then picked up four, Brown 8, and Vogelsang eight more to set up the touchdown play.

Male scored 17 first downs and St. Louis 7.

Wisconsin Beats Marquette, 12-0

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 2. — The University of Wisconsin reasserted its claim to State football supremacy today with a 12-to-0 victory over Marquette University, winner of the mythical title the last two years.

A crowd of 31,000, short of expectations because of gloomy weather, saw Coach Harry Stuhldreher's fast and deceptive backfield smother Marquette's aerial attack and hold the visitors to a net loss of one yard on running plays. Wisconsin's ground plays netted 276 yards.

Although Wisconsin withheld its pass attack until late, gaining 30 yards on three completed attempts, the visitors resorted to aerials from the start, but made a net gain of only 32 yards on five successful attempts.

those "coffin-corner punts"—for the Bears and Bukant as usual was uncannily accurate with his passes.

The game indicated that, with another game or two under their belts, the Bears will be tough hombres for any class of competition.

The statistics showed how greatly Jewell was outplayed. The Bears made 18 first downs to three, and from scrimmage gained 426 yards to 69. Washington tried 22 passes and completed nine; Jewell completed three in 14 tries. Washington also had the edge in fumbles with seven to three but they recovered four of them.

The game was only five minutes old when the Bears made their first touchdown. A kick by Warner of Washington went out in the five-yard "coffin-corner" and Jewell kicked immediately. Shakofsky ran the ball back to the visitors' 21-yard mark. Four plays gained a first down. From the 10-yard line, Warner cleared end for seven yards and on the next play, Bukant plunged over, Warner place-kicking the extra point.

A poor quick-kick gave the Bears another scoring chance in the first period but they developed a fumbling process, Jewell recovering twice when it seemed Washington was on the way to another touchdown. When the period ended, the Bears had possession on their own 33-yard line.

Bukant began to find the passing-range in the second period and Bill Seibert seemed always in the right place to receive the heave. One of these passes put the ball on Jewell's 25-yard line and Bukant faked a pass to Seibert but instead threw to Yore who advanced to Jewell's one-yard mark. One play was stopped but on the next Klein, in for Bukant, plunged over. This time, Tomlinson's try was blocked.

Washington made numerous substitutions during the period and the reserves did well. A steady Washington advance took the ball down as far as the Jewell three-yard mark but the Bears' backs were not equal to the occasion and Jewell kicked out of danger as the period neared its end. Bukant, back in action, cut loose with a couple of good passes but the pistol-shot stopped the advance and the Bears had to be content with two touchdowns for the first two periods.

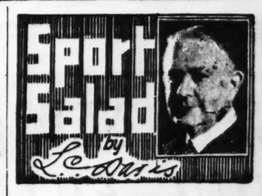
In the third period, the Bears—principally Shakofsky—were soon started toward another touchdown. Starting on their own 44-yard line, the Washington backs advanced steadily. But they were forced to yield in the shadow of Jewell's goal-posts. But, the Washington line was through on a punt from the end-zone. Tracy blocked the kick and Gene Brew fell on it for a touchdown.

The Bears then uncovered some shovel-passes which, mixed with successful forwards, brought the ball to within three yards of another score. Warner then plunged over. The Bears got possession again in the late minutes of the third period and then "went to town" in the final quarter.

A nice kick by Warner put Jewell back on its four-yard heels at the outset. A poor return kick followed and it was only a minute or so before Klein went over for another score. Bill Seibert recovered a fumble and another plunge by Klein netted a sixth touchdown with nine minutes of play remaining.

The final score came out of a nicely-worked lateral pass. Bukant passed to Minkey who, about to be tackled, heaved to Charley Gould. The Washington center kept traveling down to Jewell's 22-yard line and, on fourth down, Bukant passed to Minkey for the final and seventh touchdown.

Sport Salad by Ed Danforth



Why Not?

World series games usually lack color. Therefore to avoid this defect we suggest a world series for the cellar championship between the Reds and Browns.

If they play a series between the first
Why not a series between the worst?

Not that the Browns and Reds are the worst teams in their respective leagues. The best team doesn't always win the pennant, nor the worst club cop the cellar flag.

The Yankees voted Mrs. Johnny Broaca, who is suing Johnny for divorce, $1000 by way of a little advance alimony. Johnny divorced himself from the Yankees in the middle of July.

THOSE Billikens are going some,
I see they won a frolic from

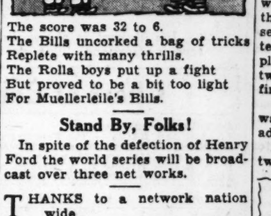
The Miners started digging in,
And tried their level best to win
But couldn't pierce their lines.



The score was 32 to 6.
The Bills uncorked a bag of tricks
Replete with many thrills.
The Rolla boys put up a fight
But proved to be a bit too light
For Muellerlelle's Bills.

Stand By, Folks!

In spite of the defection of Henry Ford the world series will be broadcast over three net works.

THANKS to a network nation wide
The parlor fans will be supplied
It's just a case of tuning in,
Then let the bloomin' game begin.

Strangely enough in the coming world series Bill Terry will be sitting comfortably while Joe McCarthy will be on the spot. If the Yanks don't win it will be just too bad for Joe while if the Giants lose Bill won't be any worse off than he was before.

And before going overboard on the Yankees it might be well to give a thought to what the Columbus Red Birds did to the Newark Bears in the first three games of the little world series.

M'CORMICK AND M'CARTHY STAR AS NOTRE DAME DEFEATS DRAKE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2.—The Irish—the real McCoy Irish—swept Notre Dame to a 31 to 0 opening game triumph today over the scrapping Bulldogs of Drake University.

There was no one in the battle front named McCoy, but the Irish attack, when it provided points, was powered by young men with the unmistakable Old Sod names of Nevin Francis McCormick, Jack Gregory McCarthy, Patrick Francis McCarty, and Charles William O'Reilly. There was a lot of help contributed by Capt. Joe Zwers, Joe Kuharich, Joe Ruetz, Andy Puplis and Mario Tonelli, but the boys with the Irish handles won most of the acclaim of the 41,000 spectators who came to see Notre Dame start its fiftieth gridiron campaign.

Notre Dame threatened twice to get its first score of the season in the first period, but was forced to delay the pleasure until early in the second, when aerial raids failed. Just before the end of the opening period, an 18-yard pass from McCarthy to Zwers and a 14-yard gallop by McCormick, put the ball on Drake's five-yard line, from where McCarthy flipped a neat pass to McCormick for a touchdown. Puplis completed the job by place-kicking for the point.

McCarthy unreeled the thriller of the day in the third session, smashing through Drake's left tackle and with blockers springing up in front of him, racing 85 yards for a touchdown, after Kuharich had intercepted Pug Manders' pass on Notre Dame's 15-yard line. A few minutes later, McCarthy intercepted another of Manders' tosses, and after McCormick had reached pay dirt with a 13-yard jaunt around right end, Tonelli crashed through the Bulldog line for the last score. O'Reilly kicked for both extra points.

The Irish might have made a rout of it as the game Bulldogs weakened, but with eight tough games coming up in successive weeks, Coach Elmer Layden seized the opportunity of looking at his second, third, fourth and fifth teams. Altogether, he watched 31 players, with most of them doing two and three minute hitches in the final quarter.

While the Irish demonstration was hardly a masterpiece, it was adequate for an opening test.

Drake threatened seriously only twice.

BEARS NOTES

WHILE the William Jewell boys seemed smaller, their squad was about as numerically big as that of the Bears.

Sans uniforms but still dispensing that excellent music which has brought real fame to the school, the Washington University band under Leader Falkenhainer helped the fans forget the heat.

Following the no-captain idea inaugurated after the 1936 season, the Bears name a lead for each game. Yesterday, the honor fell to Joe Bukant.

Jewell gave Bukant all the time in the world to do his passing and Joe was accurate in his tosses to Yore, Seibert and Shakofsky.

Bill Seibert, last year a reserve end, played the game of his life. He shone as well on defense as in snaring of passes. His performance was the high spot of the afternoon.

Of course, the game was not as hot as an attraction, but the attendance was below par at that. An estimate of 3000 would not be under-generous.

Yanks 3-1 Fav To Beat Gian Retain Wo

Attendance and Financial Figures f for Entire Set Likely to Be Sh "Nickel" Battle—McCarthy's H Slumped.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Featuring the tw in the game today, little old New York's civil war for championship stakes figures t the paying public this year than it was in 1

Largely through their respective abilities to pour it in when the chips are down and the stakes are high, Pa Knickerbocker's big bullies, the Yankees, and his less mighty but craftier sons, the Giants, appear set to put on a lot closer world series struggle when they start swapping punches next Wednesday, than the one the American Leaguers took a year ago with a record-smashing outburst of power.

Yankees 3 to 1 Choices.

The Yankees, perennial murderers' row, are favorites to wind up with the world championship again in this series that has an excellent chance of wiping out all previous financial and attendance marks. Some odds (if you can find them) make Gehrig, DiMaggio and Company a 3 to 1 shot to repeat.

But such fancy prices are like throwing money away, although, on the records, the swat squad looks like the goods. However, in view of the Yanks' recent batting slump, a let down in the physical condition of their star sophomore ball-killer, Joe DiMaggio, and the Giants' gallant showing down the National League stretch, during which they batted at a merry .310 clip for a full month, things appear to be even up in favor of the National Leaguers.

Given exclusive big city rights to the show, New York and its "visiting firemen," provided they make a sellout of each game, can click the turnstiles to a tune never sung before, either financially or from the standpoint of fan turnout. Even if the series goes only five games, with Yankee Stadium entertaining the first two on Wednesday and Thursday, and the Polo Grounds playing host to the next three, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the old records of 302,934 fans and a $1,304,399 gate, both set last year, may be erased, along with the

Gomez Having Best Year.

Third, the Yankee pitching staff isn't altogether made up of easy marks. Lefty Gomez, for instance, is having his best year, was the first 20-game winner of the season, and in his last 52 innings has allowed just 31 hits, seven runs, has fanned 40 batters, and has pitched three shutouts in six starts. Red Ruffing, back in form after an early September slump, and Monte Pearson, apparently recovered from the sore arm that afflicted him most of the season, also can't be overlooked.

As a whole, the series flinging festivities will probably be dominated by southpaws more than ior any classic in the past 14 years. The chances are Gomez and Hubbell, both portsiders, will go in the first game and Melton will tangle with right-handed Rufus the Red Ruffing in the second.

In the catching department, Dickey has it over either of his rivals, Captain Gus Mancuso, hitting .280 and probable receiver for the Giants' left-handers, or Harry the Horse Danning, having a great year after riding the Giant bench for some six seasons.

At first base, Gehrig, hitting .353 for the season and driving in 155 runs, is too much for comparison with McCarthy.

The Giants, however, have the edge in the rest of the infield department. Their shortstop-second base combination of the firebrand Bartell and Burgess Whitehead not

King Carl and Melton, Two Winners, Will Be Te

Too, this power has been backed up by an adept elbowing staff, headed by two 20-game southpaws, the Great King Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton, alternately dubbed "Mountain Music" and "Mickey Mouse," and assisted no end by the comeback of Prince Hal Schumacher who was more or less a total loss until after mid-season.

But despite this case for the Giants, there are several factors that can't be overlooked before you "pays your money and takes your choice."

First, of course, is the fact that the Yankees are always there when it counts. In the past two seasons, while topping the American League like a tent, they have lost only one series when it counted—to a second-place team. They may nose-dive against the pushovers, but make the stakes high enough and they'll play the hand for all it's worth.

Second, there's the somewhat obscure data that, although they haven't been hitting with enough consistency to smash their way out of a paper bag in recent days, they're still sending those runs across. And, in the final analysis, they pay off on runs. For instance, Gehrig, just emerging from his worst slump of the season, still shows 27 runs batted in for the final month; DiMaggio with the same run-making output, and Dickey with 25.

Yanks 3-1 Favorites To Beat Giants and Retain World Title

Attendance and Financial Figures for Single Game and for Entire Set Likely to Be Shattered at Second "Nickel" Battle—McCarthy's Big Hitters Have Slumped.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Featuring the two greatest "money" clubs in the game today, little old New York's second straight baseball civil war for championship stakes figures to be a lot more fun for the paying public this year than it was in 1936.

Yank Sluggers Off Form.

The Yankees are carrying nowhere near as much "wim, wigor and witality" into this year's series as they took into the '36 affair. For a month their chief apple-knockers, Lou Gehrig and DiMaggio, have been far off form. The lineup generally has been in the doldrums, with the single exception of belting Bill Dickey, best catcher in the league and a .377 slugger for the last month.

The Giants, on the other hand, have been murdering the ball for weeks, paced by three wallopers in Johnny McCarthy, the first-base youngster who found himself after a dismal start and has been hitting a mere .355 in his last 28 games; dashing Dick Bartell, the sparkplug shortstop, and Jim Ripple, doing an astonishing job of filling Mel Ott's rightfield shoes, the Polo Grounders have been poison to most of the senior circuit's top pitchers.

Southpaws Have Defeated Yanks 19 Times in '37

WITH Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton, a pair of southpaws, regarded as the Giants' best bets in the coming world series with the Yankees, it is interesting to note that the men of Joe McCarthy have a winning percentage of only .536 against lefthanders this season.

Facing southpaws, the American League champions have won 22 games, while dropping 19. Against right handers, the team's record is 78-33, a winning percentage of .703.

King Carl and Melton, Two 20-Game Winners, Will Be Terry's Reliances

Too, this power has been backed up by an adept elbowing staff, headed by two 20-game southpaws, the Great King Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton, alternately dubbed "Mountain Music" and "Mickey Mouse," and assisted no end by the comeback of Prince Hal Schumacher who was more or less a total loss until after mid-season.

But despite this case for the Giants, there are several factors that can't be overlooked before you "pays your money and takes your choice."

First, of course, is the fact that the Yankees are always there when it counts. In the past two seasons, while topping the American League like a tent, they have lost only one series when it counted—to a second-place team. They may nose-dive against the pushovers, but make the stakes high enough and they'll play the hand for all it's worth.

Second, there's the somewhat obscure data that, although they haven't been hitting with enough consistency to smash their way out of a paper bag in recent days, they're still sending those runs across. And, in the final analysis, they pay off on runs. For instance, Gehrig, just emerging from his worst slump of the season, still shows 27 runs batted in for the final month; DiMaggio with the same run-making output, and Dickey with 25.

Gomez Having Best Year.

Third, the Yankee pitching staff isn't altogether made up of easy marks. Lefty Gomez, for instance, is having his best year, was the first 20-game winner of the season, and in his last 52 innings has allowed just 31 hits, seven runs, has fanned 40 batters, and has pitched three shutouts in six starts. Red Ruffing, back in form after an early September slump, and Monte Pearson, apparently recovered from the sore arm that afflicted him most of the season, also can't be overlooked.

As a whole, the series flinging festivities will probably be dominated by southpaws more than ior any classic in the past 14 years. The chances are Gomez and Hubbell, both portsiders, will go in the first game and Melton will tangle with right-handed Rufus the Red Ruffing in the second.

In the catching department, Dickey has it over either of his rivals, Captain Gus Mancuso, hitting .280 and probable receiver for the Giants' left-handers, or Harry the Horse Danning, having a great year after riding the Giant bench for some six seasons.

At first base, Gehrig, hitting .353 for the season and driving in 155 runs, is too much for comparison with McCarthy.

The Giants, however, have the edge in the rest of the infield department. Their shortstop-second base combination of the firebrand Bartell and Burgess Whitehead not only outshines the Frank Crosetti-Tony Lazzeri duo of the Yankees, but stands with the best in baseball today. Crosetti is having a poor year, and Lazzeri, aging rapidly since last season, is no longer the "Poosh-'Em-Up" Tony of other campaigns. About all he has left is his field strategy, at which few can equal him, and his uncanny ability to produce in the clutch.

At third base, the Giants have Mel Ott, outfield veteran of a dozen years but forced to the hot corner by necessity. Opposed to him is Red Rolfe, vastly improved at his job. These two are the pick of the third sackers in the game today so far as fielding is concerned. O.t, of course, is the heavier hitter, particularly in the last six weeks, but Rolfe still is a handy man to have around with a bat in his hands.

The outfield division, naturally, is overshadowed by DiMaggio. Although he has been "off his feed" for the last several days, there's still no member of the fly-chasing squad of either club to can compare with th s deadpan dynamiter, .345 batter for the season, 158 runs batted in and big league home run king of the year. His opponent in center field will be either Lou Chiozza, fast but somewhat less than a eavy hitter; Wally Berger, the ex-Boston belt or Hank Leiber, a powerful pounder when he's right, which he hasn't been recently.

In right field, Ripple for the Giants and George Selkirk for the Yanks appear to be a toss-up. Selkirk is just recently recovered from an injured shoulder that had him in the hospital for weeks, but has returned to his walloping days in the last few days. Ripple, inserted in right when Ott moved to third base, has done a fine job both afield and at the plate, where his season mark is .318, compared to Selkirk's .331.

Moore Better Than Hoag.

The other outfield berth, in left, shows a definite Giant advantage. The National Leaguers have Jojo Moore patrolling there and, in addition to his patrol duties, he's the classiest batting leadoff man in the business. Myril Ho g has the job for the Yankees and i having his best season. Definitely the series starter since Jake Powell, batting hero of last fall's post-season fuss was taken ill, Hoag has batted for .303 through the campaign and has shown a marked ability for the sun field—although he's still no Jojo Moore in the outer garden.

Southpaw Hopes of Giants Against Yankees

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Rudy York Equals Homer Mark for First Year Men

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—The Cleveland Indians, led by Hal Trosky who hit two home runs, pounded three Detroit pitchers today for a 12 to 5 victory in the first game of the season's final series.

Mel Harder went the route for Cleveland, winning easily despite a three-run Tiger rally in the eighth inning. Rudy York, Detroit rookie catcher, drove his thirty-fifth home run of the season over the left field wall in the seventh.

York's homer enabled him to tie the record for circuit blows made by a player in his first year in the American League. Trosky set the mark in 1934.

WHITE SOX ROUT MILLER AND WIN FROM BROWNS

By Herman Wecke

The Browns will go down in the history of the 1937 major league pennant campaigns as the only club to lose 100 games. They dropped No. 106 yesterday, when the White Sox won, 8 to 2, but they'll go down in the records as the official "clinchers" of places for rival clubs in the American League.

It will be remembered that the Yanks, though being beaten, clinched the pennant while opposing Jim Bottomley's men; then the Tigers clinched second place while battling the tail-enders and yesterday, the Sox all but made third place certain with their victory. If that's not a record, it should be.

Jimmy Dykes trotted out all his regulars in the battle with the Browns. Apparently that third place share of the World Series spoils means something to Jimmy and the other Sox. With the Browns it was different. Bottomley's club is going nowhere except to finish the season today. So Bill Miller, who spent the hot summer months at San Antonio, was given a chance on the hill.

Everything Goes Wrong.

Bill retired the first five batters to face him, but after that everything went wrong. When he was finally retired by a hit-less pinch-hitter in the fourth, he had yielded six runs and seven hits, besides walking four men and hitting another.

Trouble began for Miller in the second after two were out, when he hit Bonura and Connors beat out a safety to deep short. Both runners were in motion and scored on Sewell's single to center. A pass to Kreevich and singles by Walker and Appling added one to the Sox total in the third.

In the fourth, they really poured it on Miller. Conners hit into the left field bleachers for a home run. Sewell walked and Whitehead had a hit when Bell ran in instead of out on his pop fly. Hayes' single scored Sewell and after Whitehead had been forced at the plate, two passes forced in another run.

The Sox continued their assault against Bill Trotter, and when hostilities finally ceased, the club had 9 safeties including homers by Connors and Walker, in addition to drawing 7 bases on balls, which certainly did not hurt the cause of the Windy City nine.

Johnny Whitehead toiled for the Sox. He was in hot water several times, but the Brownie hitters could not come through with base hits at needed times. The Browns had 11 hits.

Trotter walked Hayes in the sixth and Walker followed with a drive on top of the right field pavilion to bring the Sox total to eight.

Singles by Vosmik, Allen and Barkley gave the Browns a run in the fourth. In the eighth, Allen, Barkley and pinch-hitter Davis bunched hits for the Browns' second marker.

BROWNIE NOTES.

THE White Sox have won more games than the Browns, but the St. Louisans proved themselves better track athletes in a meet between members of the two clubs here yesterday, winning five of the six events on the program.

The feature was a 50-yard dash between the rival managers, with Jim Bottomley beating Jimmy Dykes in a driving finish in 6.1 seconds. Ethan Allen and Red Barkley finished one-two in the base-circling contest. Allen's time being :14.1 and Barkley's :14.2. Barkley with a throw of 415 feet won the distance throwing contest easily, with Luke Appling second. Hennessey, Brownie pitcher, won the accuracy throw from Walker of the Sox. The only Chicago victory came in the fungo hitting contest with Rigney and Lyons taking the two places. Rigney's best drive was 403 feet. Tommy Heath beat Les Tietje in a dash for slow men.

In an inter-city baseball game before the field activities, Granite City won from the Venice nine, 5 to 2.

Howard Mills and Les Tietje are scheduled to pitch for the Browns in the final games of the season this afternoon. Lee will hurl for the White Sox in the opener and Dietrich in the second. First game at 1:15 o'clock.

The Ladies' day attendance included 1033 cash customers.

The Fairmount Park race meeting still has a week to run but the days have packed the plant the past four weeks are willing to vote Professor Paul champion of the show.

The honest Professor in four previous starts here had done everything expected of him but yesterday he accomplished more than his friends had hoped for. Last away from the post, the star of the Jim Chesney stable was seventh at the half mile pole, fifth at the stretch turn and first at the finish. He ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting and came within three-fifths of a second of the track record. He was clocked in 1:11 4-5.

Few in the crowd of 16,000 realized that Professor Paul was still a factor as the field of nine turned into the home stretch. With only a quarter of a mile to go, he still had four horses to beat and the pacemaker, Zuni, was running like a rabbit. Clear of interference, and under a strong ride by Herbie Simmons, The Professor thundered up the stretch, on the outside of the leaders, wore down, in turn, Cristate, his stable mate, Porcellus, and finally reached Zuni. Then Zoic, the even money favorite, had stolen the lead and it was not until the last stride that Professor Paul caught him in a spectacular drive.

Virginia J. Second.

There was only a head between the first two and Zoic, third, was only a nose behind Virginia J. Zuni had fallen out of it.

Professor Paul's forte is not sprint racing. He wants a mile or more. For this reason and the further fact that he had to carry 124 pounds, he went to the post at comparatively long odds—8 to 1. Zoic, on the strength of his really impresive record on eastern tracks this summer, was the even money favorite and Little Nymph, long overdue, the second choice.

It was a day of fast racing. Earlier in the program Leros, an old campaigner, had run five and one-half furlongs in 1:05 4-5, within four-fifths of a second of the track record. In spite of threatening weather, the stands were packed to capacity.

The secondary feature, fifth race on the card, resulted in an impressive victory by Bunny Martin, a handy filly recently acquired by Mrs. R. J. Murphy stable. Runaway Target set all the pace, with Bunny Martin in second position from the time the field went around the club house turn until they passed the half mile ground. On the far turn, Johnson let Bunny Martin run and she passed Runaway Target on the outside. Coming up the stretch, the filly faltered a little but Johnson gave her a touch of the whip just once and she bore down for another drive and won by a length and a half over Runaway Target.

Woodlander, the 9-to-5 favorite, was outrun all the way and finished third. The start was turned into a little rodeo by the wild post actions of the filly Margaret Jones and when she bore out at the club house she practically eliminated Playdems, which had the outside post division.

William Palmer Wins.

William Palmer returned from his good race of two weeks ago to whip a good band of two-year-olds in the opening event of the program. In his previous start, he was coming fast in a five-and-one-half furlong race and was beaten only a half length by Bomount. Yesterday, he galloped to a four-length victory while Bomount was staggering up the track, beaten 20 yards. They were first and second choices in the betting. It was Countess Flora, Soaring Witch and Grand Day that offered the only competition to William Palmer. Soaring Witch, first to set the pace, showed no inclination to quit, and may stick it out the next time.

Coming up the stretch, Bobby Vedder permitted Soaring Witch to swerve into Grand Day, and although neither horse had a chance to catch the leader, the stewards penalized Vedder, setting him down for three days.

Leros ran like a champion in taking the second race, in which he ran the fastest five and one-half furlongs of the meeting. Simmons got the nine-year-old horse off well but had to overtake Pana Franka, and then Sun Dora, before getting out on top on the turn. Thereafter the old fellow coasted. It was his third victory in six starts here.

The crowd thrilled to the efforts of horses and jockeys as three contenders came through the home stretch head and head in the third race. Gladess carried most of the money and looked a winner from the head of the stretch until Sonny San and Bar Play forged forward to catch her at the sixteenth pole. The three raced on even terms to the last jump when Andy LoTurco forced an extra effort out of Bar Play, next the rail, to win by a nose. Gladess had a head advantage over Sonny San in a camera finish.

Checks Overlooked.

Paralda and Night Flower looked so good to the bettors when the fourth race turned up that they overlooked a horse called Checks which had turned in some good efforts in sprint races in her previous 11 starts this year. Her last start, in which she was beaten 18 lengths by Ruffday, soured the public and they let the Van Buskirk filly go to the post at odds of 25 to 1.

Charming Sir and Night Flower forced the early pace while Checks was far back in the field. She was seventh on the far turn and got up as far as fourth at the head of the stretch and then ran over horses. In a camera finish she nosed out Charming Sir. Night Flower was third. Checks had been running in somewhat better company, but the dismal effort of last Monday, when she finished last in a seven-horse field, was enough to keep the bettors off her. It was a strange form reversal.

Simmons came right back in the seventh to hand-ride Fair Mole to victory, his third of the afternoon. It was Rockhurst and then Amijo that attempted to steal the race by setting the pace, but Simmons was never far back with Fair Mole, fourth in the back stretch and third on the turn. At the finish he was drawing away from Amijo and Off Duty. Fair Mole closed at 3 to 1.

The last race went to the slow starters while the early pacemaker folded up. Bud Smith, with Willie Johnson up, was the winner followed by Racketeer which came from an absolute last to a strong second, just a length short of victory. Oxford Lad, after setting the pace all the way through the mile journey, weakened in the last 70 yards to finish third. The winner refunded $11.20, and the quinella paid $67.60.

Bomount	112	5	3	4¹	4½	6½	6⁵	H. Simmons	3.10
Avenue S	107‡	3	4	3¹	7⁷	7⁴	7²	S. Roberts	3.30
Sunny Mac	106	4	8	8	8	8	8	J. Leyland	15.40

William Palmer, much the best, but slow to begin, moved up rapidly after three-eighths, disposed of Soaring Witch with comparative ease and drew away to win with plenty in reserve. Countess Flora, away fast and close up from the start, dropped back at the far turn, went wide into the stretch, but came again and finished gamely. Grand Day improved his position gradually, was fortunate to get through on the inside and closed strongly.

$2 mutuels paid: William Palmer, $7.20 win, $4.20 place, $3.80 show; Countess Flora, $10.20 place, $6.80 show; Grand Day, $8.40 show.

SECOND RACE—$500 claiming, three-year-olds and up, five and one-half furlongs. Start good. Won easily, place driving. Went to post 2:36½, at post 2 minutes. Winner br. g. 9, Nuncircal-Parley. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $390; second, $70; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time—:22.4, :47, :59.3, 1:05.4.

HORSE.	Wt.	PP.	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.
Leros	117	3	2	6²	4³	1¹	1³	H. Simmons		2.30

Clasp	114	1	3	4¹	6²	7	7	T. Reno		19.90

Leros, much the best, overcame early interference, was taken to the outside, and, improving his positino rapidly, overtook Sun Dora in the last three-sixteenths and won well in hand. Sun Dora displayed her usual burst of early speed, set a swift pace, but was no match for the winner. Between Bells raced well up for the entire trip and displayed a fine effort.

$2 mutuels paid: Leros, $6.60 win, $3.60 place, $2.80 show; Sun Dora, $3 place, $2.40 show; Between Bells, $2.80 show.

THIRD RACE—$500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post, 3:06. At post 4 minutes. Winner, ch. g. 5, Mere Play-Barbara Barton. Trained by J. Klucina. Value to winner $390, second $70, third $30, fourth $10. Time, :23, :47.3, 1:13.4.

† Field.

Bar Play, strongly handled but lacking early speed, came between horses during the last quarter, responded well to strenuous asking in the last stages and wore down Gladess in the last few strides. The latter, always close up, assumed the lead with a rush, approaching the stretch, but was unable to withstand the winner. Sonny San, under hard riding throughout, held on well.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Bar Play, $13.80 win, $5.40 place, $4.80 show; Gladess, $3.80 place, $3.40 show; Sonny San, $4 show.

FOURTH RACE—$500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:39; at post 4 minutes. Winner ch.f.3, Jean Valjean-Laguna. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $390; second, $70; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time: :24 4-5, :49, 1:14, 1:41 2-5, 1:48 3-5.

Furled Flag	106	7	6	6¹	7¹	9	8¹	9	R. L. Vedder	13.20

Checks, outrun badly for three-quarters, improved his position rapidly when taken to the outside in the stretch, and, responding to hard urging, was up in the last stride to wear down Charming Sir. The latter was taken under light restraint early, trailing the closest pursuit of the pacemaker, moved to the front with the lead and continued gamely, but was not good enough. Night Flower went into the lead rounding the first turn, set the pace under light restraint for five-eighths. $2 mutuels paid: Checks $55.40 win, $27.40 place, $10.20 show; Charming Sir $22.40 place, 2[illegible] show; Night Flower $4 show.

FIFTH RACE—$700, allowances, three-year-olds and up, one mile and seventy yards. Start good for all but Playdems; won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:12½; at post 3 minutes. Winner, b. f. 4, Bunting-Shang. Trained by O. Clelland. Value to winner, $535; second, $100; third, $40; fourth, $25. Time, :23, :47.3, 1:12.3, 1:39.2, 1:43.2.

Margaret Jones	95	5	4	5³	6	6	6	6	H. Brack	45.30

Bunny Martin, cleverly rated off the pace, but always close up, went around Runaway Target at the stretch turn, drew into the lead after a mild duel and had something left at the end. Runaway Target, under alert handling, was hustled into the lead quickly, saved ground while setting the pace under mild restraint, but was unable to withstand the challenge of the winner when put to pressure. Woodlander, closer to the pace than usual during the first half mile, dropped back but came fast during the stretch drive.

$2 mutuels paid: Bunny Martin, $7.80 win, $4.00 place, $3.00 show; Runaway Target $5.20 place, $4.40 show; Woodlander $3.20 show.

SIXTH RACE—$1000 handicap, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post 4:45; at post 3 minutes. Winner ch. f. 4, Justice F.—Anna Goss. Trained by J. Chesney. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time—:22.4, :45.4, 1:11.4.

a Mrs. J. Chesney entry. b B. Hernandez entry.

Professor Paul, slow to begin and out run for three-eighths, made up ground rapidly thereafter under strong urging, lost ground entering the stretch but closed with a rush and was up in the last few strides. Virginia J. saved much ground while working his way up, responded well to vigorous shaking up in the stretch and showed a good effort. Zoic forced the pace for a half mile assumed a slight lead, but was not good enough to retain his advantage.

$2 mutuels paid: Professor Paul $12.00 win, $5.00 place, $3.00 show; Virginia J., $12.60 place, $4.80 show; Zoic $3.20 show.

SEVENTH RACE—$500 claiming, three-year-olds up, one and one sixteenth mile. Start good. Won driving, place same. Went to post 5:17, at post ½ minute. Winner br. g. 7, Sand Mole-Virginity. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $390; second, $70; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time— :24.4, :48.2, 1:14, 1:41, 1:48.

Rockhurst	104	6	5	1h	2½	5h	8		G. O'Bryan	9.10

Fair Mole, away fast, was taken back off the pace, moved up rapidly on the outside in final three-eighths, bumped Amijo when taking the lead in the last furlong and held on gamely. Amijo was in close quarters going to the first turn and taken up, recovered quickly, went to the front with a rush and showed a good effort. Off Duty lost considerable ground when forced to go around horses while working her way up.

$2 mutuels paid: Fair Mole $6.20 win, $4.80 place, $3.20 show; Amijo $5.40 place, $3.40 show; Off Duty $4.00 show.

EIGHTH RACE—$500, claiming, three-year-olds and up, one mile: Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post, 5:46½; at post 2½ minutes. Winner, br. g. 6, Trundle-Allee Davis. Trained by H. Van Buskirk. Value to winner, $390; second, $70; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time—:25, :49, 1:14, 1:41.2.

† Field.

Bud Smith, going in his best form, was taken between horses while working his way up, swerved to the inside in the stretch when put to severe pressure, and, continuing gamely, drew clear in the last sixteenth. Racketeer broke slowly, was far out of it for five-eighths, made up ground rapidly thereafter. Oxford Lad set the pace under pressure and weakened when challenged.

$2 mutuels paid: Bud Smith, $11.20 win, $5 place, $4.20 show; Racketeer, $10.80 place, $6.40 show; Oxford Lad, $4.40 show.

ROUGH TIME CAPTURES CAPITAL HANDICAP IN RECORD TIME

HIGH FLEET IS SECOND AND GO HOME THIRD IN $7500 RACE

Victor Is Clocked in 1:11 for Six Furlongs, Two-Fifths of a Second Better Than Best Time for Event.

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 2.—Setting a new record for the race, Rough Time, owned by J. Yancey Christmas of nearby Upper Marlboro, Md., drove to a half-length victory over A. J. Joyner's High Fleet in the nineteenth running of the $7500 added Capital Handicap. The Maeshire Farm's Go Home was third by a nose in front of the heavily weighted Preeminent, the property of Hal Price Headley, and installed as slight favorite over the winner. Performing before an opening day crowd of 20,000 and under perfect racing conditions, Rough Time ran the six furlongs in 1:11, a fifth of a second over the track record and two fifths of a second better than the best time for the race, set by Sation in 1934.

Sired by Grand Time, a horse purchased by Christmas at a Bowie auction for $50 and out of the mare Grand Trap, which never went to the races, Rough Time added $7075 to his earnings, which now total $24,130. Christmas refused an offer of $10,000 for the 3-year-old yielding last year.

Rough Time was away in the first flight but Jockey McCombs, suspended for rough riding in the previous race, was not lured into trying to match the fast pace of Speed to Spare. The Vanderbilt colt opened an advantage while McCombs rated Rough Time along, going to the first turn.

Swinging for the stretch, Speed to Spare began to fade and High Fleet and Preeminent moved into contention. McCombs then asked Rough Time for speed and the gelding responded to dispose of Speed to Spare and to draw out. However, High Fleet gained momentum and began to close the gap gradually through the stretch, but under McCombs' strong handling, Rough Time stuck to his guns long enough to reach the wire.

Jockey Charlie Corbett and the Millsdale Stable made it a "double" for the program when Giant Killer came from behind to win by a length and a half over E. R. Bradley's Bootless in the Cumberland Handicap, sixth event on the program. Maeriel was third in the group of six operating at a mile and a sixteenth. Maeriel, Rainland and Yellow Tulip battled for the pace while Giant Killer and Bootless lagged in the rear of the field to the wtretch. Bootless moved up to take the lead but could not match Giant Killer's closing rush. The winner, clocked in 1:44 4-5, paid an $11 mutuel.

Robert Blattner Retains High School Net Title

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 2.—Robert Blattner, of Beaumont High School, St. Louis, retained his state high school tennis singles crown today by defeating Jim Johnson, University City, 6—1, 7—9, 6—1, in the final round.

Beaumont High also won the doubles' championship when George Hendry and Bernard Manic easily defeated the Clayton High School team, Robert Bassett and Allen Yeager, 6—1, 6—4.

CORNELL GIVES COLGATE A BIG SURPRISE, 40-7

By the Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Far above Cayuga's waters burst an almost unbelievable flood of touchdowns today.

Two burst in the first period, another in the second and three more in the fourth as Carl Snavely's big red Cornell football team swamped and drowned Andy Kerr's once-feared Red Raiders from Colgate by the almost unbelievable score of 40 to 7, before a stunned and almost slap-happy crowd of 15,000 spectators.

The defeat, worst suffered by the cagey Kerr since he took command of the Red Raiders in 1929, was turned into a rout and a Colgate washout in the final period, as Brud Holland, Cornell's junior Negro end, whirled and swirled through the shell-shocked Colgate line for three touchdowns.

Cornell outgamed Colgate 219 yards to 63 at rushing alone and didn't need to toss a single lateral pass. The only thing that looked like hocus-pokus was the score and many Cornell fans still can't believe that.

Two Long Texas Aggies' Marches Beat Manhattan

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Texas A. & M. College made two spectacular marches of 44 and 73 yards to touchdowns in the final period to defeat Manhattan College, 14-7, in their intersectional game here today. Nesrhta and Rogers scored the Aggie touchdowns.

GEORGIA U. DEFEATS S. CAROLINA, 13-7

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 2.—The highly rated Georgia Bulldogs proved their superiority over the South Carolina Gamecocks here today, winning, 13 to 7, before a crowd of 15,000.

NEW GUNNERS IN LEAGUE GAME AT ASHLAND, KY.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ASHLAND, Ky., Oct. 3.—The new St. Louis Gunners will open their season in the Midwest Professional Football League here this afternoon against the Armcos.

Coach Dick Frahm will select his starting lineup from a squad which includes John Murphy, Al Goss and Walter Rauth, ends; Ed Radzvits, Tiger Flowers, Red Blanton and Buck Vogel, tackles; Ben Putnam and Luke Riley, guards; Tex Reynolds, Ralph Shaw, Walter "Tiny" Bartanem, Al Londe, Ed Hubbard, Joe Spudich and Jess Fallett, backs. Frahm himself will take over a position in the backfield.

The Armcos are a highly-touted team. Most of their players are from Vanderbilt, Texas Christian, Texas U., Southern Methodist and other Southern colleges.

The outstanding player on the Southerners' squad is Sam Agee, versatile back, who is a product of Vanderbilt. He was one of the collegians' outstanding performers in the All-Star-Chicago Bear game held in Dallas in September.

James "Bud" Yates, general-manager of the Gunners, who accompanied the team here, stated that the St. Louis team would open its home season next Sunday afternoon, with the Indianapolis Indians furnishing the opposition.

Budge Extended By Frank Kovacs

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 2.—Donald Budge moved today toward a likely fifth meeting this year with Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, by Downing Frank Kovacs in a semifinal match of the Pacific coast tennis championships.

Kovacs, junior star from Berkeley, gave Budge a tough workout and the Oakland red head dropped the second set before taking the match, 6—4, 5—7, 7—5, 6—2.

Budge will meet the winner of tomorrow's other semifinal singles match bringing together Bobby Riggs, Los Angeles ace, and Von Cramm.

The German has lost to Budge in the European Davis Cup final, the Wimbledon championships, the national championships, and the recent Pacific Southwest Tournament in Los Angeles.

Margot Lumb of England moved into the semifinals of the women's singles by defeating Sylvia Henrotin of France, 6—3, 3—6, 9—7.

Gerald Stratford, San Francisco, and Kay Stammers, English southpaw ace, defeated Jiro Yamagishi, JJapan, and Anita Lizana, Chile, American singles champion, in a mixed doubles semifinal match, 6—2, 6—2.

Budge returned to pair with Wayne Sabin of Portland, Ore., and reach the finals of the men's doubles by downing the English Davis Cup team of George Hughes and Charles Hare, 6—4, 6—4, 12—10.

MICHIGAN STATE BEATS MICHIGAN BEFORE 71,200

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 2.—A Michigan State football team that was superior in everything but fighting spirit conquered the University of Michigan for the fourth successive year today, 19 to 14, deferring Wolverine hopes of a revival of past gridiron glories.

A crowd of 71,200 fans, largest ever to witness the intra-state classic, saw State's Spartans score their first touchdown in the third period on an 89-yard dash by Eugene Ciolek, junior halfback. Twice during the thrill-packed second half, the Spartans came form behind after Michigan had matched their first two touchdowns to lead by the margin of an extra point conversion.

Ciolek's long touchdown dash from State's 11-yard line, behind perfect interference, came on the seventh play of the third period. A few minutes later, Michigan returned a punt to State's 46 and the veteran halfback Stark Ritchie opened up a passing attack, with Hercules Renda, sophomore halfback, and Johnny Nicholson, end, receiving, which took the ball to the six-yard line. Then Ritchie threw a touchdown pass to Renda and Fred Trosko placekicked the point that put Michigan ahead.

Before the third period ended, Johnny Pingel, State's brilliant triplethreat halfback, tossed a 42-yard pass to Ole Nelson, junior end, for a touchdown. Ed Pearce converted and the Spartans led 13 to 7.

Early in the final period, a weak punt gave Michigan the ball on State's 45. A 15-yard pass, Trosko to Renda, took the ball to the 25 and Doug Farmer, senior quarterback, took Trosko's next pass. He fell a foot short of the goal line but Trosko plunged over, converted the extra point and Michigan again led.

The Pingel-Nelson aerial combination gave State its winning touchdown a few minutes later. Pingel tossed the ball nearly the width of the field to Nelson, who skirted the sideline on a 40-yard journey to the goal line.

State gained 270 yards to Michigan's 101 and completed eight forward passes for 189 yards compared with Michigan's five passes for 70 yards.

DISTRICT SENIOR GOLF TOURNEY SET FOR NORMANDIE, OCT. 11

Eddie Grubb, Norwood Hills Country Club, will defend his senior golf championship of the St. Louis District in the annual tournament which is scheduled to be played at Normandie Golf Club, Monday, Oct. 11.

The event is a medal play tournament at 18 holes and the championship trophy is presented to the player making the lowest gross score.

A four-man and a two-man team contest on a handicap basis is held at the same time.

The touranment is open to golfers 50 years of age and older.

Bonner Miller is chairman of the tournament committee and entries may be made to him or to Normandie Golf Club.

CORKBALL TOURNEY TO BEGIN TODAY

The National Corkball Association of St. Louis will conduct its United States tournament, starting this morning, at Sisler's North Side Park, Grand and Florissant.

Three games are scheduled, the Handlings playing the Five-Points in the opening game at 9:30 a. m. The 905's, defending champions, oppose the Werner team at 11 a. m., and Pevely Dairy and Marion teams meet in the feature at 1 p. m.

Soccer League Opening.

Special ceremonies will mark the opening of the St. Philip Neri amateur soccer league at Penrose Park this afternoon. The Reds oppose the McNamara Market in the opening game, starting at 1:45 p. m., and the Blues oppose Sunrise Tavern in the second game. Robert Turner, superintendent of public recreation, will kick off the first ball. Chick Ruane will referee.

Gene Fehlig Keeps State High School Golf Championship

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 2. — For the second consecutive year, Eugene Fehlig, St. Louis University High School student, is the State High School golf champion.

Fehlig shot a 139 score in the 36-hole tournament at the University of Missouri here today to better the 143 score turned in by John Geiss, of McBride High School, St. Louis, who ranked second. Others finished as follows:

Buelsnyder, Clinton, 145; Chris Vlemmas, University City, 147; Jimmy Emmons, Fulton, 148; and Robert Clark, Kansas City Paseo, 148.

The team championship, held last year by St. Louis University High, went to Kansas City Paseo as Clark's score, paired with that of Richard Hunt, totaled 298 for the low. University City (Chris) Vlemmas) and Malcolm Asckenasy) was second, with 309, while St. Louis McBride (John Giessand, Harold Paschang) tied Clinton (Buelsynder, George Scott) for third.

Gehrig Gets 200 Hits for Eighth Year of Career

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

BY hitting a homer and a single in today's game against the Boston Red Sox, Lou Gehrig joined the "200-hit Club" for the eighth year of his career.

The single, coming in the seventh inning following the homer in the sixth, was the Yankee star's 200th hit of the season. By reaching the mark this year, Gehrig is now within one season of Ty Cobb's record of having collected 200 or more hits for nine years.

He is now tied with Paul Waner, who set a new National League record several days ago by collecting his 200th hit for the eighth year of his career.

C. B. C. Defeats Webster, 13-6

Christian Brothers High School's football team scored its second consecutive victory of the season yesterday afternoon as the Brothers, led by Bob Casey and Dick Pfuhl, lettermen from last year's team, came from behind to defeat the Webster Groves Statesmen, 13 to 6, at Webster.

Trailing 6 to 0 at the end of the first quarter, as the result of a touchdown pass from Dan Pacey to Norm Murphy, Webster halfbacks, the Brothers scored once in the second quarter and again in the fourth, converting the try for the extra point after the second touchdown, to send Coach McArter's Webster eleven to defeat in its initial game of the season.

Pfuhl scored C. B. C.'s first touchdown, crossing the goal from the two-yard line, after his teammates had rushed the ball to that point. A pass from Casey to Bob Drier, C. B. C. end, accounted for the fourth quarter score. Casey kicked the extra point.

Jack Reck, Webster fullback and punter, kept the Brothers in their own territory during most of the first half with long punts, but he suffered a "charley horse" shortly after the start of the second half and Webster was unable to threaten during the final two periods.

FLYERS OBTAIN JACKSON FROM CHICAGO TEAM

By Harold Flachsbart

The St. Louis Flyers hockey club, seeking to strengthen its forward department for the coming American Association season, yesterday announced the purchase of Harold Jackson, right winger, from the Chicago Blackhawks of the National League.

Jackson, not related to the William "Red" Jackson who played with St. Louis six seasons ago and last year appeared here with the Minneapolis Millers, is the second player purchased by the Flyers from Chicago within the past two weeks. The first was Wildor La Rochelle, veteran center.

The new Flyer, who is 22 years old, was born in Windsor, Ontario, where he played amateur hockey, and made the jump direct from amateur ranks to the Blackhawks. He weighs 170 pounds. He appeared in St. Louis when the Blackhawks played the Flyers in an exhibition game last season, but did not play regularly with Chicago in National League games. Records show he scored eight goals in 1936-37 National League competition.

Manager Johnnie MacKinnon of the Flyers plans to use Jackson on a forward line that will have La Rochelle at center and the high-scoring Bobby Burns at left wing, but that will depend on how the three work together when the training season starts, about Oct. 20 or 21.

The team still is trying to land two other forwards before the season starts, MacKinnon intimated. Frankie Ingram is on the trading block, else is to be sold. The Flyers will use Fletcher Dailey, a St. Louis boy, as practice goalie during their training season.

The opening of the American Association season has been advanced from Nov. 11 to Nov. 9, with Minneapolis scheduled to oppose the Flyers in their opener on that date at the Arena. The second local game is to be played at the Arena Nov. 11 against Kansas City.

Edward Steffen, president of the Flyers, said that it was still uncertain whether the Flyers would train in St. Louis. The University of Illinois rink at Champaign is still under consideration, as is the Pla-Mor rink in Kansas City. If ice is available in the Arena, however, players will be asked to report here Oct. 20.

Boston College Wins, 21-7, Over Kansas State

By the Associated Press.

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 2.—Boston College unleashed a terrific running attack against Kansas State here today, to defeat the Wildcats, 21-7, before 15,000 fans.

Two sustained marches of 69 yards each resulted in the opening scores. Tom Guinea swept the visitors, right end for 12 yards to get the first touchdown and Ira Jivelekian passed from the Kansas 22 to Tony Di Natale, B. C., captain for the second counter. Jivelekian place-kicked both extra points.

In the final period, Junior Speer, Kansas halfback, intercepted a pass and raced it back 45 yards to the 32. With Elmer Hackney doing most of the carrying, the Staters picked up two first downs before a pass, Cleveland to Mulheim, went for 11 yards and a touchdown.

With only seconds left to play, Jivelekian intercepted one of Cleveland's passes and ran 45 yards for the final touchdown.

BOYS' CLUB CAPTURES JUNIOR BASEBALL TITLE

The Boys' Club Indians withstood a last-inning rally to defeat the Duffins, 6 to 5, yesterday afternoon and capture the Municipal Athletic Association junior baseball championship. The game was played at Fairgrounds No. 1.

It was the second victory in the series for the Boys' Club.

WEBER WINS TWO EVENTS IN STATE CASTING MEET

Joe Weber captured two state titles in the Missouri State Fly and Bait casting tournament yesterday at Carondelet Park, winning both the ⅝-oz. and ¼-oz. events. He is holder of the ⅝-oz. distance casting record of 374 feet. Weber also finished second in the wet fly event and third in the salmon fly cast.

Bob Piros, local entrant, took first place in the salmon fly event with a heave of 166 feet. Dr. C. K. Higgins of St. Louis is the new state champion in the wet fly distance event with a cast of 130 feet.

Probably the most inspiring feat of the day was the heaves of National Champion Weber in the ⅝-oz. plug casting event. Standing near home base on baseball diamond No. 1 at Carondelet Park, Joe tossed the plug, trailed by the line, over a hill to left center-field. Joe did it three times in a row for an average of 373, one foot under his own record for a single long distance cast and beating the national record of 357 feet held by Walter Willman of Orlando, Fla. However, Weber does not set a national record because state meet marks are not recognized by the national association.

Yesterday's results:

⅝-OUNCE DISTANCE CASTING.

	Total.	Av.	Long Cast.
J. S. Weber	890	296 2-3	313
Bradden	801	267	270

MUNY BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIPS MAY END TODAY

Three teams will participate in a doubleheader program of the Municipal Baseball Association championship elimination games, starting at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at grounds No. 1 in Fairground Park. In the first game, the Koebel Democrats and St. Agathas will play off a tie game, after which the winner of this contest will oppose Fouke Fur at 3:00 o'clock.

The twenty-fifth annual Muny eliminations can be ended this afternoon if Fouke truimphs. Both of the other clubs have one defeat against their record and another loss, according to the double knockout system in effect this year, will reduce the field of survivors to two clubs.

If the first game winner today then upsets the Fouke team, which is undefeated in the eliminations, then a final contest will remain to be played next Sunday between the same two squads.

The play-off of the tie was occasioned by the 3-3 draw St. Agatha and the Koebels played last Sunday, the game being called in the ninth inning because of darkness.

Both managers plan to string along with their starting twirlers of a week ago who allowed a total of only 10 hits between them. Eddie Kramer restricted the Koebels to a mere four hits while his mound opponent, Erwin Fauth was permitting St. Agatha only six hits.

Manager Ollie Klockenbrink of Fouke will have two fresh hurlers to send to the mound in the second game and believes he will be just as confident of a good performance from either one—Martin Schlereth, a lefthander, or Bob Altmansberger, a righthander.

The Fouke team already owns a victory apiece over the other two clubs on today's program. Three weeks ago the Y. M. C. A. No. 1 League champions won from the Democrats, 11-3, while two weeks ago they bowled over the St. Agatha Sodality leaguers, 10-6.

61 Passes Thrown As Arkansas and T.C.U. Tie, 7-7

By the Associated Press.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 2.—Two pass crazy football teams, Texas Christian University and Arkansas, pitched through four periods to a 7-7 draw before a sell-out throng here today.

Sixty-one passes sailed through the air. One was good for 75 yards and Arkansas' touchdown. The aerial magic played a big part in the Texas Christian score but it was Davey O'Brien, the 147-pound Christian sniper, who finally plunged over. Every period was an invitation to heart disease but the second packed the biggest punch—and all the scoring.

Long Jack Robbins, Arkansas' triple threater, stood back on his own 23-yard line and fired a bolt which Jim Benton, end, snatched on the 45-yard mark. Three T. C. U. tacklers shelled him, but on the way down he spied big Ray Hamilton, his fellow end, lateraled and Hamilton tore out 55 yards for a touchdown. Owen's place kick was perfect.

The Christians tied the score shortly after the kick off. Johnny Hall, 180-pound halfback, took turns with O'Brien in slicking off tackle for first downs.

O'Brien paused long enough to whip a 24-yard pass to Don Looney, end, and then went back to running plays that carried to the five-yard mark. There the little quarter back, who did everything expected of him in filling Sammy Baugh's old position, bucked the line four times himself and finally dived over.

It was O'Brien's kicking foot that tied the score.

CUBS CARVE "MELON" INTO 26 FULL SHARES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. — The Cubs carved their "melon" today and 26 full shares and a twenty-seventh, divided five ways, resulted. In a clubhouse meeting presided over by Capt. Gabby Hartnett, they voted a full share of both their second place and city series money to Manager Charlie Grimm, Trainer Andy Lotshaw, Traveling Secretary Bob Lewis, Coaches John Corriden and Roy Johnson and to the 21 players who were with the team the bulk of the season.

Clubhouse boy Joe Bernardi was voted a half share and players Carl Reynolds, Bob Logan, Al Epperley and Walter Higbe, who reported after Labor day and are ineligible for the city series, an eighth-share each.

A $520 purse was taken up for the assistant clubhouse boy and a $280 purse for the batboy.

MOTORCYCLE RACE AT ALTON TODAY

A Tourist Trophy race for motorcycles will be run today at Kelly's Farm near Alton, Ill., time trials starting at 10 a. m. and the races at 2 p. m. The track is one and a quarter miles north of Northwestern Military Academy on College avenue.

Entries include Bruce Wallers, Peoria defending champion; Eddie Price and George Domyan, East St. Louis; Harry Lee, Kansas City, and Roy Paul, Reading, Pa.

Fox Hunting Season Opens.

THE annual State meet of the Missouri State Fox Hunters Association, Inc., will be held at Eldorado Springs, Mo., beginning tomorrow for a five-day session, Four gold loving cups will be awarded—for the best all-age dog tn the field; to the first prize hound in the stud dog races, to the grand champion bench show hound and to the local association furnishing the best entertainment.

Camping grounds are provided in Mineral Springs Park. Entries must be filed by tomorrow morning with either James A. Slade or L. F. Gingery. The first official runs will be made Tuesday morning with a few preliminary heats tomorrow.

Bird dogs will have their days on No 4, 5 and 6, when the Missouri State Field Trials Association will hold trials on the game preserve north of Sturgeon. Dr. E. B. Riley of Moberly, secretary of the association, will supply entry blanks and information.

Fishing Rodeo Opens.

Cool weather and ideal fishing conditions will greet the several thousand anglers entered in the first annual Lake of the Ozarks Fishing Rodeo, which begins tomorrow morning at 4 o'clock, according to a dispatch from M. N. White of the Executive Committee. Although conditions are ideal, fish are not biting as well as in other years.

Bass and crappie are biting fairly well and one exceptional catch of a six-pound small mouth was made over the docks of E. C. Lowell at Camdenton.

Two scales from each small and large mouth bass caught during the rodeo, together with length, girth, kind of fish and contestant's registration number will be filed with Dr. G. B. Herndon of the Conservation Commission. This data will be used for a study of fish growth in the Lake of the Ozarks.

Anglers Galore.

From Charles E. Jackson, Acting Commissioner of Fisheries of the Department of Commerce, comes the interesting note that fishermen spent $8,002,887.31 for anglers' licenses in the United States during 1935-36. This is an increase of $993,878.21 over the amount spent in 1934-35. During this period their numbers increased from 5,121,320 to 5,832,448, an all-time high.

The sale of non-resident anglers' licenses in the United States increased approximately 35 per cent; tourists licenses, 33 1-3 per cent. Resident licenses increased 14 per cent and women's and children's licenses, 20 per cent.

One State, Kansas, practically doubled its revenue from the sale of fishing licenses, while the sale in Mississippi were up 300 per cent. Decreases in revenue occurred in six states. Missouri issued 249,786 licenses. This included tourist and combination hunting and fishing permits.

Ozark Bill to Bennett Springs.

W. W. Ellis, known as "Ozark Bill," former St. Louis newspaper man, has been named superintendent of the Bennett Springs State Park in Dallas and Laclede counties, under the State Park Board.

Fingerling Distribution Starts.

Missouri's five major fish hatcheries have started the harvest and distribution of the year's crop of fingerling game fish to the public lakes and streams of the State and to waters open to the public for fishing without charge and governed by regulations of the Conservation Commission. The total output probably will exceed that of last year if the increased production attained at Lake Taneycomo hatchery is maintained. The Taneycomo hatchery, first to be worked, produced 435,000 fingerling bass, crappie and bluegill, an increase of 110,000 over last year.

Dr. G. B. Herndon, chief of State hatcheries, hopes to complete this week, inspection of waters for which applications have been made. Other state hatcheries to be worked include the Lake-of-the-Ozarks on the Glaize; Forest Park, St. Louis; Chesepeake, Lawrence County; Sequoia, Springfield; newly impounded public lakes and ponds, of which Missouri has some 200, will be given consideration in the fish allotments.

Trout spawning activities at Bennett Spring and Roaring River State Parks, home of the Rainbows, will start soon after the close of the trout fishing season, Oct. 31.

Deer Tags Ready.

Deer tags will be distributed next week to county clerks in readiness for the three-day open season, Oct. 28, 29 and 30. The deer tags may be issued to licensed resident hunters upon payment of the fee of $1.50, and to non-resident hunters upon payment of the fee of $50.

This will be the sixth open season on deer in Missouri since 1925 when the white-tail deer of the State so dwindled in numbers as to become nearly extinct. Since the open season in 1932, the legal hunting take has varied from as low as 63, four or more point bucks in 1933, to slightly over 100 for one year since that time. Last season the legal kill was 82.

Doves Are Leaving.

Dove hunters, who still have another month and a half to legally take the mourners, are being forced to follow the birds into the southern part of the State. An early migration seems to be in order this year and within another 15 days the great majority of the birds are expected to be found in the southern foothills of the Ozarks somewhere across the Arkansas State line. Those who are getting occasional birds in this vicinity are staying close to the grain fields and river bottoms where the birds roost and have a meeting place.

RIGHTMIRE AND JACKIE WILSON BOX HERE OCT. 12

By W. J. McGoogan

Everett Young Rightmire, Sioux City (Ia.) featherweight boxer, has been matched for a 10-round contest with Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh Negro, for the main event of Jack Callahans program to be held at the Auditorium, Columbus day, Oct. 12, the matchmaker announced last night.

It used to be that Rightmire was a regular visitor to this city and it seemed he boxed here every month but he has not been seen in St. Louis since Nov. 17 last when he defeated Midget Wolgast at the Auditorium.

Previous to that he had defeated Paul Lee here twice, Jimmy Buckler, Armanda Sicilia, Nick Camarata and boxed a draw with Joey Alcanter.

This year Rightmire has been doing most of his boxing on the Pacific Coast where in six bouts of record he won three, lost two and boxed one draw.

He defeated Petey Hayes twice and Nicky Beal, lost to Tony Chavez and Sammy Angott and boxed a draw with George Hansford.

Wilson boxed Leo Rodak here twice recently, one bout at 10 rounds and one at 15. Both contests ended in draws.

Jackie is a busy sort of battler but failed to display a great punch against Rodak. Rightmire, as St. Louis fans kell know, is a polished workman in the ring but he, too, has never shown a knockout punch in his bouts here or elsewhere.

Callahan said he likely would sign two other 10-round bouts and a five-round preliminary.

Shimuka vs. Koverly.

Matchmaker Bill Schwabe has signed Shunichi Shimuka, clever Japanese, to meet George "Kayo" Koverly, former fighter, in the feature finish wrestling match on Thursday night's wrestling card at the Coliseum. Four bouts will serve as supporting affairs.

CENTENARY IS 7 TO 6 VICTOR OVER S. M. U.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 2.—Centenary's Gentlemen shoved the Southern Methodist Mustangs about the Cotton Bowl today, winning, 7 to 6, over a team which dozed through several opportunities.

The invaders from Shreveport had the advantage throughout the contest which was drab until the early part of the third period.

In that period Bynum hurled a long aerial to Huddleston on the S. M. U. 43. Two plays carried to the 7 and Stone, a replacement, went over through the line. Clark kicked the extra point that proved the victory margin.

Midway of the fourth S. M. U.'s air attack finally clicked. Crouch took Jack Morrison's short pass on the enemy 20 and eased over untouched.

Encouraged by visions of victory, the Mustangs fired steadily from above but the long heaves of Morrison, son of Ray Morrison, former S. M. U. coach, were batted down by opponents. Four went incomplete just as the game ended.

Shamrocks Soccer Workout.

First practice of the season for the Shamrock soccer club will be held this morning on the north field at Public Schools Stadium, it was announced by Business Manager Bill Lehman. He has asked that any unsigned players who wish to try out for the club should report to Coach Alec McNab at the field.

MUNY FOOTBALL TEAMS TO PLAY OPENING GAMES

The third annual campaign of the Municipal Football Association will open with a doubleheader this afternoon starting at 1:30 o'clock on the drill grounds, near the Jefferson Memorial Tennis Courts in Forest Park.

The first game will be between the Sentinel Chapter DeMolay and the Food Center Stores, while at 3:30 o'clock the Weber-Deibels oppose the Lennemanns. A fifth team, the Stockham American Legion Post No. 245 draw the first bye.

Defending Muny champions, the Weber-Deibels, managed and coached by Les Haney, will be making their first appearance since they won the 1936 tilt from the Food Centers. The Foods won the first muny title in 1935 when they were known as the Quadrangle Club.

While all the clubs will offer many new faces and figures, the Sentinels are basically the 1936 Central A. C., again led by Russell H. VanDusen; the Lennemanns practically are the White Line Laundry, again led by Player-Manager Les Herman. The Stockhams are an entirely new group of players.

The schedule this year includes a 10-week's card of doubleheaders, with one team each week drawing a bye. A split season provides for winners of the two halves to play off for the title.

Haney's Weber-Deibels, mostly Beaumont High School stars, will offer a fast backfield in Merle Sanguinett, Charles Pollyschultz, Bill Hawkins and J. Zeaman. The Lennemann's, recruited from the ranks of Cleveland alumni, are augmented by Carl Woods, former St. Louis University backfield star.

Benny LaPresta and Bill Montgomery are leading the Food Centers and have gathered their players from 13 different schools and colleges. Last year's backfield quartet of Charles Burgess, Larry Schottel and Cliff Marik will be familiar and quarterbacked by a new man, Joe Kestranek of Roosevelt. Van Dusen's Sentinels will offer several new players and place early backfield dependence upon Harry Ferebee, MacKoprivica, William Roth and Jim Jones.

The schedule:

Today and Nov. 14.—Sentinel vs. Food Center, 1:30 p. m.; Lennemann vs Weber-Diebel, 3:30 p. m., at Forest Park; Stockham vs bye.

Oct. 17 and Nov. 21—Stockham vs. Lennemann; Food Center vs. Weber-Deibel; Sentinel vs. bye.

Oct. 17 and Nov. 28—Weber Deibel vs. Stockham; Lennemann vs. Sentinel; Food Center vs. bye.

Oct. 24 and Dec. 5.—Sentinel vs. Weber-Deibel; Food Center vs. Stockham.

Oct. 31 and Dec. 12.—Lennemann vs. Food Center; Stockham vs. Sentinel; Weber-Deibel vs. bye.

New York U. Beats Carnegie in Final Minutes, 18-14

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 2. — New York University presented a bold but smooth overhead attack today to pull a football game out of the fire in the final two minutes of play and defeat Carnegie Tech, 18 to 14. Bernard Bloom, quarterback, heaved a 53-yard pass directly into the arms of Joseph M. Sivak, substitute right halfback from nearby Apollo, Pa., for the victory.

Twenty-one thousand sweltering fans saw the non-shrinking Violets come back with a vengeance after a first half which was all Carnegie. N. Y. U. gambled on the arm of Eddie Boell, substitute quarter, for their other two touchdowns.

Early in the fourth period, Boell passed and plunged from midfield to the three-yard stripe where he flipped to Milton Miller, center, for a touchdown. In the previous quarter Boell passed to George Savarese for a score.

In the second period, Merlyn Condit, sophomore quarterback for Carnegie, caught a pass on N. Y. U.'s 30 and raced to the three-yard line. Fullback Jack Lee carried it over. A few minutes later Lee intercepted a pass and returned it to the N. Y. U. 34-yard line. After a few short passes and plunges, Jerry Matelan, halfback, went over.

SOUTH SIDE CATHOLIC PLAYS McBRIDE TODAY AT WALSH STADIUM

South Side Catholic High School's football team which, under the coaching of Syl McIntosh, former St. Louis U. star, has won the two games it has played this year, meets Toddy Kamp's McBride team at Walsh Stadium this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

South Side won from Ritenour, 6-0, and defeated Chaminade last Sunday, 13-0. McBride has lost its two starts this season to Roosevelt and Cleveland, each by a score of 6-10.

Kamp says his team is one which expects to show improvement in each game.

Probable lineups:

Oklahoma Wins Over Rice, 6 to

NORMAN, Ok., Oct. 2.—The Oklahoma Sooners amazed 8000 spectators and befuddled their more than two-score perspiring opponents by turning in a 6-to-0 victory over the highly-favored Rice football team today.

Muffling the touted Rice aerial attack, and themselves unleashing a short, sharp passing game, the Sooners whipped over a touchdown in the first period, threatened periodically thereafter, and in the fading minutes blocked a vicious ground assault which carried the Owls to the very threshold of the Oklahoma goal.

The touchdown march, engineered by blond Jack Baer, and culminated by a 14-yard pass from him to Pete Smith, started on the Oklahoma 44, and was marked by brilliant behind-the-line passes from Baer to Merrell and Gene Corrotto.

12TH AND LOCUST BUILDING TAKEN BY IGOE CONCERN

Furniture House Leases Nine-Story Structure at Southeast Corner of Intersection for Ten Years.

By Berry Moore

Obviously, attracted by its commanding position, the Igoe House Furnishing Co. has acquired a 10-year lease on the nine-story building at the southeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Locust street, for a furniture store on a comprehensive scale.

The building is owned by the Culver Realty Co. which was represented by Arthur S. Martin & Son, realtors. Cornet & Zeibig, Inc. handled negotiations for the Igoe Company. Rental involved was not disclosed.

Dominating one of the most important intersections in downtown St. Louis, the building has a frontage on Twelfth of 76 feet and on Locust of 100 feet, extending to

12-ACRE TRACT BOUGHT BY CULVERT CONCERN

Illinois Co. Acquires Site on Terminal Railway in East St. Louis for Plant.

The Nelson Concrete Culvert Co., with headquarters at Urbana, Ill., has acquired a tract of 12 acres situated at Twenty-sixth street and McCausland boulevard, in East St. Louis, as a site for an extensive plant. Served by the Terminal Railway, it is regarded as one of the most attractive sites on the East Side for industrial purposes.

Construction of the building, together with the installation of the plant equipment, will be under the supervision of C. S. Ward of Paris, Ill., and T. J. Walsh of Urbana.

The Nelson company specializes in the manufacture of concrete pipe. Work is to be pushed with a view to starting production within the next 90 days.

BUYS OLD RESIDENCES ON FORSYTHE BLVD.

Woman Acquires Property at 7729-7733 Forsythe With 100 Feet Frontage.

Two old residences, with adjoining lots at 7729 and 7733 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, owned respectively by Ben Tzinberg and the Menard sisters, have been acquired by Mrs. Josephine Medart. The lots have a total frontage of 100 feet by a depth of 212 feet. Edward L. Bakewell handled the negotiations.

The purchase was made as an investment, with plans for remodeling and converting the buildings for business purposes, to conform with the requirements of lessees. The two and three story structures are situated 50 feet east of ground of the north side of Forsythe recently purchased by Oliver R. Burkart as a site for an automobile sales building, to be occupied by the Fred Evens Motor Sales Co. under a 10-year lease.

Situated between Bemiston avenue and Hanley road, the property is only a block and a half east of the Clayton Courthouse, which forms the pivot of the Clayton business center.

The two-story residence at 7734 Forsythe, recently purchased by Henry Brinckwirth is being remodeled for a Clayton branch for Peck & Peck, Inc., a women's ready-to-wear concern, whose downtown store is at 817 Locust street.

DeSmet Carton, proprietor of Carton's Gift Shop at 4914 Maryland avenue, has rented space in a building at 7718 Forsythe, recently acquired by Nathan Altman, through Saul Dubinsky, vice-president of the Dubinsky Realty Co., from a client of Bakewell. Large quarters in this building have been leased to the Suzanne, Inc., a women's apparel store, for a branch to be operated in connection with its downtown store, and to provide for which a large addition is to be built to the present structure.

AIR-CONDITIONING CONCERN ADDS TO PRESENT QUARTERS

The Associated Air-Conditioning Corporation has enlarged its quarters in the building at 3327 Lindell boulevard, situated at the Locust street cut-off ,to include large second floor space which it has taken under a long lease. Negotiations in this connection were handled by the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co.

The additional space was made necessary to provide for increased requirements of the concern's engineering service and sales departments.

The Associated Corporation represents well-known manufacturers of heating, ventilating and air-conditioning equipment, and is organized to co-operate with architects and engineers in the designing and developing for all types of buildings.

70-YEAR-OLD HOME IS BEING WRECKED

North Side Brick House Being Razed to Save Taxes.

A 70-year-old brick residence at 3626 Natural Bridge avenue, one of the first buildings to be constructed in the North St. Louis neighborhood, is being torn down to save taxes.

Harry Heckel, grandson of the builder, Charles Heckel, rope manufacturer who died many years ago, told a Post-Dispatch reporter the masonry of the foundation was laid by Capt. James B. Eads, builder of Eads bridge and a friend of Charles Heckel.

The Heckel family acquired the land on which the residence is situated from the Jesse G. Lindell estate, in 1858. Natural Bridge avenue, now a thoroughfare, was then known as St. Charles Plank road.

Harry Heckel's mother, Mrs. Anna Heckel, owner of the building, recalled that the house was a temporary residence about 30 years ago for several members of the Cardinal baseball team, which then played in Robison Field at Vandeventer avenue and Natural Bridge. Rube Ellis, Fred Beebe, Rebel Oakes, Mike Mowrey and other players of the time were among the residents.

GRADWOHL JEWELRY CO. TO OPEN STORE ON EAST SIDE

The Gradwohl Jewelry Co. has leased a store room at 248 Collinsville avenue in the main business block of East St. Louis. A new front along modern lines is being installed.

PLANS FOR 18-UNIT APARTMENT ON WESTWOOD DRIVE

Air-Conditioned Structure to Be Erected North of Oxford in Blue Ridge Terrace.

Lichtenstein Estate, Inc., has completed plans for the erection of an 18-unit apartment building on the west side of Westwood drive, north of Oxford drive in Blue Ridge terrace, Moorlands Addition. Three stories in height, the structure will be in the Georgian style of architecture and on an ultra modern scale.

The apartments will alternate in four and five room suites, with one and two baths. Every modern appliance will be installed and no innovation omitted. An air-conditioning system, with unit control, is to be installed. Construction is scheduled to start within the next week or two.

Lichtenstein Estate, Inc., has just completed construction of a nine-unit apartment building on the west side of Westwood, south of Buckingham drive, which is exciting more than ordinary attention. Leases have been signed for four of these apartments now being decorated in pastel colors.

Apartment Just Completed.

The newly-built structure contains six 5-room and three 4-room units. Each apartment has double and triple exposure. There are inlaid hardwood floors in the living room, modern electric fireplaces, built-in book niches, Venetian blinds throughout, colored bathrooms, including ladies' vanities and tiled showers. Lighting effects are indirect, kitchens are tiled, electric refrigeration, gas ranges, and ventilating fans of the latest type are furnished.

The entrance to the building is paneled in birdseye maple. Top marble stair cases with aluminum rails from the entrance to the top floor are an attractive feature.

The basement contains a 15-car garage, entered by an electrically operated door, and is steam heated.

Another innovation is a laundry with a large drying room adjoining, also electrically operated.

Owns 221 Front Feet.

Lichtenstein Estate, Inc., owns 221 front feet on the west side of Westwood between Buckingham and Oxford drive, purchased before the sheer advance in ground values in Moorlands Addition, for apartment projects. The tract has an extensive depth, abutting land fronting on Hanley road, the first street west of Westwood drive.

RESIDENCES AND OTHER PROPERTIES TRANSFERRED

A. T. O'Rourke, vice-president and salesmanager reports that the H. A. O'Rourke organization reports sales closed during the last two weeks as follows: Double flat at 3621-23 Hartford street, to George and Catherine McCullen; single flat at 6431 Alabama to Henry J. Mueller; modern bungalow on Oleatha avenue, 6037 to Leopold Verderber; bungalow, 5747 Finkmann avenue to Thomas Hughes; flat at 2326 Rutger to William M. Johns; bungalow on Utah street, 3951 to Claude Clay; cottage on 6435 S. Kingshighway to Alton and Angela Causey; 5044 Idaho avenue, bungalow to Harold Meier; bungalow to Joseph L. Doran, situated in the county on 8706 Gravois road; bungalow at 6224 Goener to Francis F. and Hannah E. Lebrun; 6043 Carlsbad avenue to Albert Steck; 40-acre farm near Wentzville, Mo., to Robert and Mary Hoffman; flat at 3717 Ohio avenue to Henry G. Schneiderjans; lot on Delor street to Helen McGartland; farm in St. Libory, Ill., to Karl Weil; flat at 2754 Caroline street sold to Frederick E. Nedderhut.

WASHINGTON TERRACE HOUSE LEASED BY HAL H. ANDERSON

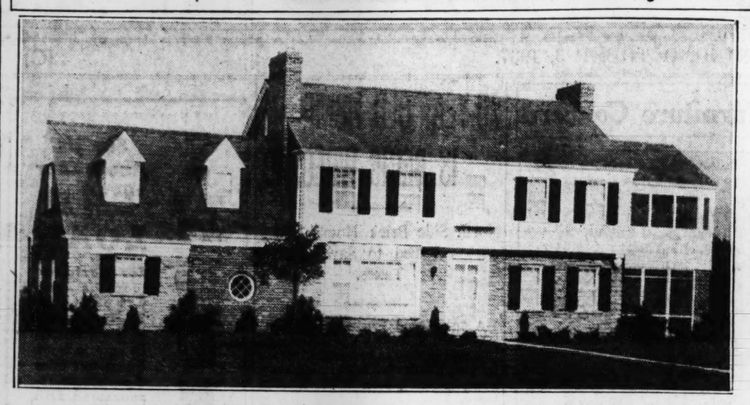
The residence of John B. Denvir at 15 Washington terrace has been leased by Hal H. Anderson for two years. Three stories in height, the structure is one of the most imposing in this addition.

The first floor consists of large living room, sunroom, den, lavatory, kitchen and pantry, dining room and reception hall. There are four master rooms, three bathrooms, dressing room, sleeping porch, three maids' rooms with bathroom, and sleeping porch on the second floor. The ballroom on the third floor is an attractive feature.

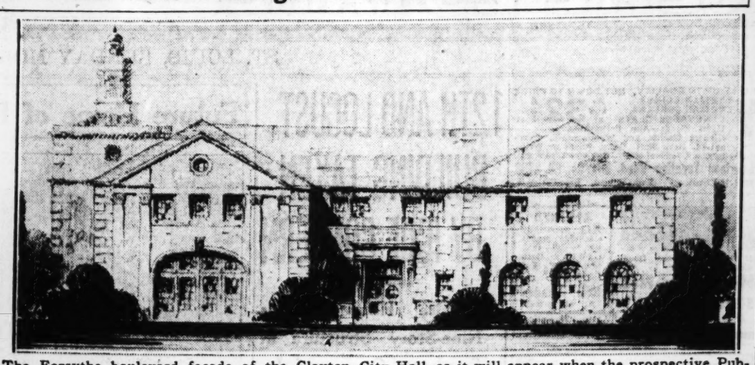
The premises include a three-car garage with living quarters above.

Anderson is an executive of the Shell Petroleum Corporation. Denvir was represented by A. T. & Whitelaw Terry. Arthur Goldman Realty acted for the lessee.

Residences Recently Sold and Buildings Planned



Residence at No. 3 Ridgetop on the south side of Clayton road east of Lay road, purchased by Dr. Maurice J. Lonsway through the Dimmitt, Rickhoff, Bayer Real Estate Co. Uhlemeier Building Co., builder.



The Forsythe boulevard facade of the Clayton City Hall, as it will appear when the prospective Public Library wing is added. It was announced yesterday that construction would start at once, with bond funds and a Federal grant. At the left is the tower of the older portion and the entrance to the existing fire engine house. The library will form a long wing to the east. The City Hall is at the northeast corner of Bemiston avenue.

CITY BLOCK OF FLATS ON MADISON BOUGHT

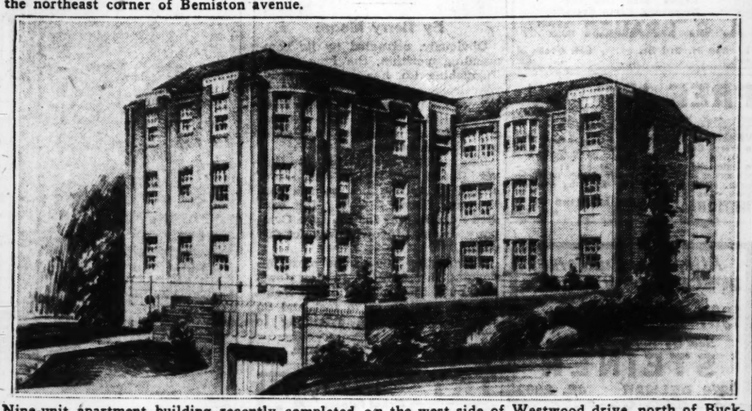
Twenty-Eight Units of Two-Story Buildings Between Twelfth and Thirteenth.

A row of two-story buildings comprising 28 four and five room flats on the south side of Madison street, extending from Twelfth to Thirteenth streets, has been acquired by Jack Dubinsky & Sons. The site has a frontage of 301-feet, extending the entire length of the block, by a depth of 112 feet.

Annual rentals of the flats approximate $5000. No mention of the price paid was made.

The seller was represented in the transaction by the Hemmelman-Spackler Real Estate Co.

Residence recently completed at 8621 Rosalie avenue, Summit Park, purchased by Ray R. Emerson from the Fairfax Construction Co., which erected it.



Nine-unit apartment building recently completed on the west side of Westwood drive, north of Buckingham drive, Moorlands addition. Lichtenstein Estates, Inc., builder and owner.

TWELFTH & LOCUST BUILDING TAKEN BY IGOE CONCERN

the north and south alley of the block. It comprises approximately 76,000 square feet of available floor space, including the basement. Equipment includes three passenger elevators, sprinkler system and steam heating plant. There are canopied entrances on both the Twelfth and Locust street sides.

Substantial in construction, the building was one of the largest of its type available in the downtown district when the lease was executed. It was formerly occupied by the Trorlicht-Dunker Carpet Co.

Outstanding Concern.

The Igoe Company, one of the outstanding concerns in the local retail furniture field, will utilize the entire building, including the basement, after extensive alterations have been made. A modern facade, two stories in height, extending to the third floor level, is to be installed. The pillars at the front of the building will be replaced with steel beams. The interior will be redecorated throughout, while the exterior will be washed and refaced. The canopied entrances are to be refurbished. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy Feb. 1, 1938.

The new Twelfth-Locust establishment will replace the concern's present store at the southwest corner of North Grand boulevard and St. Louis avenues. It will be a strictly retail furniture house, without the usual wholesale and extraneous merchandising departments.

Standing midway between Olive street and Washington avenue, the new building is grouped with the Jefferson Hotel, gracing the northwest corner of Twelfth boulevard and Locust street and is directly opposite the building of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. on the west side of Twelfth, extending from Locust to Olive.

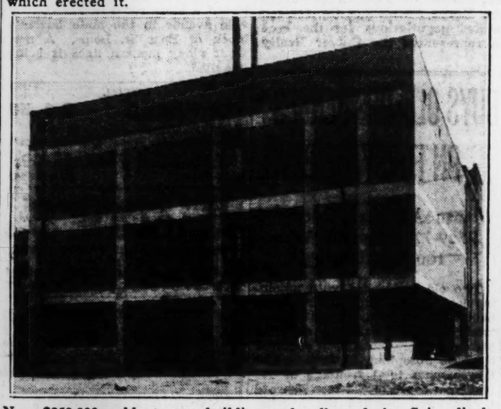
A Bixby Holding.

The northeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Locust street is occupied by one-story buildings of negligible value, as contrasted with that of the site. It was acquired 15 years or more ago by the Essex Investment Co., a holding company of the late W. K. Bixby, as an eligible site for a pretentious structure. Divers ambitious skyscraper projects were designed for this corner in the palmy days prior to 1929, to collapse with the event of the depression.

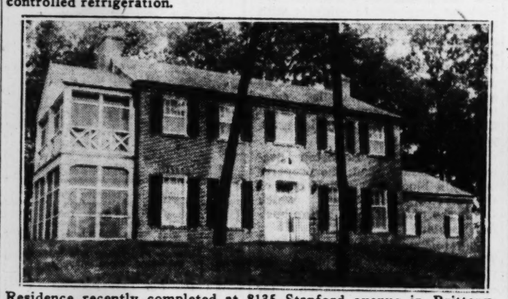
Peter F. Igoe is president of the furniture company. Associated with him are his two sons, William J. Igoe, treasurer and merchandise manager, and Thomas J. Igoe, secretary and treasurer.

The senior Igoe established the furniture house 35 years ago in a one-story store, with a 15-foot front, at 2235 Cass avenue. In 1912, the store was removed to new quarters at Cass avenue and Twenty-third street, and later to North Grand and Natural Bridge avenues. In 1928, it moved to its present quarters at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and St. Louis avenue, which its occupies under a lease expiring this year.

Peter F. Igoe is a brother of William Igoe, former president of the St. Louis Police Board.



New $250,000 cold storage building and cellar of the Griesedieck Brothers Brewing Company at Nineteenth and Shenandoah avenue. Construction is of steel and concrete. It is equipped with Praudler glass enamel-lined storage or "Maturing" tanks and with electrically-controlled refrigeration.



Residence recently completed at 8135 Stanford avenue in Brittany Woods, University City, for C. A. Muhl. Bradley Prater, general contractor. Construction financed by Laclede Bond & Mortgage Co.

BUILDING ON 3305 WASHINGTON LEASED BY H. T. SELL & CO.

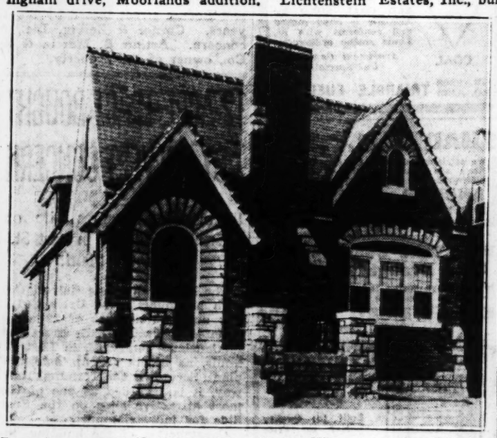
H. T. Sell Co., manufacturers' supply agent, has leased the one-story building recently completed at 3305 Washington avenue, occupying a lot 25x125 feet. It is of substantial construction, with concrete floors.

The lease, which is for a long term, was negotiated by the Henry R. Weisels Co. H. A. Waldman is the owner of the building, which was erected as an investment.

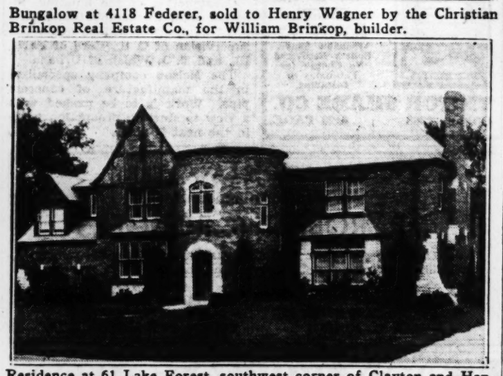
KIRKWOOD RESIDENCE BOUGHT BY G. C. TAYLOR

Mary Potter Love, Inc., reports the sale of 420 East Madison avenue, Kirkwood, for Walker MacMillan to G. Chadbourne Taylor, with the Mississippi Barge Co. A remodeled old house with beautiful grounds. The first floor contains living room, dining room, kitchen, maid's room and bath. There are three master bedrooms and bath on the second floor.

MacMillan is an officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. Both parties to the transaction were represented by Mary Potter Love, Inc.



Bungalow at 4118 Federer, sold to Henry Wagner by the Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co., for William Brinkop, builder.



Residence at 61 Lake Forest, southwest corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, purchased by Jay Rubenstein from Wilbur Brown. The Mississippi Valley Trust and the Apex Realty handled the transaction.

CHICAGO REALTOR TO SPEAK AT EXCHANGE MEETING HERE

They Never Stop Coming to The House Built With WET LUMBER

Wet lumber is bound to shrink. In addition to cracked walls, it causes opening of joints; it will make doors and windows stick; it will throw joists out of line putting waves, openings and squeaks into floors. It will make roofs leak. Lumber that is dry is safe. It will not cause these severe damages. Be sure that the home you buy is built with dry lumber.

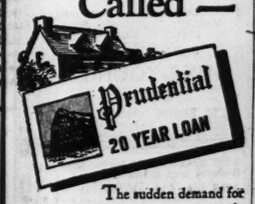
Never Called —



The sudden demand for a large sum of money puts most people in a difficult position. Yet such demands are often the lot of mortgage borrowers.

Not so under Prudential's 20-Year Loan plan. One mortgage carries straight through with small monthly payments covering both interest and repayment of principal. Low payments? Certainly; they will range from $6.60 to $7.17 per month per thousand dollars of loan, depending on the type of property mortgaged.

Better investigate today, no matter whether you are building, buying or refinancing your present home. The Prudential's long-standing, helpful lending policy embraces other types of mortgage loans also. One will exactly fit your needs.

SAVINGS AND LOAN MORTGAGES INCREASE

37 Federal Associations in Missouri Also Show Rise in Assets for 1937.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. — The Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced Wednesday a $7,422,245 increase in direct reduction mortgage loans made by the 37 Federal Savings and Loan Associations in Missouri for home construction and financing the first eight months of the year.

The Board said the total advanced from $9,797,383 to $17,401,628. Assets of the same institutions were reported to have increased from $29,087,415 to $31,384,122 in the eight-month period.

Federal Savings and Loan Associations in Missouri are Brookfield, Carthage, Centralia, Chillicothe, Clayton, Farmington, Independence, Joplin, Kansas City, Kirkwood, Liberty, Moberly, Overland, Pine Lawn, Raytown, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Springfield and University City.

MODERNISTIC STORES IN UNIVERSITY CITY PLANNED

Three new modernistic stores with parking facilities have just been completed on the southeast corner of North and South road and Gannon avenue by the Blumenfeld Realty Co. One of which has been leased to the Ladies' Home Bakery Co., for West End branch.

FARMERS ARE BUYING LAND

Farm income is up. Land prices still below normal. Whether for investment to live on—now is the time to buy. Farms in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas offer real opportunity. These listed are typical:

143 acres, Montgomery County, Missouri, 1 mile to New Florence; on State paved Highway No. 19; school and church at New Florence; R. F. D., telephone and power line available; two-story 8-room house, barn; watered by cisterns, pond and branch; gray silt loam; lies gently rolling; 100 acres tillable, 40 acres tillable pasture; 3 acres timber; $4,500.

80 acres, Montgomery County, Illinois, 2½ miles to Nokomis; on a public road, 2½ miles from hard road; 2 miles of school, 2½ miles to church; frame house with basement, barn; watered by well and springs; R. F. D.; gray silt loams; lies gently rolling; 80 acres tillable; $5,000.

Easy terms—¼ cash, rest in 20-year loan at 5%. No trades. Write for free list of farms now, naming the counties in which you are especially interested.

Never Called —

The sudden demand for a large sum of money puts most people in a difficult position. Yet such demands are often the lot of mortgage borrowers.
Not so under Prudential's 20-Year Loan plan. One mortgage carries straight through with small monthly payments covering both interest and repayment of principal. Low payments? Certainly; they will range from $6.60 to $7.17 per month per thousand dollars of loan, depending on the type of property mortgaged.
Better investigate today, no matter whether you are building, buying or refinancing your present home. The Prudential's long-standing, helpful lending policy embraces other types of mortgage loans also. One will exactly fit your needs.

Seventeen Sold in the Last Three Weeks!

Geyer Terrace
$16.74 NET

A value sensation in beautifully designed four, five and six room country homes on sites of from ¼ to ⅓ of an acre. Lots are 276 feet deep and have a frontage of from 50 to 70 feet on Geyer Rd., one of the county's most exclusive residential roads.

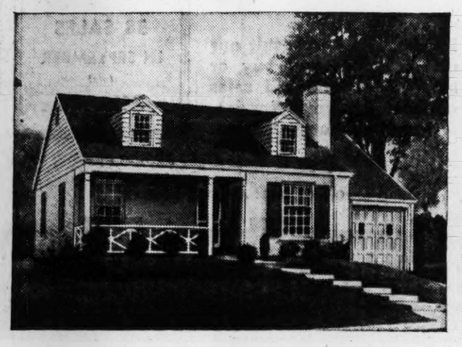
Every house has an entrance hall and guest coat closet, extra large rooms and unusual closet space. Kitchens are 12x14. Bathrooms have tiled floors and Briggs Beautyware fixtures.

Geyer Terrace Homes are guaranteed against defective materials and workmanship! They have poured concrete waterproofed foundations; prefit weatherstripped windows; full insulation; Mueller heating plants; 10-year guaranteed roofs.

Geyer Terrace is in the city of Kirkwood, convenient to grade schools and transportation. Both fire and police protection are included in taxes. All utilities including gas are installed and paid for. There are no special assessments of any kind.

Priced from $4500 to $5650, no extras! Total monthly payments on a $4500 Geyer Terrace Home, including interest, payment on the $3300 mortgage principal, taxes and insurance, on the F. H. A. plan, is $30.84 (of this amount only $16.74 is carrying charges, you are actually saving an average of $14.10 every month!) This amount monthly completely pays off the mortgage.

Geyer Terrace Homes are on Geyer Rd. (first road west of Lindbergh Blvd.), south of Clayton Rd., near Manchester Rd. Open daily and evenings.



Summit Park
$23.12 NET

Five-Room Brick Homes in a new community—thirty-nine Summit Park Homes sold since June 1st!

Large front porch; reception hall and guest coat closet; natural wood burning fireplace with Colonial mantel; Venetian blinds in living and dining rooms; two spacious bedrooms; six large closets; tiled bathroom with Briggs Beautyware oversize fixtures; kitchen tiled and equipped with lifelong scratch-proof sink cabinets, exhaust fans, and inlaid linoleum.

All Summit Park Homes are guaranteed against defective materials and workmanship! They have poured concrete water-proofed foundations; air-conditioned heat; 4-inch Insul Wool insulation; prefit weatherstripped windows; attached garages with overhead doors; 10-year guaranteed roofs; colorfully decorated oil painted walls; distinctive Colonial lighting fixtures and hardware.

Summit Park is highly restricted with a central sewer system, paved streets and sidewalks installed and paid for. It borders the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line (one fare downtown) and the new Mark Twain grade school. Churches and shopping center within one block.

Priced $5900 to $6100, no extras! Total monthly payments including interest, payment on mortgage principal, taxes and insurance, on the F H A plan, is $43.62 (of this amount only $23.12 is carrying charge, you are actually saving an average of $20.50 every month!) This amount monthly completely pays off the mortgage.

Take North and South Rd., between Clayton and Manchester Rds., to Eulalie Ave., then one block east. Open daily and evenings.

Country Side

Some coupes are Rolls-Royces—and Fairfax Construction Company offers the ultimate in Country Side five-room homes. Every quality feature of the finest country homes in St. Louis County is incorporated! On a 70-foot lot, with beautiful trees.

Living room 21x14 with paneled walls, recessed bookcases; Colonial mantel with marble face and hearth; dining room 12x13 with paneled walls and bay window; two master bedrooms with wardrobe closets; 7 closets in all; oversize Briggs Beautyware fixtures in tiled bathroom; sink cabinet 10 ft. long in tiled kitchen; 2-car garage with overhead doors.

Country Side Homes are guaranteed against defective materials and workmanship! They have full insulation, Bryant air-conditioned gas-fired furnaces, an unusually heavy grade of Certain-teed guaranteed fireproof shingles, fully weatherstripped windows and doors (all inside doors are 1¾" thick), oil painted wall finishes planned by an interior decorator, period lighting fixtures, and Venetian blinds in living and dining rooms.

In Corona Park in the city of Kirkwood—schools, transportation, and shopping center are all within convenient walking distance of Country Side Homes. Fully restricted and all improvements installed and paid for.

Priced $8950—no extras! Monthly payments $50.60 on 20-year loan plan, after the usual down payment. This includes interest, payment on mortgage principal, taxes, and insurance (of this amount only $25.60 is carrying charge, you are actually saving an average of $25 monthly!) This amount monthly, completely pays off the mortgage.

Take Geyer Rd., (first road west of Lindbergh Blvd.) to Essex Ave. (1 mile south of Manchester Rd.) then one block west and turn south to 466 Wilcox Ave. Open daily and evenings.

This practically new, 3 bedroom Colonial home is most charming.
Situated on a 60-foot lot at the highest and most convenient in this most-sought-for district; it will attract anyone seeking a new home.
AND THE PRICE—The most astoundingly low price for any house of this caliber in this county.
Open. One inspection will be more convincing than any ad, we could write.

WHAT OUR CUSTOMERS SAY:

Joseph E. Burger, President

An Employee of the U. S. Veterans Hospital Maintenance Dept. writes:—
In March, 1936, I purchased a reconditioned 1934 Chevrolet coach from your Mr. Mothershead. Since that time I have driven this car 15,000 miles and the only expense I had was a valve grind job and 2 tappets replaced. Total expense being only $11.50 in 15,000 miles which is very small considering that this car has seen hard service, especially on a 4000-mile vacation trip through the West this past summer. As a result of the above experience I certainly recommend South Side Chevrolet, Inc., their service, and their O. K. used cars to my friends, or anyone else in need of a good, dependable used car at a fair price.

RADIO SERVICE
With the kind permission of Cadillac Motor Car Co., we are prompted to reprint the following article—first, because of the outstanding truths expressed; secondly, because of its particular relationship to our own endeavors in the field of Radio Servicing.

THE PENALTY OF LEADERSHIP

In every field of human endeavor, he that is first must perpetually live in the white light of publicity. Whether the leadership be vested in a man or a manufactured product, emulation and envy are ever at work. In art, in literature, in music, in industry, the reward and the punishment are always the same. The reward is widespread recognition; the punishment, fierce denial and detraction. When a man's work becomes a standard for the whole world, it also becomes a target for the shafts of the envious few. If his work be merely mediocre, he will be left severely alone—if he achieves a masterpiece, it will set a million tongues a-wagging. Jealousy does not protrude its forked tongue at the artist who produces a commonplace painting. Whatsoever you write, or paint, or play, or sing, or build, no one will strive to surpass or slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of genius. Long, long after a great work or a good work has been done, those who are disappointed or envious continue to cry out that it cannot be done. Spiteful little voices in the domain of art were raised against our own Whistler as a mountebank, long after the big world had acclaimed him its greatest artistic genius. Multitudes flocked to Bayreuth to worship at the musical shrine of Wagner, while the little group of those whom he had dethroned and displaced argued angrily that he was no musician at all. The little world continued to protest that Fulton could never build a steamboat, while the big world flocked to the river banks to see his boat steam by. The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is merely added proof of that leadership. Failing to equal or excel, the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy—but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he strives to supplant. There is nothing new in this. It is as old as the world and as old as the human passions—envy, fear, greed, ambition and the desire to surpass. And it all avails nothing. If the leader truly leads, he remains—the leader. Master-poet, master-painter, master-workman, each in his turn is assailed, and each holds his laurels through the ages. That which is good or great makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial. That which deserves to live—lives.

PART FIVE

Sixty Debutantes To Be Presented During Season

Social Schedule Includes Many Balls and Other Elaborate Coming Out Parties for Large Group of Young Women.

SIXTY girls, within one or two of the record established two years ago, have joined the ranks of 1937-38 debutantes, and for the next few months, social affairs will largely center around them. Beginning next Wednesday night when the Veiled Prophet will transfer the jeweled scepter from the hand of Miss Susan Thompson to that of his newest queen, and extending well past the turn of the year, almost daily parties are planned for their entertainment.

A glance at the still incomplete calendar for this fall discloses that evening parties, by which most debutantes judge the success of a season, lead by a large majority. Seasons run in cycles, both as to the number of participants (there have been as few as 20 debutantes) and the types of parties. A tea season is followed almost invariably by a ball season.

Although most of this season's debutantes are native St. Louisans, a few are newcomers; one is the daughter of a former St. Louisan returning to meet her mother's friends, and another is a Texan, here with relatives for the season. Fifteen are sisters and many are daughters, of former debutantes. Two this season are the fourth debutante in their immediate family, and there are three sets of sisters, including one of twins.

A similarity of given names is noticeable in this year's group, with seven named Mary, five Frances, four Anne and at least three answering to Nancy, while Lee appears six times as a middle name.

At present the following young women compose the ever increasing list of debutantes for the season about to begin:

Miss Sara Jane Avant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest L. Avant, 6255 Pershing avenue. A graduate of Mary Institute, class of 1936, she attended Finch School in New York last winter. She has traveled extensively, and has spent several seasons in Wequetonsing, Mich. Recently she returned with her mother after a summer in Santa Monica, Cal. After her first appearance as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball she will make her debut at a tea dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club Tuesday, Dec. 21.

Miss Esther Claire Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Baker Jr., will be presented at a dance at her parents' home, Price and Ladue roads, Thursday night, Oct. 21. She is now on her way to Jacksonville, Fla., to be introduced to family friends there at a party tomorrow night at the Yacht Club. She is a graduate of The Principia and attended Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., for a year.

Miss Mildred Anderson Bakewell will be the second debutante of the season. Her party, a dance, will be given Saturday night at Melody Farm, the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lilburn Bakewell, in Huntleigh Village. She will be a member of the Veiled Prophet's Court Wednesday night. She was graduated in June from Villa Duchesne and spent the summer with her family in Wequetonsing, Miss Bakewell is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bakewell and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Anderson.

Miss Betty Berkley is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Berkley, who now live at 17 Hortense place, to make a debut. Her older sister, Miss Marcella, came out two years ago. Miss Betty Berkley attended the Sacred Heart Academy, and was graduated a year ago from Villa Duchesne. She spent last year traveling and studying in Europe and attended the coronation festivities in London in May. The date of her party is still indefinite.

Miss Katharine Cavalli Bernays, a young St. Louisan interested primarily in the theater, has added her name to the list of debutantes.

The only daughter of Mrs. Eric Bernays, 10 North Kingshighway, she was graduated from John Burroughs School and later studied at the New York School of the Theater. She returned home last winter after the Christmas holidays and was active here in local amateur dramatic productions. With Mrs. Bernays, she traveled abroad this summer. They landed in New York last week and are expected home in a few days. She will make her debut at a reception, followed by a tea dance for debutantes and their escorts, at the St. Louis Woman's Club, Saturday, Oct. 23.

Miss Virginia Randolph Block, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Karl Morgan Block, 6340 Ellenwood avenue, is another of the debutantes. After completing her preparatory work at John Burroughs School she attended Hollins College in Virginia for four years, obtaining her degree in June. With her family she spent the summer at Rye Beach, N. H. Mrs. Block will give a luncheon at Bellerive Country Club to introduce her daughter, Saturday, Oct. 16. Miss Block, a direct descendant of Thomas Jefferson, is related to old Virginia families through both parents.

Miss Carol Carpenter chose spring instead of autumn in which to make her debut. She was introduced to 500 guests at an elaborate garden party given by her mother, Mrs. Kenneth G. Carpenter, June 18, at the home of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Richard E. Perry, 6358 Alexander drive, with whom she and her mother live. She was educated at Mary Institute, Madeira School in Washington, and Pine Manor, Wellesley, Mass., which she attended last year. For the summer she was in North Haven, Me., at the summer estate of her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Oliver Carpenter. Miss Carpenter is expected home at Thanksgiving time from Boston, where she and her mother have an apartment for the fall, and will be guest of honor at a Christmas night party to be given at the St. Louis Country Club by Mr. and Mrs. George O. Carpenter Jr., her uncle and aunt.

The first formal party after the Veiled Prophet ball, is a reception Friday at which Miss Eleanor Lee Carter will become the fall season's first debutante. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Scott Carter will meet friends of her family and her own contemporaries at her home, 7 Oakleigh lane. Afterward there will be a small dinner and dancing party for debutantes and their escorts. Miss Carter received her early education at Villa Duchesne and studied at a French school in Tours last year. Her mother was Miss Margaret Lee.

Miss Barbara Perry Chrisler is the second daughter of W. Perry Chrisler to be a debutante. She will come out informally at a cocktail party planned by her older sister, Miss Marjorie, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 5, from 5 to 7 o'clock at their home, 4441 Westminster

Elsa Louise Logeman To Be December Bride

ANNOUNCEMENT of the engagement of Miss Elsa Louise Logeman and David Battle Smith provided a surprise at a luncheon and shower given yesterday by the bride-to-be in the French room of the Coronado Hotel in honor of Miss Betty Eugenia Hartrich.

Guests found a model airplane (Mr. Smith is a licensed pilot), its motors whirring and the names of Miss Logeman and her fiance written in gold on the flower-covered wings, suspended above the luncheon table. Below the plane stretched a minature lake, from which a mechanical device gave off mist, surrounded by greenery and yellow and white flowers.

Miss Logeman is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Logeman. She makes her home with her grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Hartmann, 6646 Pershing avenue. After attending Hosmer Hall for three years she completed her studies at Miss Eoff's School for Girls.

Mr. Smith is the son of Mrs. George J. Bernocco of Normandy,

New York Visitor.

Miss Margaret Stobie of New York will arrive Oct. 12 to be the guest of Mrs. Arthur Bonsack, 5500 Cabanne avenue. During her stay here Miss Stobie will be entertained at several parties, the first to be given Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 12, at 4 o'clock, when Mrs. Bonsack will entertain at an informal tea at her home. Mrs. Langdon C. Lodge, 5930 Kingsbury boulevard, will also honor Miss Stobie with an evening party Oct. 15. She is the daughter of Mrs. Harold Stobie, formerly of St. Louis.

Marion Brokaw Becomes Bride of Nevill M. Clarke

MISS MARION ROBERTS BROKAW, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Linn Roberts Brokaw, became the bride of Nevill Montgomery Clarke, formerly of Ascot, England, at a quiet ceremony last evening at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chassaing, 6228 Washington boulevard. Mr. Clarke is the son of Col. Hugh Clarke, A. M., British army retired, and Mrs. Clarke, of Ascot.

The marriage service was read at 6 o'clock by the Rev. William F. Glynn of St. Roch's Church in the presence of the immediate family. A reception for close friends was held a half hour later. Mrs. Lewis Albert Lamb of Chicago, the former Miss Alice Gleeson Brokaw, was her sister's only attendant. Denis Kimball-Cook served as best man for Mr. Clarke.

The Chassaing home was decorated simply with white chrysanthemums and other autumn flowers. The bride, on the arm of her uncle, Thomas Paul Gleeson, passed down an aisle marked by white satin ribbons to an improvised altar arranged in the bay window of the dining room. Palms and ferns formed a background for clusters of white chrysanthemums and candelabra filled with lighted white tapers.

The bride wore a gown of ivory toned slipper satin, the feature of which was a deep cream yoke of heirloom Duchesse lace. The gown was fashioned with satin sleeves slightly puffed to the elbow, where a long tight cuff extended to the hand. The skirt fell from a high waistline into a graceful circular train. The wedding veil of ivory tinted tulle fell from a wreath of tiny orange blossoms worn by the bride's mother at her wedding. Easter lillies and lilies of the valley were combined in the bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Lamb was gowned in French blue moire made on Empire lines. The V neckline was caught at the front by a large garnet clip and a soft bow of the fabric oranmented the back of the low decolletage. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and wore several deep red rose buds in her hair. Mrs. Chassaing wore royal blue crepe with a corsage of pale pink roses.

Mr. Clarke and his bride will go South for the honeymoon, after which they will live at 5602 Washington court. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. Lamb and his

Annie Laurie Forder Bride of M. H. Hall

GOWNED in ivory satin on empire lines, Miss Annie Laurie Forder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Carver Forder, 7042 Delmar boulevard, became the bride of Melville Hamilton Hall Friday afternoon. The Rev. John S. Bunting performed the ceremony at 5 o'clock at the Church of the Ascension.

The bride's gown, worn successively by Mrs. Samuel Arthur MacDonald and Mrs. G. Carroll Stribling, her sister, was made with a bertha of wide rose point lace, which extended to the waistline in back. Sleeves were long and tight, coming to a point over the hand and edged with the old rose point lace, which has been in the Forder family for many years. The bride's veil of tulle extended to the end of her long train, and was held in place by a wreath of creamy orange blossoms worn by Mrs. Forder at her wedding. The bridal bouquet was a shower of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

White chrysanthemums and white candles in tall candelabra decorated the chancel of the church, and were interspersed with ferns and palms.

Veiled Prophet Ball to Be Held Wednesday

Spectacle at Auditorium in Presence of 10,000 Guests — Queen to Be Feted at Supper Party After Coronation.

THE immense hall of the Auditorium has been transformed into a setting worthy of the reception of royalty; 50 Maids of Honor and 100 Ladies of Honor have added the final touches to beautiful costumes; a jewel crown is completed; almost 300 orchids bloom in Shaw's Garden at Gray Summit for one bouquet; in a secret room in St. Louis, an elaborate coronation gown is almost finished and all is in readiness for the new Veiled Prophet Queen, who will be crowned at the annual ball at the Auditorium Wednesday night.

The honor of ruling over St. Louis society for a year will be given a debutante, whose identity before the ball is as much of a mystery to her intimates as to the general public. Four other debutantes will be chosen as her special maids of honor as the mystical ruler of Khorassan holds his Court of Love and Beauty in the presence of 10,000 invited guests.

Among the honored guests assembled for this coronation will be Veiled Prophet Queens of former years. In this group, whom His Mysterious Majesty has so honored are a mother and daughter, both former Queens. They are Mrs. J. Clark Streett and her daughter, Mrs. Lindell Gordon Jr. Two of the former Queens will come to St. Louis from out of town to attend the ball. Mrs. Philip W. Ness of Baltimore, the former Miss Anne Farrar Semple, and Mrs. Gilbert Robinson Pirrung of Montclair, N. J., who was Miss Lila Marshall Childress, will arrive early this week. Others in the former Queens' box this year will be Mrs. Gustave H. Boehmer Jr., Mrs. Leo de Smet Carton, Mrs. O. P. J. Falk, Mrs. William Emile Glogau, Mrs. Edward G. Hotchkiss, Miss Jane Alva Johnson, Mrs. Royal D. Kercheval, Mrs. Carl J. Koehler, Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus, Mrs. Edward C. Simmons II, Mrs. Howard Williams and Mrs. Charles Hunt Zeibig. They will be in a special box draped in the royal purple of the Veiled Prophet and situated on the east side of the hall almost halfway between the royal dais, to the north of the ballroom, and the musicians' balcony at the south end of the hall. As each Maid of Honor passes the box in the promenade she will make a slight curtsey to the group as a gesture of courtly respect, at which time her name will be announced to the huge assemblage.

An hour's symphonic concert beginning at 7:30 o'clock will precede the ball, which formally opens at 8:30 o'clock, with the promenade of the Ladies and Maids of Honor. They enter the hall on the east side where they are met by an escort who takes them to their places on terraces arranged on either side of the throne.

Those entering from the royal portals beneath the musicians' balcony are in order of their arrival; the reigning Queen, Miss Susan Elizabeth Thompson; the members of the Krewe, wearing their masks and costumes seen in the parade the night before; His Mysterious Majesty the Veiled Prophet, accompanied by his two High Priests, the Almoner and the Herald and preceded by the Guard of Honor. In answer to a summons read from a scroll by the Herald, the four special maids enter the hall, one at a time. The fourth maid enters first and the first maid last. Their numerical designation has no reference to their rank as all are equal in the eyes of the Veiled Prophet and second in prominence only to the Queen.

When the special maids have been seated on each side of the throne the Herald reads the royal summons for the Queen. After the coronation the Veiled Prophet and his court parade around the ballroom to the box of the former Queens, escorting the retiring Queen to her place in the former Queens' box. When the court returns to the throne the ball actually starts. The members of the Krewe choose as partners, the Maids and Ladies of Honor. Upon the return of the dancers to the throne stage, the new Queen receives their allegiance as they greet her informally. The guests may then dance.

The Queen and her special maids and more than 1000 guests will leave for the gold room of Hotel Jefferson, where the Queen's supper dance will be held. Guests will be served as early as 11 o'clock. The Queen and her party will make their entrance at midnight. Interest in the Queen's supper dance is greater than ever, as evidenced by the number of reservations that have been made. While hundreds of places have been reserved, there place. Miss Barbara is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett, 4422 Lindell boulevard, are contributing their fourth daughter to a debutante season. First there was Miss Jane Allen Connett, then Miss Jessie, (now Mrs. John Randolph Bland Disbrow) and Miss Nancy, who were introduced two years ago, and now Miss Augusta Langdon Connett. Miss Augusta is a graduate of Villa Duchesne and spent last year traveling in Europe with her aunt Miss Helen Schiafly, and studying for a short time in Tours, France. She is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. and Mrs. August A. Schlafly. Miss Connett will make her debut at an Armistice Day reception.

Miss Margaret Virginia Cornwell, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Cornwell, 536 Overhills drive, will make her first formal appearance after the Veiled Prophet ball at a small tea planned by her mother at their home Wednesday, Nov. 3, from 4 to 6 o'clock. The debutante is a graduate of John Burroughs School and Sweet Briar College in Virginia, class of last June.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Raymond Culver Jr., 35 Brentmoor Park, will introduce their daughter, Miss Dorothy-Lee Culver to a large group of their friends and the debutante set at a ball, Friday night, Oct. 22, at their home. Miss Dorothy-Lee is named for her grandmother, Mrs. J. V. Parker, who was Miss Alice Lee Ward. She attended John Burroughs School and completed her studies in June at Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn. Recently the debutante, her parents and a party of friends returned on a special train after a summer in the Southwest.

Miss Katherine Semple Cushman will make her debut at a reception Friday afternoon, Nov. 19, at her home. Friends of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Cushman, and of her grandmother, Mrs. Ames Cushman, will be invited to call between 4 and 6 o'clock at the Cushman home, 4967 Pershing avenue. Miss Katherine studied at Villa Duchesne here, the Spence School in New York and last year at Mme. Deletang's School in Tours, France, where Miss Eleanor Lee Carter was a classmate. Between semesters she visited her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney T. Allen, former St. Louisans living in Cannes.

A recent addition to the debutante list is Miss Mary Jane Dean, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John McHale Dean, 6401 Ellenwood avenue, and granddaughter of Mrs. Charles E. Massee of the Forest Park Hotel. Plans at present include a reception in her honor the afternoon of Dec. 23. Miss Dean is a graduate of Villa Duchesne, and is one of the many girls to be a holiday debutante. She will return shortly before Christmas from Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart in New York. She will entertain four classmates at a houseparty this week during the Veiled Prophet festivities in which she will take part as a maid of honor.

Russell L. Dearmont will present his eldest daughter, Miss Julia Marie Dearmont to society informally. Party plans are still in the making. Mr. Dearmont, who lives at the Park Plaza, has leased an apartment in the St. Regis for the season. Miss Julia, a granddaughter of Mrs. Robert Buret Oliver of Cape Girardeau, Mo., and of the late State Senator Oliver, attended Sweet Briar College last year.

At a reception Wednesday, Oct. 20, Mrs. Raymond A. Dubuque will introduce to society her daughter, Miss Mary. The party is planned for 4 to 6 o'clock at their home on the Spoede road. She is a graduate of Villa Duchesne and the past winter attended Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart. After visiting in the East following the close of school last June, she attended with her parents the graduation of her brother, Raymond Jr., from Princeton University. Last month she went East to attend the debut of a friend and classmate, Miss Marie Murray, Southampton, L. I.

Thanksgiving afternoon, Nov. 25, has been chosen by Miss Alice Egan for her debut party—a reception after 5 o'clock at the St. Louis Country Club. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Egan, 30 Brentmoor Park, will be host and hostess. Miss Alice, a younger sister of Miss Elisabeth Egan, a debutante of last season, is a graduate of John Burroughs School, and last year received her academic degree from Vassar College. She spent the summer with her family in Fish Creek, Wis.

Miss Evelyn Lee Fraser arrived a week ago from her home in El Paso, Tex., to be presented to St. Louis society under the chaperonage of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lindsay Franciscus, 226 North Newstead avenue. Miss Fraser, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fraser of El Paso, was educated abroad and at the Shipley School in the East. This afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Franciscus have invited friends to meet their niece at a cocktail party at their home.

Several parties each day during the Christmas holidays are being scheduled for Miss Elizabeth Warren Funsten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Funsten of McKnight road. She will make her formal bow at a ball at the St. Louis Woman's Club the night of Dec. 20, which her parents will give. Miss Funsten will arrive home from Vassar College, where she is a sophomore, for two days this week to attend the Veiled Prophet Ball. She is a graduate of Mary Institute. With Mr. Funsten and her brother, Edward S. Jr., a student at Country Day School, she sailed on the Brittanic for a North Cape cruise early this past summer. They traveled on the continent a month before returning home late in August.

Miss Josephine Desloge Fusz is the fourth debutante in her family. Her sister, Miss Marie Reine, who became Mrs. Cabell Breckinridge and lives in Lexington, Ky., was first; Miss Elizabeth, now Mrs. John Brownrigg, was second, and Miss Helen, whose marriage to Roy Wilcox Jordan took place more than a year ago, third. Miss Josephine is a John Burroughs School graduate and attended Trinity College, Washington. She spent the spring in England for the coronation, and recently returned from a shopping expedition in New York. Miss Fusz is the daughter of Eugene A. Fusz, 6925 Delmar boulevard. She will make her debut at sister, Mrs. James O'Kane of Chicago, who arrived Friday.

The bride is a graduate of Visitation Academy here and of Northwestern University, Evanston. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. After her graduation from Northwestern, she traveled in Europe and served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball three years ago. Mr. Clarke received his education at Halleybury College, Hertfordshire, England, and during his father's active career in the army lived with his family in many parts of the world, including a year in India.

More chrysanthemums were on the altar.

Maid of honor at the wedding was the bride's youngest sister, Miss Alice Forder. Miss Olive Culbertson, cousin of the bride, and Miss Marjorie Hall, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. All were dressed alike in peacock blue moire, made with deep V necklines, shirred puffed sleeves and tight waists. Skirts fell full and long. Attendants all wore small brown velvet toques with matching short veils, and Miss Forder carried a bouquet of talisman roses, while Miss Culbertson and Miss Hall carried yellow token roses.

Lawrence Jensen of Chicago was best man, and ushers included Robert Nation, also of Chicago, Russell Schulze, George Bartling and Carroll Stribling, brother-in-law of the bride. Bot Mr. Jensen and Mr. Nation were classmates of Mr. Hall at the University of Illinois.

After the wedding a small reception was held at Dr. and Mrs. Forder's home, where supper was also served. The table seating the bridal party had white chrysanthemums and snapdragons as a centerpiece, arranged around the wedding cake.

Afterwards Mr. Hall and his bride left for a month's motor trip, and on their return will make their home in St. Louis.

Only out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mrs. MacDonald of London, Ont., the former Miss Bodine Forder, and Mrs. Eugene Kruskal of New York, an aunt of Mr. Hall.

The bride is the granddaughter of the late Judge Joseph Scott Laurie of St. Louis, Mrs. Forder being the former Miss Annie Laurie. Mr. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Hall, 720 Radcliffe avenue, University City, is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hall of St. Louis, and, on his maternal side, of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clark Sampson of St. Louis. He was graduated in June from the University of Illinois, where he was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity.

Woman's Club to Give Tea.

The autumn social season of the St. Louis Woman's Club will open tomorrow at a tea in charge of the newly formed Monday tea committee of which Mrs. Paul Brown is chairman and Mrs. Robert L. Latzer is vice-chairman. Tea will be served from 4 to 5 o'clock, with members of the committee presiding. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Joseph O. Rand will be hostesses for the first of the series of Monday teas.

Big Apple Dance Feature of Party

FRIENDS of Miss Grizelda Polk and converts to the latest terpsichorean fantasy, the Big Apple dance, gathered at her home, Taille de Noyer, in Old Florissant, last night for buffet supper and an evening of dance practice. Miss Polk and her sister, Miss Delphine, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Polk, informally received their 30 guests, invited for 6:30 o'clock. The list included a few of the new season's debutantes as well as some of past years.

Inspiration for the party came to Miss Polk during her recent visit in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where the Big Apple was popular. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. William H. Burg, 6416 Cecil avenue, and their daughter, Miss Katherine Ward Burg, to the resort.

This dance, originating in the South, is a combination of the turkey trot, the Charleston, trucking and the individual dancer's ingenuity. So popular is it in the East that hotels in New York have named desserts in its honor and a new coiffure bears its name.

Hart Vance Jr. Entertains.

Hart Vance Jr. entertained small group of friends at a buffet supper Friday night at his home, 3 Oakleigh lane, with Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dick Jr. of Lake Forest, Ill., as guests of honor. Mr. and Mrs. Dick have been exhibiting their horses at the national show which ended last night at the Arena.

are still tables available in the crystal room.

The Queen and the special maids and their escorts will dine at a table arranged on the stage of the gold room. Special tables for the debutantes and their escorts have been reserved at the extreme south end of the ballroom so that this group of young people can conveniently go to the ivory room for dancing. Tables for 28 extra beaux, to dance with the maids of honor, will adjoin those of the debutantes and their escorts. Special insignia worn by the escorts and the additional young men will identify them. Other guests at the ball will gather at clubs and hotels to toast the new Queen and celebrate her coronation.

The official list of maids of honor follows: Miss Sara Jane Avant, Miss Mildred Anderson Bakewell, Miss Betty Berkley, Miss Virginia Randolph Block, Miss Eleanor Lee Carter, Miss Barbara Perry Chrisler, Miss Augusta Langdon Connett, Miss Mary Louise Conrades, Miss Margaret Virginia Cornwell, Miss Dorothy-Lee Culver, Miss Mary Jane Dean, Miss Julia Marie Dearmont, Miss Betty Ann Dickmann, Miss Alice Egan, Miss Elizabeth W. Junior League Plans Lectures for Winter

INVITATIONS were sent out last week for the St. Louis Junior League lecture course, to be held at the club rooms, 4932 Maryland avenue. The course opens Monday, Nov. 1, at 11 a. m., with a lecture by Mrs. Boerge Rohde (the former Ruth Bryan Owen). There will be 10 lectures during the winter. Other speakers include Dr. Otto Heller, Lady Drummond Hay, Leland Stowe, Harry Hansen, Gari Shelton, who will give a lecture recital; Edgar Curtis Taylor, James Hepbron, Grant Wood and William Rose Benet.

The Open Door, the Junior League shop, will sponsor a tea at the club rooms Friday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock, in honor of George S. Johns and his son, Orrick Johns, whose joint autobiography, "Time of Our Lives," has just been published. About 200 guests have been invited.

Ellen Kline Is Bride Of Samuel Langsdorf Jr.

MISS ELLEN LOUISE KLINE was married at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon to Samuel M. Langsdorf Jr. at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac D. Kline, on the Cella road. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Julius Gordon before an improvised altar in the living room. The bride, who was unattended, was gowned in scarab blue velvet with a corsage of white orchids. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Kline, their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Kline, their daughter, Miss Nancy, were present. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Langsdorf, parents of the bridegroom, were the only other guests. Mrs. Isaac Kline wore black with a corsage of orchids as did Mrs. Langsdorf and Mrs. Richard Kline. Miss Nancy Kline was gowned in light blue velvet with gardenias.

After the ceremony there was a supper.

The pair will travel South on their wedding trip, visiting Pass Christian, Miss., and New Orleans. On their return they will make their home at 7546 Byron place. Mr. and Mrs. Kline are planning a reception in their honor later in the fall.

MISS BETTY JANE JACK, daughter of Mrs. Richard F. Jack, 5904 Enright avenue, St. Louis, and John J. Holland Jr. were married here today at noon in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Holland.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Richard F. Jack of St. Louis. She wore ice blue satin, cut on princesse lines. On her head was a circular veil of ice blue tulle, held by a coronet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. She carried a satin prayer book with a spray of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Mary Holland. Miss Holland wore starlight blue satin cut on princesse lines with an uneven hem line. On her head was a coronet of larkspur and she carried a bouquet of the same blossoms.

Mrs. Jack was gowned in navy blue velvet with a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Holland wore pebbly crepe in electric blue and white orchids.

Oliver Mulvihill was best man. The ushers were Edward and Vincent Holland, brothers of the bridegroom, and R. Vernon Murphy. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Lombardy, Manhattan. The pair departed for a wedding trip to Canada. They will make their home in Los Angeles.

Tainter-McKenna.

Mrs. Joseph J. McKenna, 4733 Labadie avenue, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Evelyn, and Thomas Tainter, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank J. Tainter of St. Charles, Mo. Miss McKenna is a graduate of Fontbonne College, and in 1933 was prom queen of St. Louis University. Mr. Tainter is a graduate of St. Mary's College, Kansas, and of St. Louis University. No date has been set for the wedding.

The engagement of Miss Belle Hardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hardt, 3303 Watson road, and Roland A. Behrens, 712 Angenette street, Kirkwood, was announced at a luncheon and bridge party given Thursday afternoon, Sept. 30, at the home of Mrs. Edward E. Pounds, 6615 Fyler avenue. Mrs. Pounds is a sister of Miss Hardt.

As guests arrived each was given a rose with a card attached, announcing the engagement. No date has been set for the wedding.

Dreyfus-Waxman

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waxman, 5763 Kingsbury boulevard, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bernice Lee Waxman, and David Dreyfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Dreyfus, 5346 Ridge avenue. News of the engagement was told at a party given at Hotel Jefferson Sunday night, Sept. 25.

Schwarz-Jacks

The marriage of Miss Julia Jacks, daughter of Mrs. Rose Jacks, 5789 Westminster place, and Lawrence Schwarz, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Schwarz, 5707 McPherson avenue, will take place Sunday, Oct. 10, at 12 o'clock noon at the United Hebrew Temple.

Weiss-Richter

Miss Ruth Richter, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Richter of Jasper, Ind., and Walter E. Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erhardt Weiss, 5337 North Broadway, took place Saturday evening, Sept. 25, at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

The bride wore ivory velvet with a finger-tip-length tulle veil of the same shade. She carried white gladioli in her bouquet. Miss Clara Richter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and was dressed in Olympia blue velvet. She carried pink gladioli. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Alberid and Mrs. Oliver Weiss, who wore sapphire blue velvet and also carried pink gladioli.

Oliver Weiss, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Theodore Weiss, also a brother, and Herbert Riess, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were groomsmen. Ushers included Harry Smith, William Brazill, Gilbert Muchow and George Pouhorst.

A reception was given afterwards at the Forest Park Hotel.

Zwickson-Siegel

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Siegel, 5783 Pershing avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edna, and Julius Zwickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Zwickson of Herring, Ill.

Open house will be held this afternoon at Mr. and Mrs. Siegel's home.

Wassenberg-Donley

The wedding of Miss Ida Donley, 2642 Ann avenue, and Theodore Wassenberg, 2823 Wisconsin avenue, took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the Immaculate Conception Church. The Rev. Joseph M. Sullivan officiated.

The bride was gowned in white satin, made with a high neck line trimmed with a pearl clasp. Her full skirt fell from a tight-fitting waist into a train of lace, and her veil was fastened to a cap trimmed with pearls. She carried lilies in her bouquet. Attendants were Miss Marie Donley of New York, sister of the bride, and Miss Edna Jacob, a cousin. Miss Donley was in royal blue velvet, and Miss Jacob in wine red of the same material. Both carried gold-colored chrysanthemums.

Fred R. Donley and Alphonse L. Donley, brothers of the bride, were best man and groomsman, and ushers included George A. Donley, also a brother of the bride, and Henry Jacob, her cousin.

A breakfast for the bridal party was given after the wedding by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Henry Jacob, at her home, 3428 Kingsland Court. A reception for a small group of friends was given last evening at the Forest Park Hotel.

After Nov. 1, Mr. Wassenberg and his bride will be at home at 6570 Winnebago street, in a new house they are building.

Robnak-Zahtz

The engagement of Miss Ruth Zahtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haskel Zahtz, 1354 Shawmut avenue, and Jack Robnak has been announced. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Robnak, 1442 Clara avenue. No definite date has been set for the wedding.

Steyermark-Shoop

The marriage of Miss Cora E. Shoop, daughter of H. E. Shoop of Steelville, Mo., and Dr. Julian A. Steyermark took place at Hannibal, Mo., Wednesday, Sept. 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo L. Steyermark, 6412 Enright avenue. They have gone to Chicago to make their home. Dr. Steyermark is associated with the Field Museum of Natural History. The bride is a graduate of the University of Missouri, where she received her Master's degree.

Phi Mu Mothers' Club.

Phi Mu Mothers' Club of Washington University will hold a reception at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Women's Building of the university in honor of new pledges and their parents. Chancellor and Mrs. George Reeves Throop, Dr. and Mrs. George W. Stephens, Mrs. Adele C. Starbird and Mrs. Blanche Bartlett have been invited as honored guests. Mrs. James A. Dickson and Mrs. Frank A. Wickenhauser will serve. In charge of arrangements will be Mrs. Julius M. Bischoff, with Mrs. George B. Parsons, Mrs. Frank W. Heuser, Mrs. George C. Stevens, Mrs. Otto Wilkins, Mrs. George Sykes and Mrs. Charles Hatch as her assistants.

Party for Loretto Academy.

Loretto Academy Mothers' Club will give a benefit card party at the academy auditorium, 3407 Lafayette avenue. A large group of club members will serve as hostesses.

Benefit Party Tuesday.

The Women's Franklin D. Roosevelt Democratic Club of St. Louis County will have a card party at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Hoffman, 1405 Rankin drive, Richmond Heights. A business meeting is scheduled for 1 p. m.

SOCIETY IN WEBSTER GROVES

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the approaching marriage of Miss Viola Graves, daughter of the late Belden Taylor Graves and Mrs. Graves, 367 Sylvester avenue, to Charles Perley Hutchinson Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perley Hutchinson, 157 Selma avenue. The ceremony, which will be witnessed only by members of the two families, will be performed by the Rev. George M. Gibson Saturday morning, Oct. 16, at 11 o'clock, in the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves. There will be no attendants. Immediately after the wedding, the pair will leave for Springfield, Ill., their future home.

Mr. Hutchinson attended Washington University. Miss Graves was a student for a short time at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Loomis Jr. of Hartford, Conn., and their young son arrived last Sunday to visit Mrs. Loomis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo M. Grace, 246 Spencer road. Mr. Loomis has departed for Milwaukee, to be gone several weeks, and during his absence his wife will remain here.

Mrs. James Keith Stribling, 230 Blackmer place, entertained at a bridge luncheon Monday for Mrs. Marcus Alexander who left yesterday for Florida after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, 15 South Rock Hill road. Miss Jessie Brown entertained at a luncheon bridge for her sister last Friday.

Mrs. Lilliam F. Obear, 32 Oak terrace, left Wednesday for Toronto, Ont., to attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Watts, to Kenneth Harris, also of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will spend a two-month honeymoon in England and on their return will make their home in Boston for a few months. Next summer they expect to move to Winnipeg.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scholz, 44 North Rosemont avenue, and Clifford O. Scholz, 33 North Maple avenue, returned recently from California and Arizona. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scholz are now at their summer home at Les Cheneaux Islands, Wis., for a short visit.

Mrs. Robert Armstrong, 1309 McCausland avenue, formerly of Webster Groves, has as her guest her sister-in-law, Mrs. T. R. Armstrong of Hainesville, La., who will remain another week.

Mrs. Emily F. Russell, 314 Park road, spent last week in Lowell, Ind., with her mother, Mrs. Albert Foster. Mrs. Foster is moving to Independence, Kan.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ebling, 104 East Cedar avenue, and their daughter, Miss Jane, will leave tomorrow by motor for California. They will spend three weeks touring the State.

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Armstrong of Portland, Ore., formerly of Webster Groves, left yesterday after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Willard Wright, 112 Gray avenue. Mrs. Wright entertained at tea for them last Sunday afternoon, and Mrs. Charles D. Wright, 429 South Elm avenue, entertained them at luncheon Wednesday. They were guests Wednesday evening at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cook, 222 Spencer road. Another dinner was given for them Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lincoln, 236 Sylvester avenue. Mrs. Herman B. Kooser, 210 Rosemont avenue, entertained for Mrs. Armstrong at luncheon Thursday, followed in the evening by a dinner at the Algonquin Country Club where Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Shillington, 231 Gore avenue, were host and hostess. Friday, Mrs. P. R. King entertained Mrs. Armstrong at luncheon, and last night, Mrs. C. R. Manter, 157 Heifenstein place, was hostess to Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong at a bridge party.

Dr. and Mrs. Armstrong also shared honors with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lamont of Florida at a buffet supper given Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Miller, 421 Woodlawn avenue, whom the latter were visiting.

Percival Chubb, 108 South Rock Hill road, is expected home this week from New York where he has been spending two weeks following an extended stay in Nantucket and Maine.

The board of chaperons of the Fortnightly Dancing Club of Webster Groves met last week at the home of Mrs. Edwin A. Schmid, 504 Sherwood drive, to plan for the coming year. The first of six dances will be held at the Algonquin Country Club Saturday evening, Oct. 16, under the direction of Mrs. Edward Mangelsdorf. Assistant chaperons for that evening will be Mrs. William C. Waggoner, Mrs. J. Carr Gamble, Mrs. Hugo K. Graf and Mrs. L. M. Stewart.

The Freshman Group of the Junior Fortnightly Dancing Club, directed by Mrs. Janet Condon, will have its first dance Saturday evening at the Monday Club. The chaperons will be Mrs. C. A. Reichardt, Mrs. Thomas W. Webster, Mrs. Norman Chivvis and Mrs. J. T. Johnston Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Cook, 45 Mason avenue, are entertaining members of their dinner bridge club at a house party this week-end at their summer home at Arrowhead Beach, Lake of the Ozarks.

A benefit bridge tea, sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution, will be given Tuesday, Oct. 26, at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. J. K. Stribling, 230 Blackmer place. Proceeds will go to the School of the Ozarks scholarship fund. Mrs. Charles C. Robinson is in charge of arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Willingham, 530 Oakwood avenue, and their son, Charles, left recently for Haines City, Fla., for an indefinite stay.

Mrs. Herman F. Bowmar, 370 Gray avenue, entertained at luncheon Tuesday at her home. She has as her guest for a month her sister, Miss Katherine Bowmar of Versailles, Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wellborn Moise, 126 Gray avenue, entertained at dinner last Saturday evening.

Mrs. George W. Clinton, 321 South Elm avenue, was hostess to the board of the Women's Association of the First Congregational Church at tea Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. A. W. Mothersill entertained at a luncheon in Candlelight House Wednesday for members of her bridge club and additional guests.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stoecker, 140 West Swon avenue, returned recently from a trip through Southern Missouri and Arkansas. Mrs. Stoecker will leave today with Mrs. Herman B. Kooser and Mrs. J. K. Stribling to attend the convention of the Daughters of American Colonists, at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Sixty Debutantes to Be

ball at the St. Louis Woman's Club the night of Oct. 29.

Miss Abigail Curran and Miss Margaret Ann Gross, both daughters of Mrs. Sol William Gross of Curran House, Normandy, will be debutantes this fall. They are the younger sisters of Miss Joy Gross, former debutante, and will make their bows together at a tea Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 17, at their home, with a dinner dance afterward. Both are graduates of Villa Duchesne, and both spent the summer with their mother in Santa Monica, Cal.

An informal debut will be made by Miss Claudia Hodges, who moved here with her family about two years ago from New Orleans. The daughter of Col. and Mrs. John N. Hodges, 370 Walton avenue, Miss Hodges attended Miss McGehee's school in New Orleans and Holton Arms in Washington.

Christmas afternoon will find friends of Mr. and Mrs. Roland M. Koerr, 18 Princeton place, en route to the St. Louis Country Club to meet their daughter, Miss Elizabeth, at her debut reception. After receiving from 4 to 7 o'clock, Miss Koerr will dine and dance with her contemporaries. She is a graduate of John Burroughs School and the Bennett School, Millbrook, N. Y., last June. After commencement, she spent a month in New England with her family, and in August visited in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Miss Eunice Jackson Holderness will have a part in the Court of Love and Beauty at the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday night, and will make her debut early in the season, Saturday night, Oct. 16, at a ball at the St. Louis Woman's Club. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Early Holderness, 7 Wydown terrace, and a granddaughter of Mrs. Robert F. Jackson of Nashville, Tenn., who frequently visits here. Miss Eunice is a graduate of Mary Institute and spent two years at Vassar College.

Miss Virginia Rumsey Holland, the first of Mrs. Robert A. Holland's two daughters to make a debut. Her own party is planned for the night of Friday, Nov. 12 at the St. Louis Country Club, and in addition her aunt, Mrs. Stanley Stoner and her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Rumsey Jr., will give a dinner dance in her honor at the same club Saturday, Oct. 30. Miss Holland attended Mary Institute and was graduated from Hacienda del Sol, Tucson, Ariz., before entering Bennington College, Bennington, Vt. She spent the summer on a North Cape cruise with her mother and sister, Miss Julia, returning a few weeks ago.

The debut party of Miss Nancy Malotte Houser, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, 470 Ellenwood avenue, will be a ball at the St. Louis Country Club, Friday night, Dec. 17. Among the many who will entertain in her honor this winter is her aunt, Mrs. Sears Lehmann, the former Miss Agnes Malotte Houser, for whom she is named. The debutante attended Mary Institute and is a graduate of Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. The past winter she joined the group of St. Louis girls studying at the Stuart School in Boston. Miss Houser traveled through Europe with classmates this past summer. Her family summered at Douglas, Mich.

Miss Mary Nixon Johnston will participate only informally in the debutante functions of the season, and has planned no special party of her own. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sidney Johnston, 18 Kingsbury Place, to come out, her sister, Miss Elizabeth, having been a debutante two years ago. Miss Mary attended Mary Institute and Hosmer Hall. Mary Institute, Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff, N. Y., and much travel have equipped Miss Dorothy Claire Koken for a debutante season. The daughter of Mrs. Roy B. Koken, 56 Fair Oaks, has diplomas from both schools, and has spent summers both on North Cape and Mediterranean cruises with her family. For the summer just passed she, her mother and Mrs. C. L. Burkhart were guests at the clubhouse in Harbor Point, Mich. Tentative plans are made for her debut party, a tea, Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 1, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at her mother's home.

Mrs. Ferdinand H. Manger, 5354 Waterman avenue, has made plans for the introduction of her daughter, Miss Mildred Claire, to society with a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Wednesday Club. The date is Thursday, Nov. 4. The debutante attended Mary Institute and later was a student at Washington University. She was at Northern resorts the past summer.

Although her engagement was announced last summer in Harbor Beach, Mich., Miss Mary Eleanor McCarthy will take time from wedding plans to attend some of the debutante parties. She was educated at John Burroughs School, Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn., and Stuart School in Boston. Her marriage to John Chetwoode Hodges of New York will take place after Christmas. Miss McCarthy is the daughter of Mrs. Marshall McCarthy 215 East Bodley avenue, Kirkwood.

The latest addition to the debutante list is Miss Angela McFadden, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Frederick McFadden, 4 Ridgemoor Drive. A sophomore at Maryville College, Miss McFadden will be presented at a tea to be given during the Christmas holidays by her mother. The date and place for the affair will be announced shortly. The debutante is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart. With her family she has spent most of her summers at Northern resorts.

Miss Frances Leftwich McPheeters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown McPheeters, 4540 Lindell boulevard, is a debutante this season. Her mother and Mrs. O'Neil belonged to Villa Duchesne years ago. This season opens. The guest of honor and Mrs. Charles H. McPheeters will be given by her mother at their home. Portland place, Kirkwood, at several St. Louis country clubs. Miss Leftwich is a student at Mary Institute and graduated from Country School in Simsbury, Conn. Her debut party will be Oct. 23 at the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Holland attended Mary Institute and was graduated from Hacienda del Sol, Tucson, Ariz., before entering Bennington College, Bennington, Vt. She spent the summer on a North Cape cruise with her mother and sister, Miss Julia, returning a few weeks ago.

The debut party of Miss Nancy Malotte Houser, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas B. Houser, 9470 Ellenwood avenue, will be a ball at the St. Louis Country Club, Friday night, Dec. 17. Among the many who will entertain in her honor this winter is her aunt, Mrs. Sears Lehmann, the former Miss Agnes Malotte Houser, for whom she is named. The debutante attended Mary Institute and is a graduate of Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn. The past winter she joined the group of St. Louis girls studying at the Stuart School in Boston. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sidney Johnston, 18 Kingsbury place, to come out, her sister, Miss Elizabeth, having been a debutante two years ago. Miss Mary attended Mary Institute and Hosmer Hall.

Mary Institute, Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff, N. Y., and much travel have equipped Miss Dorothy Claire Koken for a debutante season. The daughter of Mrs. Roy B. Koken, 56 Fair Oaks, has diplomas from both schools, and has spent summers both on North Cape and Mediterranean cruises with her family. For the summer just passed she, her mother and Mrs. C. L. Burkhart were guests at the clubhouse in Harbor Point, Mich. Tentative plans are made for her debut party, a tea, Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 1, from 4 to 6 o'clock, at her mother's home.

Mrs. Ferdinand H. Manger, 5354 Waterman avenue, has made plans for the introduction of her daughter, Miss Mildred Claire, to society at a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock at the Wednesday Club. The date is Thursday, Nov. 4. The debutante attended Mary Institute and later was a student at Washington University. She was at Northern resorts the past summer.

Although her engagement was announced last summer in Harbor Beach, Mich., Miss Mary Eleanor McCarthy will take time from wedding plans to attend some of the debutante parties. She was educated at John Burroughs School, Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn., and Stuart School in Boston. Her marriage to John Chetwoode Hodges of New York will take place after Christmas. Miss McCarthy is the daughter of Mrs. Marshall McCarthy 215 East Bodley avenue, Kirkwood.

The latest addition to the debutante list is Miss Angela McFadden, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Frederick McFadden, 4 Ridgemoor drive. A sophomore at Maryville College, Miss McFadden will be presented at a tea to be given during the Christmas holidays by her mother. The date and place for the affair will be announced shortly. The debutante is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart. With her family she has spent most of her summers at Northern resorts.

Miss Frances Leftwich McPheeters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown McPheeters, 4955 Maryland avenue, will make her bow at a reception the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov. 2. The party will be given at their home by the debutante's mother, and later in the season Miss Frances will share honors with several other girls at parties still being arranged for. Recently she returned from Los Pinos Ranch, Cowles, N. M., where she joined Miss Anne and Miss Mary Sullivan. Miss McPheeters is a graduate of John Burroughs School and Concord Academy in Massachusetts, and last winter attended Miss Child's Graduate School in Florence, Italy.

Another Mary Institute graduate on the list is Miss Susan Meston, daughter of Mrs. Thomas M. Meston, 501 Clara avenue, and sister of Mrs. Robert Lee Morton Jr., the former Miss Betty Meston, a belle of a few years ago. The first party in her honor is a luncheon at the Junior League tea room being planned by Mrs. Morton for Oct. 27. Miss Meston returned home a short time ago after a summer in La Jolla, Cal., and will entertain California visitors during the holidays.

Miss Alice Jane Meyer, daughter of Edwin R. Meyer, 6226 Forsythe boulevard, is among the young women who will make their social bows late in the season. Her party will be a reception at Bellerive Country Club the afternoon of Monday, Dec. 20, from 3 to 5 o'clock at which her mother, Mrs. A. W. Morriss Jr., 23 Oakleigh lane, and her grandmother, Mrs. Otto Paul Meyer, will be hostesses. The debutantes will be joined by their escorts for a tea dance at the club from 5 to 7 o'clock the same afternoon, Miss Meyer, a graduate of Mary Institute, attended Briarcliff Junior College winter before last. The following summer she traveled extensively in Europe with her grandmother. This past summer she was East with Mr. Meyer.

Although Miss Frances Wickham Moore and her family have deferred their return from Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., until late, the debutante will be here to take part in the festivities shortly after the season opens. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore, 36 Portland place, she is related to several St. Louis families of prominence. Miss Moore is a former student at Mary Institute and was graduated from the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn. Her debut party will be a dinner dance Oct. 23 at the fall opening of the St. Louis Country Club.

Thanksgiving Eve, the favorite night for a debutante party, is Miss Nancy Lee Morrill's choice. She will make her bow at a ball given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morrill of the Warson road, at the St. Louis Country Club. Previously she will have greeted the Veiled Prophet as a member of his court. A graduate of Mary Institute a year ago, Miss Morrill spent last winter in Europe with three other debutantes of the new season, Miss Maude Overall, Miss Mary Lee Smidt and Miss Georgia Simmons. Numerous parties will be given for her before the season is over.

A 1935 Mary Institute graduate to be a debutante this winter is Miss Genevieve Nichola Mullins. She is the older daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Vester Mullins, 8045 Park drive, Hampton Park. Her first year of college was at Ward-Belmont, Nashville, Tenn., and last winter she studied costume design at the Bennett School, Millbrook, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Mullins will introduce their daughter to their friends and to debutantes of the season at a tea dance to be given, probably at their home, Thursday, Dec. 30. During the summer she visited at Galveston, Tex. She accompanied Mrs. Mullins to Bermuda last spring.

Following a summer spent at MacGregor Bay, near Sault Ste. Marie in Canada, Miss Dorothy Ann Mummert has returned home to enter into the debutante festivities of the fall and winter. Her parents Mr. and Mrs. Arden John Mummert, 6901 Kingsbury boulevard, will introduce her at a reception followed by a tea dance Wednesday, Dec. 22, at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Mrs. Mummert's friends will be received from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and the debutantes and their beaux will dance from 5 to 7 o'clock. Miss Mummert, a graduate of Mary Institute in 1935, spent the last two winters at Bradford Junior College, Bradford, Mass.

Another college girl combining studies with a debut season is Miss Reka Neilson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Hugh Neilson, 6319 Alexander drive. Although a sophomore at Radcliffe, she will be here to serve as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday night, and will remain for the weekend parties, including a luncheon planned by her mother for Thursday. During the holidays Miss Neilson will make her formal debut at a tea at her parents' home Dec. 29 from 4 to 6 o'clock. Her preparatory school work was done at Mary Institute, of which she is a graduate. Last summer she was assistant art counselor at Holiday Camp in Minnesota. Her unusual given name is a diminutive of that of her maternal grandmother, who lived in Sweden.

Miss Frances, the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Neil, 4540 Lindell boulevard, will be a debutante this fall. Miss Martha O'Neil belonged to the group of two years ago. This season's bud, a graduate of Villa Duchesne, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by her mother next Saturday at their home.

Several parties have already been planned to compliment Miss Frances O'Reilly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Reilly, 4549 Pershing avenue. Wednesday night she will have a table at the queen's supper at Hotel Jefferson after the Veiled Prophet ball; her own debut party, a tea, will be given from 4 to 6 o'clock Oct. 27 at her home, and next Sunday she will share honors with Miss Eleanor Lee Carter at a "field day" given by Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson Carpenter and Mr. and Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk at the Von Schrenk home in Florissant.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Overall will present their second daughter to society this winter. Their older daughter, Miss Amelia, is now Mrs. Samuel Craft Davis Jr., and recently became the mother of a son. This year Miss Maude Scudder Overall is a debutante, and will make her bow at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, Wednesday, Dec. 29. Before matriculating at the Fermata School, Aiken, S. C., she was a student at Mary Institute. She spent last winter in Europe with three of her contemporaries, and last summer in Southampton, L. I., with her family. Miss Overall is a niece of Mrs. Henry McRee, the former Miss Gladys Cupples Scudder, and of Mrs. Boudinot Conner, who was Mrs. Maude Scudder di Rosa.

A holiday debut will be made by Miss Dorothy Lee Post, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. Hayward Post, 501 Clara avenue. She will arrive home this week from school to attend the Veiled Prophet Ball and will be honor guest at several parties, including an informal tea which Mrs. Post will give Thursday. Her debut will be a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Saturday, Dec. 18.

This young woman, who is slated to be among the most popular, is a graduate of Mary Institute and now a sophomore at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y. Most of her summers have been spent at Hanoun Camp, Thetford, Vt. Her grandfather, the late Dr. Martin Hayward Post, was a well-known St. Louisan

No definite plans have been made for Miss Mary Jane Primm's debut party, although her name is on the season's list. She is the third daughter of Mrs. Samuel S. Primm, 6015 Cabanne avenue. Her sisters, Mrs. W. W. Wharton and Mrs. James Samuel, both preceded her as debutantes. Miss Primm and her mother spent the summer in Estes Park, Colo., after her graduation from the San Luis Ranch School in Colorado Springs last June. Previously she attended Villa Duchesne and the Visitation Convent.

Miss Katharine Gratz Pdolph, granddaughter of the late Anderson Gratz and great-niece of Benjamin Gratz, both well-known early St. Louisans, will make her bow at a reception Oct. 15 with a dinner dance afterward for a group of debutantes and their escorts. Miss Randolph is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Randolph, at whose home, 315 East Bodley avenue, Kirkwood, the party will be given. She formerly attended John Burroughs School and was graduated from Mary Institute a year ago. Later she studied at the Stuart School in Boston, after a summer abroad.

Although arrangements are not complete, Nov. 30 has been chosen as the date for Miss Anne Reinholdt's party. The debutante is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Reinholdt Jr., 3029 Longfellow boulevard, and is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Reinholdt of Los Angeles, Cal., whom she visited this last summer. Her mother was Miss Florence Nelsen. Miss Reinholdt was graduated in June from Briarcliff Junior College, which she entered from Mary Institute. Soon she and her family will move to their new home in Fair Oaks.

Another descendant of pioneer St. Louisans is Miss Frances Valle Reyburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Valle Reyburn, 366 Walton avenue, and granddaughter of the late Judge Valle Reyburn, whose old home at Twenty-eighth and Chestnut streets stood in a once fashionable part of St. Louis. Miss Reyburn attended Mary Institute and is a graduate of Villa Duchesne. Shortly after the close of school she went to Hyannisport, Mass., to be the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks at her summer home.

A debutante, whose family has been of social prominence here for many years, is Miss Jane Sandford Scudder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson Scudder, 15 Clermont lane. She will make her bow at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Saturday night, Nov. 20, at which her parents will be host and hostess. Following her graduation from Mary Institute a year ago last June she remained at home studying dancing. Her activities this past summer consisted of a several weeks' stay at Cardinal Lodge, Manitowish, Wis., with members of her family, and a trip to Maine and New York with friends late in the season.

Her aunt, Mrs. Charles Hunt Zelbig, is the former Miss Adaline Capen, who was Veiled Prophet queen the year of her debut. Mrs. Zelbig and Mrs. Scudder are the daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Capen.

A sister of Mrs. S. Hallock du Pont of Wilmington, Del., and of Mrs. John Crago of St. Louis, Miss Georgia Wright Simmons becomes the third debutante in her family. She is the daughter of Mrs. George Welch Simmons, 21 Westmoreland place, and a niece of Thomas H. Wright of St. Louis and of Thruston Wright of Pittsburgh. Miss Georgia was May queen in her class at Mary Institute, from which she was graduated a year ago. Last winter she traveled abroad, and this past summer has traveled from Wequetonsing, Mich., where she spent the early season, to New York and Wilmington. She is expected home later this month, and will make her debut at a Saturday night dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club Nov. 13.

After a summer at Tepee Lodge, a ranch in Wyoming Miss Mary Lee Smidt has returned to make her debut under the chaperonage of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cupples Scudder of Warson road, with whom she lives. Her party, set for Friday, Nov. 19, will be a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club. Miss Smidt attended Villa Duchesne, and was graduated from Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn. Last winter she was among the sub-debutante group traveling in Europe.

Informal parties, beginning with a luncheon at the Junior League tea room Monday, Oct. 11, are being planned in honor of Miss Louise Steffens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Steffens, 105 Linden avenue, Clayton. She spent two years at Radcliffe College after her graduation from Mary Institute.

Although there are three sets of sisters making debuts this winter, Miss Elizabeth Cordell and Miss Donne Tyler Stevens are the only twins. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McDonald Stevens, 6936 Pershing avenue. After being graduated from Mary Institute they attended Knox College at Coopperstown, N. Y., last winter. This summer was spent at the Stevens summer home at Sturgeon Bay, Wis. Mrs. Stevens plans to introduce her daughters at a reception from 4 to 6 o'clock the afternoon of Friday, Nov. 12, at the St. Louis Woman's Club. In December they will attend the coming-out parties of two of their former classmates at Toronto, Canada.

Mrs. Webster Tilton, a former St. Louisan, has arrived in St. Louis with her daughter, Miss Anne Stickney, who will be introduced to society here this year. Mrs. Tilton is at the Park Plaza, and Miss Stickney is with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Orion J. Willis of the St. Louis Country Club grounds. On the night of Saturday, Nov. 6, Miss Stickney will be formally introduced at a dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club. She was educated in the East, and spent last season in European travel. Her father was the late Stuart G. Stickney, and she is the niece of W. Arthur and A. Taylor Stickney.

The second member of her family to make a debut in recent years is Miss Hester Stocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Charles Stocker, 350 North Woodlawn avenue, Kirkwood. Her sister, Miss Mary Virginia, made her bow two seasons ago. Miss Stocker completed the two-year course at the Bennett School, Millbrook, N. Y., last June, and spent the summer at the Stocker cottage at Battle Lake, Minn., She is a graduate of Mary Institute. Her party will be a tea dance Hallowe'en eve, from 5 to 7 o'clock, at the Tower Room of the Congress Hotel. Guests will include the season's buds and their contemporaries.

The third pair of sisters in the debutante group are Miss Anne Eugenia and Miss Mary Julia Sullivan, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Bagnell, 9 Clermont lane. Already four large parties have been planned for them, including their own debut ball, to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Bagnell Nov. 10 at the St. Louis Country Club; a dinner dance at the same club about a week later with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Prenatt Green, as host and hostess; a reception by their great-aunt, Mrs. Charles McLure Clark, Nov. 8, at 20 Westmoreland place, and a dinner dance at Deer Creek Club to be given Dec. 3 by Mr. and Mrs. Elzey G. Burkham. Both girls spent two years at Miss Porter's School; both were students at Stuart School in Boston last winter, and Miss Anne had a year at Miss Child's Graduate School in Florence, Italy.

Miss Anne Haldeman Wendling, 4509 Pershing avenue, is the younger of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Wendling's daughters to make her debut, Miss Peggy having come out a few seasons ago. The present debutante was educated at Mary Institute and Villa Duchesne. She spent the early summer as the guest of friends in the East, and recently returned from Crab Orchard, Ky., where she visited her grandmother, Mrs. John Avery Haldeman. Her mother, the former Miss Jean Bruce Haldeman, was a Louisville belle before her marriage.

A sister of a former debutante is Miss Jane Porter Winter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Ben Wade Winter, 12 Beverly place. Miss Josephine Porter Winter, a bud of two seasons ago, will assist Mrs. Winter at Miss Jane's debut luncheon, which will take place Tuesday, Nov. 9, at the St. Louis Woman's Club. Another party arranged in her honor will be a cocktail party, Dec. 23, to which the college set will be invited as well as the debutantes. It will be given at the Winter home. The debutante is a former student at Mary Institute and Goucher College and attended school at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Imperial Ball Friday At East St. Louis

THE second annual Imperial Ball, sponsored by the East St. Louis Civic Federation, will be held Friday night at the Ainad Temple, in East St. Louis. Invitations are now being delivered to the 250 members of the club, patrons of the Lady of the Lakes Pageant, given last month.

A promenade of patrons, patronesses and maids of honor will open the ball at 10:30 o'clock. The auditorium will be decorated with marine scenes, simulating the mythical kingdom of Neptune.

After the promenade, the reigning Lady of the Lakes, Miss Doris Morgan, will enter the ballroom with her six retiring ladies in waiting and their escorts. Next, Neptune will enter, surrounded by his court and the whole group will be seated with ceremony.

Neptune'se page will summon the new Lady of the Lakes, whose identity has been kept secret. She is the daughter of one of the patrons. Her coronation is a colorful affair, after which she officially opens the dance with Neptune as her partner.

Invitation to the ball is by admission only and dress will be formal.

Lieut. L. A. Hall to Wed Miss Ann Eldredge

WORD was received Friday by Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hall, 6219 Rosebury drive, of the engagement of their son, Lieut. Linscott Aldin Hall, U. S. A., and Miss Ann Eldredge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Eldredge of Cape May, N. J.

Lieut. Hall is a grandson of the late Chancellor Frederic Aldin Hall of Washington University and of the late Mrs. Hall. He attended Washington University, where he became a member of Sigma Chi fraternity. Lieut. Hall also attended the United States Military Academy at West Point, from which he was graduated in June. He is temporarily stationed at Fort Totten, New York.

Miss Eldredge is a graduate of the New Jersey College for Women.

The wedding will take place Oct. 16 at Cape May, and Mrs. Hall plans to go East for the marriage. Lieut. Hall and his bride-to-be will sail Oct. 20 from New York for Hawaii, where he will be stationed two years.

Officers' Election

OFFICERS for the coming year were elected at the September meeting of the Saint Joseph's Academy Alumnae Association. Under provisions of the newly revised constitution, these officers will serve for two years. Miss Adriana Mercurio was re-elected president of the organization; Miss Katherine Tracy, first vice-president; Miss Octavia Querny, second vice-president; Miss Vera McElroy, treasurer; Miss Olga Girolami, corresponding secretary, and Miss Cecelia Reichert, recording secretary.

A social hour, to be held monthly at Fontbonne College, was planned.

Miss Helen Bryan and D. R. Johnson Engaged

At a luncheon given yesterday at the College Club for Miss Antoinette Adams of Oak Park, Ill., the engagement of Miss Helen Bryan and Dale R. Johnson was announced. A scroll attached to a small corsage at each plate outlined the plans the young pair have for their future home at 3 Garden lane, Kirkwood. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. W. M. C. Bryan, 5262 Maple avenue, and the late Dr. Bryan. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Johnson, 6926 Columbia avenue, University City.

Guests at the luncheon included Miss Adams, Miss Charlotte Anschuetz, Miss Laura Backlund, Miss Edmonia Beal, Miss Ruth Beal, Miss Betty Behymer, Mrs. Allen Bonnell, Miss Carolyn Burnett, Miss Margaret Cornwell, Miss Kate D'Arcy, Mrs. Arthur Darrow, Miss Betty Euwer, Mrs. Allen Drew Harper, Mrs. James S. At a smaller table were Mrs. T. L. Johnson, Mrs. W. J. S. Bryan and Mrs. Bryan, mother of the prospective bride.

Miss Bryan is a graduate of Washington University where she became a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of the university, also, and a member of Beta Theta Pi. The wedding will take place in December.

Surprise Party for Miss La Verne Bardgett

A SURPRISE party, beginning with a pre-wedding shower and including luncheon and bridge, was given yesterday afternoon at the Missouri Athletic Association by Miss Betty Ann Richards in honor of Miss La Verne Bardgett. The engagement of Miss Bardgett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Raymond Bardgett, 7525 Buckingham drive, and George Phillip Johannes III was announced last month.

The hostess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Richards, 4154 Hartford avenue, chose white for her table decorations, using a low centerpiece of pompons, and placecards of brides and bridegrooms in heart-shaped design alternating around the table.

Guests at the party included: Miss Bardgett, Mrs. Irvin Singler, Miss Gayle Bardgett, sister of the guest of honor, Miss Harriet and Miss Louise Burkart, Miss Mary Elizabeth Emken, Miss Virginia Ottsen, Miss Virginia Dumphy, Miss Virginia Cromer, Miss Virginia Shamieffer and Miss Mary Lou Sackbauer.

The bridegroom-elect is the son of Mrs. Charles P. Johannes, 5820 Clemens avenue.

Miss Burg Engaged To C. Robert Pommer

FRIENDS of Miss Eloise Burg were told at a luncheon yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. William H. Engelsmann, 7824 Delmar boulevard, of Miss Burg's engagement to C. Robert Pommer. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Burg, 3207 Copelin avenue.

When the guests were seated at the table, which was decorated in white autumn flowers, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Engelsmann, William Richard, entered the room dressed as a cupid and bearing a golden arrow on which the names of the engaged pair were written.

Miss Burg is a graduate of Washington University, where she became a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Mr. Pommer, nephew of Robert W. Pommer, 3225 Longfellow boulevard, was educated at the University of Marburg, Germany. He is a member of the Missouri Athletic Association.

The wedding will take place late next month.

Miss Nelda Abel Bride Of Dr. A. F. Zacher

THE marriage of Miss Nelda Abel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Abel of Kansas City, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, and Dr. Arthur F. Zacher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Zacher, 6131 Marwinette street, St. Louis, took place last evening at 7 o'clock in the lounge of Hotel Bellerive in Kansas City.

The bride was gowned in white slipper satin, made with a yoke of Venetian lace and buttoned down the back. A long tulle veil covered the circular train of the bride's gown, and fell from a coronet of lilies-of-the-valley. She carried orchids and lilies-of-the-valley in her bouquet.

Miss Shirley Abel was her sister's maid of honor, and wore fuchsia velvet, made period style with a short train. Gardenias fringed with lilies-of-the-valley were in her colonial bouquet and she wore gardenias in her hair. Miss Louise Magruder, bridesmaid, was in cornflower blue velvet, made like that of the maid of honor, and she carried a similar bouquet.

Erwin A. Zacher of St. Louis was best man for his brother, and groomsmen included Dr. Wilbert O. Woelbling and Dr. Carl M. Fellhauer of St. Louis and Dr. Elmer Schaberg of Wellington, Mo.

A reception and wedding supper were given after the wedding, also at the Bellerive Hotel.

Dr. Zacher and his bride left for a wedding trip in the East, and on their return will be at home at 3500 Miami street.

Mrs. Zacher attended Washington University. Dr. Zacher is a graduate of St. Louis University and a member of Psi Omega fraternity.

Henkel-Cox Wedding

MISS GEORGINE WETHERILL COX, daughter of Mrs. Walter Wetherill Cox, 6212 Alamo avenue, and Walter Allen Henkel were married yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block performed the ceremony and a reception was held afterward at Mrs. Cox's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henkel left later in the afternoon for a honeymoon in the north, and on their return will be at home at 8326 Monroe drive.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy and of Fontbonne College. Mr. Henkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Henkel, 7479 Hazel avenue, Maplewood, is a graduate of St. Louis University and of the City College of Law.

MRS. JOHN A. DUGAN, who was Miss Winifred Phelan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Phelan, 3005 Lafayette avenue. The wedding took place Sept. 8.

Miss Dorothy Davis' Engagement Announced

MR. AND MRS. HOMER J. DAVIS, 9020 Wabada avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Taylor Davis, and Arthur G. Randall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Randall of Hartford, Conn.

Miss Davis is a graduate of Drury College, Springfield, Mo., and received her M. A. degree from the University of Missouri. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and of Sigma Xi, honorary scientific fraternity. This past summer Miss Davis spent in Wyoming at Camp Lander, geology summer field school of the University of Missouri.

Mr. Randall is a graduate of Yale University where he received both his B. S. and M. S. degrees. He is a member of Beta Chi fraternity. He is district ranger at the Washakie National Forest near Lander, Wyo.

The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays.

J. W. Jamison Weds Miss Martha Galloway

THE wedding of Miss Martha Galloway and Joseph Warren Jamison took place in the French room of the Coronado Hotel at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Harry T. Scherer of Webster Groves Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony before members of both families and close friends. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Arthur Galloway, 7556 Byron place, and Mr. Jamison is the son of Mrs. Charles R. Meyers, 6357 Clayton road, and of Clyde S. Jamison, 7301 Colgate avenue, University City.

Green ferns, tall baskets of chrysanthemums and lighted white tapers formed a background for the wedding, and baskets of chrysanthemums were linked together with white satin to form an aisle for the bridal party.

The bride wore a princess gown of ivory satin and a tulle finger-tip-length veil caught to a halo of pleated tulle and orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Lucile Hansen and Maurice Sandhofer were the only attendants. Miss Hansen was in aqua blue moire, made with a bolero jacket and fastened with a wine colored velvet bow at the neckline. She carried flowers to match her costume.

Mrs. Galloway wore rust colored crepe with black accessories, and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Meyers was in navy blue crepe with blue accessories, and also wore gardenias.

After the wedding a reception was held in the French room, and later Mr. Jamison and his bride left for a wedding trip. They will make their home in St. Louis.

Mrs. Jamison attended Washington University and Goucher College, Baltimore. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Mr. Jamison is a member of Alpha Sigma Lambda fraternity.

LET PURE, HARMLESS

RE-COLOR YOUR

Gray Hair

SIMILAR TO NATURE'S OWN YOUTHFUL SHADE

Canute Water is a pure, colorless liquid of wonderful properties. When you apply this crystal-clear fluid to your gray, faded or streaked hair, it will again appear youthful, lustrous and uniform in color.

Not a single person has ever been injured by the use of Canute Water in over 23 years. This exceptional record is your guarantee that it is perfectly safe to use.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and dependability, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. Simply wet your hair with it and allow to dry.

The time of day or the state of the weather makes no difference when using Canute Water. Apply it at your convenience. And since it does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it—or get a permanent—as usual.

Speedy Action

It requires between one and three applications to re-color hair to its proper shade. The treatment can be completed in a single day.

And when your hair has once been re-colored, a single treatment, given only once a month, is sufficient to keep it that way. No more attention is necessary.

Never Fails

No matter what caused your hair to become gray, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions.

Even if you have used some other hair coloring, it will be a revelation to you to see what Canute Water can do for your hair.

Amazing Results

Canute Water is neither sticky nor greasy. It leaves your hair clean and natural to the touch. There's not even a suggestion of "dye". Neither is it just a hair "darkener". Canute Water imparts a color similar to nature's very own.

Lasting Color

Even your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. And the new color remains in your hair, permanent against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

So, if you are still young — if you still care what others think — and if you are not quite ready to be classed with the "old folks" get a bottle now. It will solve your problem so completely that you, yourself, will be astonished.

Users like Canute Water so well that it has become our best seller.

Betrothed

MISS HELEN BRYAN, daughter of Mrs. W. M. C. Bryan, 5262 Maple avenue, whose betrothal to Dale R. Johnson was made known yesterday at a luncheon at the College Club.

To Entertain Members Of Child Study Course

MRS. ALEXANDER CORNWELL, 536 Overhill drive, will be hostess at the first meeting Tuesday, at her home, of a child study course given under the auspices of John Burroughs School. The course, open to all parents, will consider "The Wholesome Development of Personality." Discussion Tuesday, on "The Guidance of Personality Development," will be led by Dr. Ethel Riddle, psychologist, and Leonard D. Haertter, director of John Burroughs School.

Another meeting will be held Tuesday, Oct. 12, at the home of Mrs. Fred Hume, 11 Carrswold. Speakers then will include Elsworth S. Obourn, head of the science department of John Burroughs, and Charles Merrifield, teacher of social studies.

Mrs. Frank M. See will be hostess for a meeting on Oct. 19 at her home, 41 Kingsbury place, when discussions will be given by Miss Margaret Ewing, teacher of dramatics; Mrs. Julian Janis, teacher of sculpture, and Ben Wells, teacher of English, all of the John Burroughs staff.

The final meeting will be held Oct. 25 at the home of Mrs. Fred B. Eiseman, 6463 Cecil avenue, and will be under the leadership of Dr. John B. Morgan, head of the department of psychology of Northwestern University, and author of many books on psychology.

Luncheon for Charity Campaign Workers

MRS. JOSEPH GLASER JR., general chairman of the west end region of the United Charities campaign, will give a luncheon Oct. 21 at Hotel Chase for the workers of her group. At the luncheon details of the campaign will be discussed. Mrs. L. Marquard Forster, chairman of one of the Forest Park districts has completed the personnel of her group, which includes Mrs. Doddridge Farrell as co-chairman and three team captains, Mrs. Eugene D. Gronk, Miss Marcella Berkley and Mrs. John J. Niemoeller.

Mrs. Edwin Levis, one of the three West End District chairmen, will have as co-chairman, Mrs. Robert Mayer and team captains, Mrs. Paul Peltason, Mrs. G. L. Harris, Mrs. Benjamin M. Loeb, Mrs. Harry Ackerman, Mrs. Max Myer, Mrs. H. C. Seldin, Mrs. Joseph Fischer, Mrs. Willard Levy and Miss Louise Bretzfelder.

Monticello Activities

STUDENTS from Monticello College, Godfrey, Ill., attended the horse show Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

Last week the senior class elected Miss Marilyn Woods of Lincoln, Neb., president; Miss Marilyn Martin of Highland Park, Ill., vice-president, and Miss Lucia Evans of Normal, Ill., secretary-treasurer. Miss Mary Jane Alspach is faculty adviser of the class.

The first edition this year of the Monticello College newspaper, "The Times," will be issued Friday night in connection with a special entertainment, "Times Hall Tonight." Members of the staff are Miss Thirza Jenkins of Canton, Ill., editor-in-chief; Miss Helen Paxton of Bloomington, Ill., associate editor; Miss Helen Lanagan of Fort Benning, Ga., editorial writer; Miss Alison Phillips of Highland Park, Ill., copy editor; Miss Esther Ann Wright of Newtonville, Mass., feature editor; Miss Phillis Sampson of Aurora, Ill., sports editor; Miss Lucia Evans of Normal, Ill., society editor; Miss Ann Caldwell of Birmingham, Mich., activities editor, and Miss Marilyn Martin of Winnetka, Ill., librarian. Business staffs of the paper will be headed by Miss Elizabeth Forester of Du Quoin, Ill., business manager, and Miss Ruth Cousley of Alton, Ill., circulation manager. Miss Mary Curtis Chenoweth, herself a graduate of Monticello, will be faculty adviser.

Phi Tau Omega Party.

Gamma chapter, Phi Tau Omega, held a breakfast bridge at the Coronado Hotel last Sunday as the first rush party of the season. Other events planned are an all-day outing at the country home of one of the members, and a theater party to be followed by a supper. Arrangements are in charge of Miss Georgia Barac, Miss Emily Brennecke, Miss Genevieve Douglas, Miss Alvera Haenel, Miss Mildred Kearney, Miss Mabelle Overbeck, Miss Ann Schomogy and Miss Mabel Wilmes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

WHAT the insurance companies don't know about the private lives of important folk who take out floaters on furs, jewelry and personal odds and ends of property isn't worth tabulating. Their spies are everywhere, and their dossiers are biographies of alarmingly intimate proportions, chronicled in entirely unequivocal language. You'd be suprised what they know about you. It's not only potential dishonesty that interests them, but folks' personal habits and associates. Lads who are constantly tumbling into gutters or stretching themselves out for a brief snooze on the pavement are bad risks because of the frequent possibility of getting rolled.

Boys and girls who keep open house and give perpetual parties are eyed with suspicion because they are always open to pillage at the hands of light-fingered lads who are known to exist in the very best white-tie circles, and so on. There are three or four youths in the night-place rowdy-dow entourage from whom the insurance people have recovered odd Cartier bracelets and emerald chips by Flato, but who have never been prosecuted because of the embarrassment it would cause their victims. One personable youth who arrived here last season and put up at the Plaza, where he lived in seeming propriety until he jumped his bill, had half of Manhattan fooled and was mistakenly asked to some very nice places until his habit of cashing drafts on banks where he had no account began to catch up with him.

But the insurance companies, whose agents a few years before had taken him into a side room in a celebrated Laguna, Cal., villa and removed $75,000 worth of his hostess's diamonds from his dinner-jacket pocket, began dropping hints in the right places and pretty soon Jimmy was turning him away at the door of "21" and all the town was wise to him. If the Plaza is still looking for him he was last heard of out Fire Island way a week or two ago in lamentable company.

LOOK 11 YEARS YOUNGER

You Can Take Many Seasons Off Your Age By Eliminating the Useless Habits of Mind And Body---Keep a Fresh Outlook on Life

By Gelett Burgess

YOUTH is full of vitamins. Age is full of germs. Age's face is shadowed with memories. Youth's face is lighted with expectation. The old say, "I remember when—" The young say, "What's the news?" If you want to be youthful never talk of the past unless you're answering a question and then change the subject as quickly as possible. Talk of today even if it's only about the weather. If you say you remember Maude Adams in Peter Pan they'll hunt for your wrinkles. If you say you're going to buy an airplane they'll never see them.

Age is usually critical. Old folks say, "I think he should have known better." Youth says, "What of it? I don't care." Why should you care either if it doesn't particularly concern you? If you wish to be youthful don't take anything seriously unless it is serious; which it usually isn't. It'll only bring old frowns into your face and make you look ugly, and you probably won't get your second husband. If you don't like Kate's dress what does it matter? Say it's lovely and Kate'll be happy and think you're lovely, too, and forget you're a grandmother.

You see, as the years go by, if we don't take care we're inclined to become argumentative. We're apt to exaggerate our likes and dislikes to the point of eccentricity. The old gentleman at the club fairly pile-drives his opinions on unimportant subjects. The old lady is often tremendously concerned about something that is really none of her business. Youth doesn't feel responsible for the world.

Though your heart is breaking, never tell your troubles if you wish to be youthful. Repeating how ungrateful Alice was after all you've done for her, or how you didn't get a wink of sleep last night, doesn't make you any friends, and it does age you more than false teeth or button boots. Those old French aristocrats during the Terror who went to death with a jest were far more youthful than the surly scowling workingwomen or the angry revolutionaries who howled at them as they passed by in the tumbrels. If you've lost your money or lost your girl you don't have to lose your youthfulness to boot. Aged people are fond of talking about ages. Over the coffee cups Uncle Hen wags his head and whines, "It doesn't seem possible that I'm 58!"

Women as a rule don't begin to bother much about age till they're nearing 30. And so, if you wish to be youthful, when ages are discussed keep out of the picture. Try to look young and don't show any interest. Yawn and look out of the window or open a book and turn the leaves in a bored way—the way they do in the movies. You'll be and seem much more youthful, too, if you never let that deadly phrase "at my age," or "women of our age," pass your lips.

Youth is always winding up the clock—keeping its freshness alive by change, by doing new things, by going places. Age is apt to let the springs of life run down without knowing it. It used to be thought that in a person's life the years which were multiples of seven were dangerous. They were called climacterics. But the coming of old age, the Grand Climacteric isn't really the year they thought it was—nine times seven—it isn't even when it becomes a minor tragedy to have to stoop and pick something up from the floor or when you begin to read the death notices the first thing in the papers. I've found, to my sorrow, that it was the time when I began to hate to have to dress to go out for a good time; when I growled, "Oh, Lord, was that the door bell? Who in heaven's name is coming at this hour when I want to finish this book?"

You can grow old if you rest overlong not only from work but from play. You become a dull boy if you stay away too long from life. If you wish to renew your youthfulness you must know what your juniors are talking about and laughing at and raving over. If you don't synchronize your life with youth once in a while you're likely to become an old fogy without ever realizing it.

No, I don't mean that at sixty-odd you have to be kicking up your heels till 4 a. m., every night. But age is cautious and youth is reckless and silly and if you don't go on a mild bat and do something foolish at times young people will be getting up and offering you their seats and saying "Yes, sir" to you, and helping you across streets. And so, if you feel yourself getting a little ancient you'd do well to jounce yourself with a youth-noise-and-laughter treatment. It'll destroy the negative germs you've caught in that easy chair or at the bridge table.

I once met an eminent bacteriologist in London, in his sixties he was, on whom such regenerative measures were forced by his daughter. She was a popular and frisky young beauty. He upbraided her one morning for her late hours and wild habits and she turned on him and accused him of being an old stick-in-the-mud. He'd sat in that old brown dressing gown in that chair there at that table, she said, so long that he was round-shouldered and absent-minded and covered with moss. She told him he didn't know a darned thing about what was happening in the world.

That day they made a compact, he told me. The daughter agreed that on the first and fifteenth of every month she'd go to bed at 10 o'clock if her father would get into a dress shirt, top hat, and tails, and skip out to a theater and take in a night club or two afterward.

It worked so beautifully that soon he was getting up earlier and taking morning walks and doing daily dozens so that he'd look better in evening dress. When he told me the story he said that the change in his habits had given him a new slant on his work and a fresh enthusiasm and he felt almost like a young man again.

THERE'S a new religion in the world of women since the war. Or rather an old paganism revived. The temples of this cult are to be found in every crossroads, village, town, city and metropolis in America. Its devotees are of all ages and classes from shopgirls to millionaires.

What does it mean, this universal rage that has come upon women to parade in ghastly masks that make men laugh or sneer? Have women gone mad that they think such unnatural means can make them young and attractive? Have they lost all natural sense of beauty?

The fact is the practice of making up the face has nothing to do with youth or beauty. It's merely a fashion—a ritualistic custom that has been revived, after a half-century of more or less naturalness or simplicity. It is derived from still more highly artificial practices which have been common among women ever since the dawn of civilization.

No woman in ancient Babylon or Thebes ever dared defy the current mode and leave her face unsophisticated. And it's the same today. Few women with any social pretensions can resist the fashion. The social penalty is too great. Most of them, indeed, would tattoo themselves or wear wooden disks in their upper lips if the Vanderbilts did, or even Joan Crawford. And they would undoubtedly persuade themselves that so adorned they were somehow more desirable.

Any sane cultivation of feminine beauty is all right enough. But the tricks and artifices of the modern commercial high priests of pulchritude are as hypocritical as those of ancient Egyptian priests in the temple of Ammon.

Women spend happy, hopeful hours in beauty parlors then go out and proceed to destroy all that those seductive beauticians have been trying to ameliorate. They exhaust themselves and tear their faces to pieces in a social whirl, frowning too much, laughing at nothing, worrying and fussing and going without sleep which alone would do more than all the facial treatments to restore their looks. Even a well-known beauty writer says that such socially strenuous types might better throw their whole collection of jars and bottles out the window and start again from scratch with a new philosphy of life. "They snow their wrinkles under a drift of powder," she says, "they lavish the foundation cream and rose blush, but 10 minutes afterward they're off thinking up ways of destroying the good work."

Few women realize that the lass who rubs them and steams and pats them doesn't work half so hard as does their secret antagonist. That clever old subconscious Satan is always on the job. A woman has to work or play, quarrel with her maid or run an office, telephone, sew, cook, attend to children or play bridge, perform a thousand activities that will take her mind away from her expression, voice, posture, and carriage, all of which should be consciously controlled till it becomes a habit if she wishes to be youthful. Her subconscious Satan has nothing to do but tempt her meanwhile to sag and crumple, talk excitedly, make nervous movements or grow negative and indulge in hundreds of habits that will make her appear old.

It's pathetic the fatuous way women who have neglected all common sense precautions to preserve their looks and youthfulness will sometimes try to excuse their apperance when time overtakes them to collect his bill. Some try to belittle the change and say, "Oh, it's only the light in the room, you know, that makes me look so." Or they say that if they had a little more sleep they'd be all right, and make no effort to improve their behavior. I've seen women sit with one hand slyly pushing up one side of a fallen face while talking and then pull their necks all the rest of the afternoon. If a vain and lazy lady is told that she's getting a double chin or an old back she'll probably hold her chin up or sit up straighter for a moment and say, brightly, "Now, it's all right, isn't it?" as if she were permanently cured, and five minutes afterwards fall back into the same senile pose.

Now let's turn to some discouraged person of 50 who may still be good looking, but seems no longer youthful. Do you find curiosity, attention, expectancy? Not often. Instead you find usually exactly the opposite qualities: boredom, abstraction, retrospection.

Then how can we acquire those three qualities of youthfulness? Perhaps we can illustrate the method of study and cure by observing two adult persons together. Two women, say. One is talking, the other is listening. Now the only two popular kinds of women's talk are narrative and description. It may be assumed, therefore, that one of our women is indulging in prolonged anecdote. The other, just for this once, is not interrupting her.

Now I ask you a riddle: In this simple, everyday scene which of these two women (other things being equal) seems the younger?

Many people, I'm sure, would choose the talker as the more youthful because she's in action and animated. They'll think she's positive and the other negative. They'll say the talker is dynamic and the listener is static.

You're mistaken. If you think it over you'll see that the reverse is true. The talker, you see, is telling things that she already knows. She is thus making no mental progress. It's mere vocal action without direction and is therefore mentally static. As for the three fundamentally youthful qualities, she has no curiosity, of course, to be satisfied; she has no attention except upon herself as talker and she has as little expectancy.

NO, THE listener may of course be bored, but if she's at all interested she is the more youthful. Her face is lighted with curiosity, attention and expectancy. She's passive physically but she is mentally alert. She's dynamic because she's moving forward mentally: she is learning something. Even if it's only how Fred treats his mother-in-law it's new to her. And therefore she must be the more youthful of the two. Even if she has behavior faults some of them are likely to be in abeyance while the talker is probably indulging in all of hers. She's off guard and perhaps making uncontrolled gestures, screwing up her cafe, and making grimaces which she thinks are appropirate expressions, and her voice is likely to be high or unrestrained when she says, "Why, my dear, he was simply crazy about me!"

If you doubt all this I'll tell you how you can prove its truth. The next time you go to the theater, during the intermission watch any group of women talking together. You'll usually see them laughing nervously, making absurd grimaces, speaking hectically and on unnatural notes. All their paint and powder won't prevent the lines coming out and making them seem artificial and old. No curiosity, no attention, no expectation—all chattering at once. There's no mental work done; they are like engines blowing off steam.

And then when the house is darkened and hushed and the curtain has gone up again you won't recognize those women as the same persons. As they watch the play and listen their faces are relaxed and calm and dignity has crept into them. They show curiosity, attention, expectation. When there's something on the stage to laugh at their laughter is spontaneous and

If You Would Be Youthful—

IF you would be youthful don't dwell in the past.

Don't be unduly critical. Taking things seriously unless they are serious is a senile fault.

Don't be argumentative. Discuss without heat.

Age is usually destructive in talk and dwells on unpleasant, gloomy, or sad subjects. Youth is optimistic.

Telling your troubles makes you negative.

Talking about ages is a sign of old age.

Don't get anchored at home and lose contact with life.

Associate occasionally with young people to keep in step with youth and recharge your batteries.

If you do foolish things occasionally you won't freeze up into old age.

AND DON'T, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, DANGLE YOUR SLIPPER FROM ONE TOE, OR "REST" YOUR ANKLES IN THE MANNER ILLUSTRATED.

If You Would Appear Senile—

DEFEATISM registers itself just as a physical disease registers itself in the face and on the body, in the voice, in gesture, expression, in visible symptoms of decrepitude for all to see and talk about.

And that unconscious slump into negativity, you'll find, goes faster and faster as you indulge it. It's like a runaway horse. It carries you downhill towards a state where, before long, you actually lose control of many of your minor actions. You scratch your head, you're fatuous about trifles, pick your teeth, grow peevish, find fault, forget your table manners, talk with your eyes closed, yawn, mumble and drool, and do things you'd have laughed at or shuddered at when you were young. You don't realize how you appear to others and finally you don't even care.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN
By Dorothy Coleman

HATTIE McWORTER got out her white silk poplin uniform and white shoes and stockings this week to be sure they were spotless for the Veiled Prophet Ball Wednesday night. She is to wait on the new queen, the retiring queen, and the four special maids as she has done since Mary Virginia Collins was crowned by His Mysterious Majesty in 1924. Although Hattie is a cateress and might well use her all-white outfit between balls, she doesn't—for sentiment's sake. Just lays it away until the next October, hoping to get to wear it for the same purpose. She can't say it's the original one she has worn all these years, for styles and figures do change.

Hattie started working for the Veiled Prophet Association even before 1924, although exactly how long she can't remember. As we sat in the smartly-furnished living room of her home at 4327 Cote Brilliante, she told us how it came about.

A customer of hers first broached the idea. "I thought there wasn't any hope for me at all, because you know those committeemen all have Negro friends who would gladly work for nothing just to see the Veiled Prophet Ball, but I put in my application anyway. I had to give a great many references." That wasn't hard, for Hattie had been in the homes of many men who have the ear of the masked and mysterious monarch.

SHE STARTED at the bottom of the ladder—"resting wraps" in the dressing rooms of the maids and matrons. That was nice, she said, because you always made $5 or $6 in tips in addition to what the association paid. But it was not long before ambition began to stir in her ample bosom. "I never was one just to sit back and let things move past me," she explained. "I thought I might as well ask if there was any chance to change. So I was promoted to the queen's room. I miss the tips, but just think of the honor!" "The honor," in this choicest of all locations is of supreme importance to Hattie McWorter. She feels now that she can go no higher in the hierarchy of behind-the-scenes attendants. If they put her in charge of all the attendants she would only have executive responsibilities, she thinks, and not nearly so much fun.

She considers the evening "fun," but it entails plenty of work for Hattie and her one assistant. They are expected to arrive at the auditorium by 5 o'clock in the evening, although the special members of the court do not begin to come in before 8:45. Her first job is to unpack a huge case of toilet fittings for the six dressing tables, and miscellaneous equipment for any emergency. She has to see that the full-length mirrors are properly placed, and the chaises longues, lamps, and other furniture arranged about the room, so that it looks "just like a nice parlor." White slip covers must be put on the dozen or so chairs that line the walls. The screens must be set up that separate the room reserved for parents of the specially-chosen young women, who are not permitted in the queen's apartment. The white cassock must be out where the girls can rehearse kneeling on it, as they genuflect to receive their diadems. That all takes time.

YOU'D JUST BE SURPRISED at how much excitement there is, Mrs. McWorter exclaimed. One of the tasks she enjoys most is taking the queen's ermine train from the special trunk in which it is delivered to the queen's room, and spreading it out full length. It is so heavy that Hattie has to have help in lifting it.

A little later, she receives the refreshments, which take the place of supper for most of the girls, who were too excited to touch food before they left home. But once arrived, they will take coffee—sometimes more than one cup—hot bouillon, and sandwiches. Hattie, who is professionally expert in such matters, has it all spread out on two card tables at one end of the room.

If the girls would just sit quitly and wait until their names are called, Hattie thinks they would keep much calmer and certainly make things easier for her. But they won't. From the minute they reach the queen's room, letting their expensive wraps lie where they fall—for Hattie to pick up—they are "sashaying" around.

"I tell you," Hattie told us, "you just have to be on roller skates to keep up with them."

They shriek over each other and themselves. They want to see their bouquets right away. They mob the retiring queen for advice on court etiquette. They carry on

by Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THE letter from "Looking Forward" has made me realize that I have failed to write to you again about a possible Christmas Club. But I do think it is a splendid idea, and would like to help in such a plan. However, I did begin early in the Spring to make gifts for this coming Christmas, and just in case it might give someone else some help, I will tell you some of the things I have done.

In the late winter sales, I bought yarn and knitted scarfs for elderly people. Then, I have crocheted several all-lace centerpieces and scarfs out of this crochet string which has been so popular to work with, this year. Also, a fine tatted edge on white linen handkerchiefs has a prominent place in my gift collection. It is easy to see that these are all gifts for women and girls, and I would surely appreciate some suggestions on gifts for boys and men—besides handkerchiefs and ties.

Here is a suggestion for helping those who need it most meaning the children in our orphanages and in our Foreign Mission fields. If you have an accumulation of Christmas cards which you have received from year to year and you do not care to keep them; the writing on them can be erased, or crossed out, and they can be sent to our missionaries to be given to their little folks.

Mrs. Carr, I am a very happy wife and mother, and I have no problems to bring to you; but I always read your column with interest and you give me ideas which I may use to help others who come to me. You little realize how far your helpfulness and kindness reaches.

With all good wishes,
HAPPY TOO.

A Christmas Club organized this early, with serious intention of making that season happier and brighter for others not so fortunately situated, ought to be a success. I shall be glad to use the column in any way that is practicable and I would like to have suggestions from those who have useful and interesting plans to make the idea workable and a success.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● I WANT TO SAY an encouraging word to "Barbara," who wrote to your column; I think I can help her. I had a problem almost like hers. I couldn't have nice clothes like other girls, although we could afford it. Father has a good job, but my step-mother wouldn't buy me nice things. So I got a job, and don't make much, but I am working my way through night school. And I am sure if she likes school as I do, she will like night school; it is swell.

School started last Monday at 7:30, and so she should look after it right away. I am 15 also and am in the eleventh grade. It is loads of fun going to night school. Hoping to solve her problem,
CONTENTED.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

We should like to know the name and address of the studio that Ray Corrigan and Bob Livingston are connected with. What is the charge for photographs of movie stars? RUTH AND JANIE.

Corrigan and Livingston are with Republic Studio, 4024 North Radford, Hollywood, Cal. In the past the usual charge for stars' photographs was 25 cents.

—o—o—

Dear Martha Carr:

IS ONE CONSIDERED A SNOB while one is vacationing and traveling because one does not entertain, go to dinner and spend all the time with the crowd?

I like to relax and read. And, also, is it polite to be asked one's age, occupation, address, telephone number and otherwise personal and familiar questions the first time you meet strangers? Especially, unless you expect to be friends? ANXIOUS.

If everyone were compelled on a vacation to be on the go constantly and at the beck and call of persons around a resort for instance, the word "vacation" would hardly be an appropriate name for the time spent in the place. Those who do not care to join in these social affairs but prefer rather to keep to themselves and read, are certainly privileged to do so. And those who have traveled and are versed in the customs of good society would never think of using the word "snob" in speaking of this. Personal questions of the kind you mentioned are taboo among well-bred people anywhere.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

● I WOULD LIKE TO ANSWER "Lonely Wife" and "Broken Hearted Wife" (I think they are the same).

I happen to know the girl these letters refer to, and whom they call "an unworthy woman," friend of the husband. Mrs. Carr, this girl is a lady in every respect and she isn't stealing anybody's husband and I do know that she had nothing to do with the separation of this husband and wife. The constant nagging and treating of a husband in his own home as a stranger would drive any man to look for another companion. P. O. U. W.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

A CLUB TO WHICH I BELONG will meet soon. If you have any new ideas or games will you please print them in your column.
ELISE AND DOROTHY.

I have some new guessing games being printed now. These I have not room for in the column, but send me self-addressed, stamped envelope and I will mail them to you. Everybody likes guessing games.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A CONSTANT READER of your column, I have never read a more interesting letter than that recently published and signed, "Old Fashioned." Of the opposite sex, I have the same problems; unfortunately, every girl I chance to date seems rather disappointed if we do not have an abundance of drinks and smokes and dance until the wee hours.

Not a bit conceited, I am 6 feet tall, slender and a good dancer and not claiming to be a saint. I am considered a good conversationalist. I do not belong to a Sunday School, but attend services of a Baptist church.

I have always been particular in my choice of young lady friends. However, it would be a pleasure to meet someone different.

I am aware of the fact, Mrs. Carr, that you do not give or exchange names or addresses through your column, but I would appreciate hearing more from "Old Fashioned" in your column. LOOKING FOR THE ONE I WANT.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

Millinery Being Chosen to Suit Each Ensemble

Vogue Is Becoming More Apparent as Autumn Season Advances.

THE vogue of hats matching in color or fabric some dominant theme of the costume is becoming more apparent as the autumn season advances, and seems to be stimulating a greater interest in millinery chosen to suit each specific ensemble.

Halo turbans of the summer which matched sports frocks were forerunners of a fall style for tiny calots or caps made of dress materials. Some of these are rather formal while others are decidedly casual in appearance. Novelty velvet is, perhaps, most representative of the more formal types. Several dinner suits of street length made of black velvet dotted with metallic ornaments have calots of the same luxurious material. These caps are unadorned and fit the head quite snugly. Jersey and tweed are employed for sports versions of the theme, the cap usually matching only part of a costume such as a jacket, blouse or skirt.

High shako turbans of velvet and duvetyn are being created especially for dresses of the same fabrics. They are often selected in interesting colors such as plum, grape, royal blue or wine and supply a flattering color scheme when worn with a black wrap and black footwear. Sheer woolen turbans follow the same trend, matching a dress or a costume suit.

THE ALLIANCE of hat and gloves is another development of the season which offers diversion in accessory schemes. Colorful shades are stressed to wear with black frocks, suits and coats. For example, dark red gloves and hat may be selected or a black hat which has wine colored quill or other ornamentation will match the gloves. Odd shades of gray-blue, blue-green and other newcomers this season are being adopted for these ensembles.

The hat and scarf made of fur supply luxurious interest to many tailored costumes. Such sets are being made of inexpensive pelts such as lapin as well as of Persian lamb, mink and other quality types. When featured of a fur suitable for spectator sportswear, the hat usually is of the close-fitting cap type and the scarf is of Ascot styling. For more elegant costumes, the hats assume more striking silhouettes while handsome stole types of scarfs are stressed.

HAT AND BAG, hat and muff and hat with matching fur-trimmed gloves are among other alliances which illustrate the use of fur in the accessory mode. Since furs are being handled this year much as felts or fabrics there is no limitation placed upon design. Color also runs rampant because the dyers are as successful in dipping pelts into the dye pot as they are in the tinting of materials.

The vogue of antelope hats has made it possible to obtain hat ensembles that provide an interesting tie-up of accessories. Noted among the hat and bag sets of this leather is an exaggerated black beret trimmed with ostrich tips and matched by a double handbag of the drawstring type. The bag repeats the black and white theme of the ostrich trimming by having a white lining. Taffeta, metallic fabrics, duvetyn and many other handsome fabrics that are popular this season are employed for equally attractive sets.

New Raincoats In the Offing

WHILE the transparent raincapes with their attached hoods will continue to brighten rainy days in St. Louis—when and if the rainy season ever sets in—there is news of a swing to British rainwear in exclusive fashion circles. These very English looking coats are made of shantungs, gabardines or broadcloth with white and natural linen shade featured in preference to gay colors. Large patch pockets, wide belts, velveteen collars and covered buttons are evidences of good tailoring.

Oilskin rain sets consisting of coat and umbrella are sponsored by several designers who include bright plaids as well as conservative colors. The short "slicker" that has a youthful, boxy swing to the hemline is another dull-day fashion that is gaining a following.

Leather Trimmings

There is no limit to the tricks designers are playing with suede and other supple leathers in the creation of autumn fashions. Noted among the latest arrivals in St. Louis shops is a knitted dress which has a vestee-like panel of contrasting leather. Equally as striking are the trimming details of another wool frock. Suede forms a flat sailor collar, deep cuffs and a wide waistline band, the lower part of which extends to a peplum. Leather buttons are used extravagantly on a sports frock of plaid woolen while many other dresses and jackets have leather collars.

GLAMORIZING With POWDER PUFF

"The Handling of This Beauty Aid Can Make or Break a Woman's Allure"

By ALICE WADE ROBINSON
NOTED BEAUTY NEWS AUTHORITY

THIS may surprise you: Dermatologists tell me that the American woman's complexion is getting better and better every year. We really should be proud about this. It's a reward for our labor. We haven't the beautifying mists to help us, either, as English, Irish and Scotch women have. We have had simply such aids as science gave: the best complexion soaps in the world, well-compounded creams, reliably made makeup. That's all—plus, of course, the will to use them, hands to do the work, and suitors to admire.

All of which brings us to the one point in makeup which can make or break our allure: powdering.

There should be two powderings for the routine morning makeup; two powderings as well for glamor after dark. The first is applied thickly directly after the foundation when the skin is moist. At that time—whether for day or evening—as much powder is pressed into the face with a fluffy puff or cotton as the face will take. Be lavish. It means using more powder at one time than you ordinarily do. But in the long run it's a saving. Having done this, brush off the excess with a bit of cotton, a powder brush or a rabbit's foot. Then dash upon the face spurtings of cold water. This will "set" both the cream rouge (it prefaced the powder) and the powder itself. Let a good amount of the dashed-up water dry upon your face, proceed with your dressing. Do everything—in a dressing way—except put on your frock (if it's for daytime wear) or your gown (if you've a date when the mazdas reign.) All ready? Now critically examine your face. Smooth out the powder ridges. Brush your eyelashes and brows. Look to the cream rouge which already tones your cheeks. Wipe off your lips.

All set? Very well. Let powdering rest a moment. Make up your eyes. That means a discreet touch of mascara on the upper lashes; a touch of mascara on the brows. Or, if you prefer eyebrow pencil, use the wetted point of the pencil delicately upon the eyebrows. But let no hard trailing pencil line betray you at the brow's ends.

Now we come to the second powdering. This time powder any special point which needs toning down or special accenting. If your nose is too prominent, use a darker powder here than elsewhere. If your chin needs emphasis, use a lighter powder there. If your eyes are your best feature, use a darker powder on the forehead and high on the cheeks. Here's a logical place for the cardinal rule in powder skill: darker powders, those with suntan tones or deep peach and rachel tintings cause too prominent features to retreat; lighter powder shades give prominence to a receding chin, a snub nose, sunken cheeks. Powdered the second time? No ridges, no blobs? You've carefully examined the complexion ensemble?

Then to your frock. Put it on. Straighten your hair. Another touch of mascara to the upper lashes. Brush the lower with a dry brush to free them of powder leavings. Next, your lipstick, please. Your first coating went on with your first powdering. This final application intensifies the color, causes it to last much longer.

But before going out look once more at your face in the most revealing light your house or apartment affords. Repowder the forehead or nose again if need be. Reshadow or re-emphasize the chin. Smooth a pinpoint of eyecream over the lids—if it's daytime—or a bit of eyeshadow for evening. You should be finished from the makeup point of view. So thoroughly made-up that your face should need no retouching for at least four hours. You can hardly expect more than that. Four hours of peace from compact-prinking! That's your return from skillful powdering.

Here is powder wisdom: Is your hair gray? Try a peach toned powder. You'll look younger. Do you blush easily? Try a rose cream shade. Do you wish to have a pearly-toned skin at night? For your second powdering use a green or mauve tint. You'll be whiter than a pearl. Want your nose to appear slimmer? Smooth a bit of rather dark powder along the sides of the nose. Are you too healthy-looking to appear romantic at night? Try mauve powder over your ordinary skin tone. You'll have a most alluring pallor.

Powder shades? They're legion. White and pink, though, are definitely passe. No one wants to look powdered nowadays. So, since the unpowdered appearance is definitely smart, it's wise to have a rather wide range of powder shades from which to choose. Your skin changes color more frequently than you realize. A change in hat brims means a change in skin color tone. So be prepared. Since you're an artist when you turn to facial makeup, be sure that your palette of powder shades offers a wide choice of color tones. It will spur on your skill.

THE MODERN GIRL'S RULE: "ALWAYS A FRESH POWDER PUFF."

MEN ARE HYPERCRITICAL OF MAKE-UP EXTRAVAGANCES.

GLAMOR GOSSIP BOX

PERFUMED jewelry is popular again. Jane Picken's beetle pin, for instance, has for a tummy a quarter-dram well of Jane's new Hawaiian perfume. * * * * Freddie Gibson, soloist with Mark Warnow's Hit Parade orchestra, has her own makeup trick: She tips her lashes with silver iridescent mascara. Pretty! * * * * Peasant blouses still go on. Marlene Dietrich is having several especially made up in Budapest for three close friends. * * * * Jeanette MacDonald, Gracie Allen and Joan Blondell are handkerchief collectors; rare old lace ones as well as inexpensive gala-toned modern wisps. * * * * Mildred Cram, novelist, collects Bach, Chopin phonograph discs.

The Powder Puffs Of Beauty Editor

SPEAKING of powder puffs: launder them every day when you do your stockings. Hang them in the hot sun to dry.

—o—o—

SOME women prefer to use fresh cotton for powdering. There are boxed squares of it now on sale in every drug and department store.

—o—o—

IF YOU simply must use your compact in public, do it with grace—and powder with an immaculate puff or cotton square.

—o—o—

CERTAIN colored clothes make your skin seem fairer; some make it look darker. One manufacturer has offered for sale a set of colored crepe-paper capes as a skin tone and costume harmonizing guide.

—o—o—

NIGHT lighting demands a much more careful makeup than sunshine does. The first robs you of color, the latter may give you too much.

—o—o—

DON'T pile powder on powder, rouge on rouge, lipstick on lipstick—all day long. Cleanse the face before applying new makeup. Do this both for complexion's and art's sake.

—o—o—

A TOUCH of light powder on the chin lengthens a broad face.

—o—o—

DARK powder on the top of the chin shortens a long face.

—o—o—

MATCH your powder to your darkest skin tone. This is usually on the back of the neck.

—o—o—

LOTS of freckles? Your powder should match them.

HANG YOUR PUFFS IN THE SUN TO DRY.

"Man Is Nature's Pet" -:- -:- -:- By Helen Rowland

WHEN women won the ballot and began helping themselves to all of men's cherished little privileges and vices they believed that they would get as much fun out of life as men do.

Alas, they forgot that man is nature's pet—and that nature gave him all the breaks when she gave him that buoyant and irrepressible capacity for ENJOYING himself! When she made him "a-boy-for-ever," at heart!

If any of you were among those present last June, when the alumni of some of our bigger universities were celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary, you will get some idea of what I mean. At one of these reunions more than a hundred of these 50-year-old boys—tall ones, short ones, fat and thin ones—paraded around the stadium cunningly arrayed and made up as Shirley Temple, short skirts, curls and all!

Never was the college yell given more lustily, or the old songs harmonized with more gusto and abandon. Big business and high blood pressure were forgotten. Every mother's son of them seemed bursting with high spirits and enthusiasm. And what a night they made of it, afterward! The town and the frat houses rang with it, until dawn. Just a lot of "good clean fun" that would give ANY woman nervous prostration!

Yet, at a woman's college only a few miles away, 30 members of the same class, all dressed in dignified white, marched sedately through the campus grounds to the chapel steps and sang—and somebody recited the class poem. Hohum!

But that's the difference between a man and a woman. A man ENJOYS everything; his business, his games, and particularly his creature comforts. He can play golf until he is ready to drop, and come in radiating joy and well-being. He always sleeps completely and serenely—and sometimes out loud. And he can get more real pleasure out of a hamburger sandwich than a woman can out of squab on toast.

Of course, when it comes to the more esthetic pleasures like beauty, love, music, clothes and dancing, or like books, plays and good pictures, a woman CAN get a kick out of them. Yet I doubt that a woman ever got as much satisfaction and real thrill out of a new fur coat as a man can get out of a bright new cravat.

This is probably because woman is the responsible sex, and is always worrying about something. Even at a perfect party she will spend half the time wondering if her dress is right, if her nose needs powdering or if somebody is trying to kidnap her boy friend.

She may tint her gray hairs, have her face lifted and wear her skirts short; but she can't fool herself, thinking that she's "a girl, forever"!

That's why a man gets more fun out of life in a week than a woman gets in a year.

Heavy Jewelry Is Now in Style

IF a husband surveys his wife's extravagant display of jewelry and remarks that she looks like a Christmas tree, she should consider this a compliment!

The style dictator's say that it is considered very smart this season to pile on all of the geegaws that are available and to pay no attention to such little matters as the matching of stones, metals or colors. The more, the merrier, is their slogan and they offer a conglomeration of heavy necklaces, bracelets and pins to encourage the cluttered theme in costume adornment.

Take a simple little black jersey dress, for example, and see what happens to it when the enthusiastic jewelry mixers get hold of it. First, a silver or gold mesh collar is tacked firmly to the plain neckline so there is no danger of it being omitted. Over these are draped two or three necklaces, depending upon quantity available and the daring of the owner. Several heavy and elaborate bracelets then are slipped on the arm.

All of which may seem rather terrible to the conservatives, but nevertheless represents "high style" of the autumn.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"WHAT would I do if I were dictator?" Recently we tossed that question to Young America—found we'd started a riot. The answers swamped us. Judge their quality for yourself by this typical answer:

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Here's what I'd do if I were dictator for a day.

"Marriage—Every couple would have to have physical and mental examination. Every couple to attend a pre-marriage school for two weeks, conducted by one qualified to teach responsibilities of marriage.

"Education—Permit young people who SERIOUSLY want college education to be able to have it through government aid. Their high school records would prove whether they were seriously interested. This to be repaid by deducting amount along with Social Security deduction, after they were working.

"Charity—Those at the heads of charitable organizations be investigated thoroughly to assure money properly spent; a free school for birth control information; food and clothing distribution rather than money.

"Business—Married women taken unless proof is given of husband's inability to support family. If husband made over a certain amount (according to number in family) wife is entitled to no salary. Board of Advisors to pass upon dismissals to avoid unfairness. Thorough business training made available to all students.

"General government—Install a merit system instead of the "pull system." When a Democratic mayor left office, all good Democratic street cleaners would not be fired. Examinations required, such as civil service. Enforce a landlord-tenant law prohibiting unfair rents, unfair evictions, unfair restrictions as to children. Build comfortable, healthful apartments near schools for families with children only. And of course, have a minimum wage law.

"Janie Yarnell—age 17,
"Highland Park, Mich."

—o—o—

NEXT THERE'S an appeal from young Sara Moore of Phoenix City, Ala., which should open all hearts from Cape Cod to the Golden Gate.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Can a person ever live down the wrong he once did? Although a man has paid by serving time and in many other ways, must he be reminded of it in every turn and walk of life?

"When a boy who has lived the wrong kind of life by drinking, gambling and staying out all night tries to begin life over, should everyone knock him?

"In my eyesight he is as good as anyone who has always tried to be honorable, but my parents say he isn't fit to be seen with me on the streets.

"If he wants to marry and settle down, should his past life stand against him?

"I say no. Forget the past and think of the future.

"Sara Moore, age 18,
"Phoenix City, Ala."

God bless you for your warm and generous heart, little girl. But remember — God gave us heads as well as hearts to use. Use yours now, for the boy's sake as well as your own. Be sure that this reform goes deeper than words—let it prove itself in act.

Marriage is a cruel test of even the strongest folk. To one who is weak—still struggling to regain his footing—the responsibility of a wife may well be too heavy a load. There's bound to be bliss at first—but when the inevitable monotony and sacrifice begin, look out!

So wait a bit. Give him his chance. Don't let your impatient love be the cause of another catastrophe.

—o—o—

AND THEN another bright breeder from young Ruth Lowry of Chehalis, Wash., who disagrees with the young American who says that "young people should be given the ballot at 18."

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Give us the ballot at 18?

"Emphatically no!

"Young people of 18 are impetuous—with minds as plastic as clay and no fixed ideas. They flit from one idea to another, passionately defending each one in turn. They are just children. They beg, borrow or bully their kid brother's allowance, and sulk if they can't have the family car. Imagine giving them the right to select our nation's leaders or determine its laws!

"It's insane to throw such babies into the greatest game of life when they are still playing 'postoffice' at their own parties and squabbling over every order Dad gives. Comprehensive, tolerant wisdom comes only with the years—it simply can't be found in 18-year-olds.

"Ruth Lowry—age 16,
"Chehalis, Wash."

That's a great letter, Ruth, even though many won't agree with you. But I'm afraid you offset your own argument. For I've met many a grizzled politician who didn't have as much sound sense and fine patriotism in his whole body as you seem to have in your spunky little finger.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"WHAT would I do if I were dictator?" Recently we tossed that question to Young America—found we'd started a riot. The answers swamped us. Judge their quality for yourself by this typical answer:

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Here's what I'd do if I were dictator for a day.

"Marriage—Every couple would have to have physical and mental examination. Every couple to attend a pre-marriage school for two weeks, conducted by one qualified to teach responsibilities of marriage.

"Education—Permit young people who SERIOUSLY want college education to be able to have it through government aid. Their high school records would prove whether they were seriously interested. This to be repaid by deducting amounts along with Social Security deduction, after they were working.

"Charity—Those at the heads of charitable organizations be investigated thoroughly to assure money properly spent; a free school for birth control information; food and clothing distribution rather than money.

"Business—Married women taboo unless proof is given of husband's inability to support family. If husband made over a certain amount (according to number in family) wife is entitled to no salary. Board of Advisors to pass upon dismissals to avoid unfairness. Thorough business training made available to all students.

"General government—Install a merit system instead of the "pull system." When a Democratic mayor left office, all good Democratic street cleaners would not be fired! Examinations required, such as civil service. Enforce a landlord-tenant law prohibiting unfair rents, unfair evictions, unfair restrictions as to children. Build comfortable, healthful apartments near schools for families with children only. And, of course, have a minimum wage law.

"Janie Yarnell—age 17,
"Highland Park, Mich."

—o-o—

NEXT THERE'S an appeal from young Sara Moore of Phoenix City, Ala., which should open all hearts, from Cape Cod to the Golden Gate.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Can a person ever live down the wrong he once did? Although a man has paid by serving time and in many other ways, must he be reminded of it in every turn and walk of life?

"When a boy who has lived the wrong kind of life by drinking, gambling and staying out all night, tries to begin life over, should everyone knock him?

"In my eyesight he is as good as anyone who has always tried to be honorable, but my parents say he isn't fit to be seen with me on the streets.

"If he wants to marry and settle down, should his past life stand against him?

"I say no. Forget the past and think of the future.

"Sara Moore, age 18,
"Phoenix City, Ala."

God bless you for your warm and generous heart, little girl. But remember — God gave us heads as well as hearts to use. Use yours now, for the boy's sake as well as your own. Be sure that this reform goes deeper than words—let it prove itself in act.

Marriage is a cruel test of even the strongest folk. To one who is weak—still struggling to regain his footing—the responsibility of a wife may well be too heavy a load. There's bound to be bliss at first—but when the inevitable monotony and sacrifice begin, look out!

So wait a bit. Give him his chance. Don't let your impatient love be the cause of another catastrophe.

—o-o—

AND THEN another brawl breeder from young Ruth Lowry of Chehalis, Wash., who disagrees with the young American who said that "young people should be given the ballot at 18."

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Give us the ballot at 18?

"Emphatically no!

"Young people of 18 are impetuous—with minds as plastic as clay and no fixed ideas. They flit from one idea to another, passionately defending each one in turn. They are just children. They beg, borrow or bully their kid brother's allowance, and sulk if they can't have the family car. Imagine giving them the right to select our nation's leaders or determine its laws!

"It's insane to throw such babies into the greatest game of life when they are still playing 'postoffice' at their own parties and squabbling over every order Dad gives. Comprehensive, tolerant wisdom comes only with the years—it simply can't be found in 18-year-olds.

"Ruth Lowry—age 16,
"Chehalis, Wash."

That's a great letter, Ruth, even though many won't agree with you. But I'm afraid you offset your own argument. For I've met many a grizzled politician who didn't have as much sound sense and fine patriotism in his whole body as you seem to have in your spunky little finger.

CLOSE-UP of ST. LOUIS FASHIONS

GIRLS GLITTER AGAIN

By Prunella Wood

THE BLACK AND GOLD LAME DINNER DRESS, ABOVE, IS A FIND FOR THE WOMAN WHO WANTS A GOOD GOWN TO FALL BACK ON ALL WINTER — AND IT IS NOT EXTRAVAGANT. RIGHT, A PLAIN BLACK GOWN WITH HANDSOME GOLD SEQUIN BOLERO, DOUBLE-DUTY FOR FORMAL AND LESS FORMAL NIGHTS.

MOST of the first models in to salute the dressier side of the new fashion picture glitter like circus wagons. The more gold, the better—hear the lion roar, see the snake charmer—seems to be the recipe. This department has hurt eyes from them already, and with thankfulness turns back to the kind of glitter dresses which have always been in good taste, and which are particularly popular with well-dressed Americans who take but faint interest in the violent trends of fashion.

Two lovely frocks of this order are sketched here today — exquisite models in fresh styles, discreetly gilded and ready for competition with any fashion upstart there is, however much ballyhoo it may swing.

Both are black and gold—the upper figure in a lame, with blue velvet belt; the lower figure in draped black crepe, its decollete very dashing beneath a bolero made of various sizes and shades of gold sequins. A thin black line details the shoulders and the sleeves, tying the jacket to the gown in good ensemble forthrightness.

New Yorkers Favor Short, Boxy Jackets

They Give Women's Figures That Necessary Slim-Hipped Appearance.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

THOUGH 'tis a bit early to nominate the actual winners of the fall fashion stakes, we definitely predict that the short, boxy fur jackets will "place" and "show," if not actually walk away with the blue ribbon.

We hate to be of the "told you so" school, but for months we have been screaming our heads off about the great chic of these square boxy coats in silver and blue fox, baum marten, sable dyed kolinsky, and in the sportier skunk and possum. With their almost "topheavy" look they give the figure that "deevinely" slim-hipped appearance and make last season's bulky capes in the same pelts look about as outmoded as Model T Fords.

This striking contrast was vividly portrayed at "21" yesterday, where we watched the smart luncheon brigade file in at the magic hour of 1. No matter how stunning the hat, dress or accessories, any woman hugging a bulky fur cape ruined the "tout ensemble" and looked, indeed, frumpish compared with the chic women who sposored the trim fur jackets.

Mrs. Dan Topping was an important example of the latter school of dress in her silver fox short coat with the pelt worked vertically on black crepe and with the new bracelet-length sleeves. She chose a somber black dress, but followed the 1937 fashion dictates of brilliance in accessories by wearing a rich brocaded, high-shooting turban.

That famed style authority, Hattie Carnegie, sponsored the new horizontal manipulation of furs in her short baum marten coat which topped a taupe velveteen dress banded at V neckline with handsome Persian brocade. This same rich fabric also fashioned her tiny suggestion of a chapeau.

Bright wool and tweed jackets are another early fall favorite of the smartest Mayfair lovelies, usually worn over black crepe or wool dresses. These perky little boleros or fitted jackets perfectly complement the "first back to town" black dress that can no longer be worn alone, due to the chilly breezes.

Eleanor Young topped her black crepe dress with a square shouldered red tweed jacket fastening tight down the front with novelty buttons. Gloria Baker chose bright emerald green for the wool bolero she wore over her slim black dress.

JOSEPHINE HUGHES.

Multicolored Fringe

Multicolored fringe adds zest to some new frocks created for late afternoon and the cocktail hour. Black crepe is the accepted choice of fabrics because it seems to show the vivid fringe to best advantage. One novel dress uses the fringe to edge short sleeves and hemline of a bolero jacket while another has it attached to the shoulder seams, the short sleeves and the skirt hemline. No rule applies in the application of such bright ornamentation so any fanciful theme is accepted.

Necktie Prints

Necktie prints are advocated for blouses to wear with tweed suits. The patterns are those copied exactly from the allover designers employes for men's cravats and a tailored theme is stressed in the style of the blouses. Creed, whose tailored suits are regarded as the height of good workmanship, started the fad when he showed the printed blouses with his autumn costumes.

Season Filled With Unusual Fashion Ideas

Newest Styles Make These Earlier Hat Silhouettes Seem Conservative.

NOVEL style ideas are arriving in such great numbers that one unique theme becomes commonplace before it is fairly launched on a busy season. All of the queer hat silhouettes that looked so startling a few weeks ago and the brief, narrow skirts that seemed so baffling are regarded as conservative now, in comparison to some of the rivals for fashion honors.

Not even the coats and dresses with their slide fastenings can bring forth exclamations since the costumes with elastic sections have arrived in town. The introduction of a stretchable fabric into dress lines means that a frock may be slipped on over the head, pulled into place and fitted to the figure like the proverbial paper on the wall. It also means that the corselet theme exploited earlier with a separate girdle worn over the dress now appears as part of the costume. By inserting the elastic material through the waistline section of a dress, the popular high-low waistline effect is achieved.

AMONG OTHER VOGUES that give autumn fashions an air of distinction are veils shaped like hoods, veils with painted eyebrows and lips, hats that tie under the chin in little-girl fashion, blouse twins and many odd color alliances. The veils that pose as hoods look similar to the chiffon and lace scarfs worn over the head during the Merry Widow era. There is little warmth to the idea because of the filmy fabric, so the wearer is likely to retain her hood while dancing or dining, because she likes its demure effect. The veils with their painted portions are as sophisticated as the hood is quaint and call for a different demeanor.

Hats tying under the chin usually are made of velvet and often have a suggestion of the bonnet style. One drooping sailor brim introduces the ties from wide sides, but the majority of the hats have them attached to the bandeau.

BLOUSE TWINS are rivaling twin sweaters in style importance this season, although there seems to be less reason for their companionship. One blouse has long sleeves, and the other short ones; one usually has a jacket fastening, while the other is of regulation type.

The odd color combinations of the season make it excusable for a woman to wear green shoes with a brown dress or red ones with a black costume—something that would have called for raised eyebrows or audible protests in years marked by conservatism.

THIS NEW YORK

within the block. We knew then that we were in the presence of unreconstructed spirits stemming from the legendary past, brothers in arms of the Jacobins, companions of the Confereracy, members of the fellowship of all the world's lost causes.

—o-o—

LINEAL DESCENDANTS of the Indians, whose passion for beads and tinplate are part of the American saga, and kinfolk of the victims of the gaudy swindles of Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford and Blacky Daw, the citizens of Hollywood's Gold Coast, are the current generation's suckers for anything so patently bogus that it can't be disposed of elsewhere. Hardly anything is too preposterous, fraudulent or meretricious to find a market among the children of sudden riches who purchase postage-stamp lots at Malibu for prices that must set the late Ivar Kreuger fairly skipping around in his grave and erect neo-Queen Anne-Moorish-Swiss chalet chateaux on the slopes of Beverly Hills. The latest humorous infamy to be committed against the ingenuous film folks was conceived by a wholesale silversmith in these parts whose chief designer one day got a snootful and built a couple of dozen hammered German silver handset telephones. They were awful beyond all opium dream proportions. All efforts to market them through customary retail channels in Harlem and the Bronx were unavailing, but in an inspired moment the merchant tripled their price, shipped them to a Hollywood correspondent and disposed of the lot in a fortnight.

WHEN ROBERT BENCHLEY celebrated a recent birthday, his oldest son, Nathaniel, who is by way of being a wag himself, wired his father: "Nice going!" . . . Lloyd Pantages of Hollywood, had himself outfitted with no fewer than 20 new suits and furnishings to match for a recent fortnight's visit to Manhattan. . . . He hadn't been in town in six years, but was afraid somebody would recognize his old ones if he wore them.

STYLE-SMILES

By Gretchen

"MOTHER GOT SO MAD AT ME LAST NIGHT, SHE SENT ME TO BED WITHOUT ANY BREAKFAST."

If feeding the early-morning arrivals hasn't yet become matter of fact routine, this type of punishment might be experimented with. It's too hard to scold anyone wearing the new fur fashions which give such a soft and helpless look. Especially the new black moire caracul. This lends itself gracefully to the three-quarter length capes which are top-notch again. Dressmaker draping is created by horizontal ridges all around the yoke. Important—the straight, dress-length style mink with tuxedo revers. Carrying the fur-lines of the sleeve up over the shoulder gives the nice, desired square effect.

LOOK ELEVEN YEARS YOUNGER

sincere. And that woman you thought was a perfect hag doesn't seem so old, somehow, after all. They are all indubitably more youthful.

Think over the clergymen, professors, lecturers, entertainers you know—those who are always listened to and never interrupted. Don't they always seem older than their hearers? So far as mental progress is concerned they are like dogs in a treadmill or kids on a merry-go-round. They keep on going but they get nowhere. That's what makes them seem old. Old people are apt to travel in mental ruts and circles.

This doesn't mean, of course, that keeping silent is always a sure way of being youthful. Talk, mere talk of I, I, I, and monologues of narrative and description make you seem old; but a genuine give-and-take conversation is a quite different thing, especially when everyone is learning something new. Children are all the time asking questions. That's the way we learn. So if you wish to be youthful, ask questions and let age answer them. So long as you're learning something you'll keep youthful.

I hope this discussion of talking and listening will illustrate the method of applying the test of mental alertness to any other situation. At the dinner table, bridge table, or the table of a board of directors, calling, shopping, or traveling, you can estimate anyone's youthfulness or demonstrate your own by the application of the little rule of three I have given: youthfulness manifests curiosity, attention, expectancy. To be youthful you have only to be interested wherever you are—or else get away.

AND now for that massage from the inside. When you first meet a person you judge him or her unconsciously by the expression. Youthfulness dwells mainly in the eyes. It can shine with the sweetness and expressiveness of a lovely child right through bad skin and wrinkles and despite gray hair. And a sulky, precocious old age can show through young eyes and a peachblow complexion. Youthfulness like Robert Louis Stevenson's can survive disability, disease and pain. I have known invalids so hopeful and cheerful that they seemed more youthful than their nurses. I have seen persons harassed by sorrow or misfortune, who were so vitally interested in life that nothing could batter their intrinsic youthfulness out of them.

Everybody knows that you can turn on all the youthful lights in a person's face by talking about himself or her baby. Eyes will brighten and lines grow fainter when you discuss even a person's hobby, whether it's dress, dogs or men. You can do it by a kind word, praise, or unlooked-for attentions. But these illuminations of youthfulness are adventitious and temporary. A real and permanent youthfulness comes from higher and more altruistic interests.

Here's a fable taken from life. I knew a most attractive girl in her twenties who had studied music for years and had been graduated from a school of music. She could play very well and with considerable style. She had a younger nephew, an unusually gifted boy who with very little effort played the most difficult classical compositions. He went onto the concert stage and was soon famous in Boston, New York and London. The girl grew discouraged. Finally she said, "Oh, dear, what's the use of my working so hard trying to play when he does it right off!"

Now that's just the way many fairly good-looking women give up all striving for youthfulness. If there's someone near them who is younger and prettier, especially a sister or companion, they don't try to make the best of themselves but through constant invidious comparison gradually lose interest in their looks and let their subconscious Satans take command and put discontented expressions and ugly lines into their faces. They don't know that if they can't have so much beauty they can have as much youthfulness, if they'll keep their curiosity about life, attention to what is going on about them, and ambitious expectancy for the future.

I happen to know rather intimately a case of the effect of the mind on the body. It was that of a girl of 14 whose schoolmates all teased her by saying the corners of her mouth drooped. She was sensitive and hurt, and she resolved to do something about it. Always after that she kept that dejected little curve from appearing on her lips. As my wise old lady said, "If you know it, the others won't know it." The girl didn't go around smiling like a Cheshire cat, she said, but she was always thinking a smile. And that brought life and mischief into her face. I wish you could see her today, radiant at 52.

Isn't that a better way than working on exteriors to look 11 years younger?

SUMMARY

SOME try to be young by being playful or frisky or arch. Youth cannot be assumed.

Beauty parlors cannot make you youthful. The only efficacious facial massage is done from within by the mind.

It is more important to keep your expression youthful than your complexion.

Make-up is merely a fashion which makes all women the same apparent age. It too often covers a dead face.

Your subconscious Satan works harder on your face than any beauty experts and is working all the time.

True youthfulness manifests curiosity, attention and expectancy.

The listener is always positive and therefore more youthful than the talker.

To be youthful ask questions and let age answer them.

Youthfulness dwells in the eyes. Keep them lighted.

Don't give up your youthfulness because you aren't pretty.

Thinking a smile all the time will keep your face youthful.

Autumn Sportswear In Rich Plum Shade

PLUM is the shade which represents the latest trend in autumn sportswear. This rich hue, formerly employed for formal fashions, is appearing in tweeds, knitted woolens and novelty homespuns. Jacket frocks, tailored suits and topcoats all indicate an indorsement of plum color.

Accent colors worn with plum costumes are as arresting as the shade itself. Aquamarine is a leader among these. It appears for sweaters, blouses and scarfs. Gold is another accessory shade to consider, providing it has a dull rather than a deep cast.

Sequin Dress

How many sequins does it take to make a dress? The answer is 120,000, says one designer who has created an evening costume completely covered with these spangles. The formal dress has a low cut bodice and a slight train, while a square-shouldered, short-sleeved jacket provides the double-duty feature. All of the sequins are black and there is a very slinky emphasis to the way they are molded to the figure.

Pleated Skirts

DRESSES displaying skirts pleated all around defy the edict of slender hemlines, besides proving that the woman who is "pleasingly plump," can wear a pleated skirt. Their success lies in their careful designing which gives a slenderness to the hipline.

Typical of the fashion of pleats is a green crepe afternoon dress, the skirt of which is laid in very fine pleats starting at the hipline. A wide, draped girdle of the dress fabric is shaped to the figure. The bodice has a low V neckline adorned with a handsome clip, and the short sleeves are caught up into graceful folds on top of the arms.

LET ME SUGGEST
by Josephine Walter

"IF I were a bride again" is a phrase which frequently, not so much reflects a desire to return to one's youth as it does a wish to use some of the knowledge one has gained about household things. And, mercenary as it may sound, there is no doubt that the modern bride gets the break when it comes to receiving wedding presents. Many stores and shops now have gift secretaries who are delighted to have lists from prospective brides so that they may guide friends in their selection of wedding gifts. And, of course, in addition there has never been a time when there were so many delectable and diverse offerings from which to choose as there is today.

So, I have been playing the game of " if I were a bride again" and have made a list of the things that I have seen in the different shops that I would request if I actually were a bride again.

—o-o—

First and foremost, I would have a staggering list of things to help in entertaining, for those are the things that you always wish you had, but never feel affluent enough to buy. And heading that list would be center-pieces for the dining room table, because young brides are apt to forget such crucial things as flowers when the boss's wife has been invited for the first time. And what a joy it is to have an assortment of attractive things for the center of the table all ready for use.

—o-o—

Two or three items that would make any table distinctive caught my eye and would go on my own list. One is a beautiful crystal centerpiece which resembles three crowns, placed upon one another in a tiered effect. This might be used absolutely solo, it might be planted with real climbing ivy, or it might be arranged with flowers for a special occasion. Also, the addition of a pair of crystal candlesticks would make it a gift par excellence.

● SPEAKING OF candlesticks, two pair I have seen would vie for space on my list, either one being handsome enough to be the only decorative object necessary on the table. One is a gorgeous pair of French candelabra with beautiful blue china bases on which are poised gilded Cupids upholding a whole cluster of candleholders, interspersed with gilded flowers. A pair of candlesticks of this type could be used elsewhere in the house on a desk or mantel-piece and borrowed for sumptuous occasions for the dining table. The other pair are of somewhat the same type, without the elaborate bases, but with the candle-holders interspersed with beautiful clusters of gilded grapes.

Next, I would have on my lists something that every bride intends to make herself, but never quite gets around to, and that is monogrammed ribbon bands for household linens. Somehow, the linen closet is always the hardest closet in the house to keep straightened and attractive looking unless you have some gadgets of this sort to inspire you. Furthermore, when you have a real household, you will find that these little handings, by being used strategically, will permit you to rotate your linens in such a way that they will have a longer life.

—o-o—

● FROM SOMEONE who knows my tastes pretty well and who could be entrusted with the selection of such an object, I would like a really nice picture. Preferably, a really good reproduction of one of the moderns noted for his fascinating colors such as Van Gogh or Gauguin, so that I might build the entire color scheme of one room around the picture. I might go slightly mad during the process but I feel that such a room could hardly fail to be distinctive.

FOR MY MORE exotic moments, I would like a pair of lamps I saw. I would probably wonder where on earth to put them after I got them but even if it necessitated building a whole room around them, I'm sure I would remember the donor gratefully. The bases are a pair of Zulu warriors, made of bronze metal with gold colored shields, beautifully modelled, but they are not the most outstanding feature of the lamps. What really caught my eye were the shades of white satin with the top and bottom banded in leopard skin, with this fur also fashioning the finial at the top. Then, if I found that I could never quite afford a leopard skin rug, I would still have had a touch of this exotic fur in my house.

And, while I'm talking of fur rugs, I would ask for a zebra skin one—not ever expecting to get it but after all it doesn't hurt to cover all possibilities. If by any chance I should ever happen to actually get one, I would promptly put black linoleum on my hall floor and proudly place the zebra skin over it.

And, getting back to the practical, but still staying decorative, I would like some kindly soul to give me a half dozen squares of different colored cheese-cloth for dust rags. The dusting would then be taken care of efficiently as well as pleasantly and that, I think, would mean a lot to any bride.

Lemon halves and slices are apt to give a bitter taste to punch if they are left in it. It is best to wait until serving time to add them.

CURTAINS For Your INFORMAL WINDOWS

Fresh Ways to Hang Them; Colors and Fabrics Which Lend Themselves to Novel Effects Are Discussed.

By ELIZABETH BOYKIN

CURTAINS always wrinkle our brow because we can't figure out their whys and wherefores. Oh, we know how to make curtains, how to line them, how to hang them from trim cornices and weight them just so. But we can never quite understand why they do so much for a room and how a few yards of something sheer or flowered can take away all the harsh glare, can give a room that well-dressed-complete-to-pinafore-and-hair-ribbon effect. But there you are, they do give a room a finishing touch, so it's up to the woman of the house to do her best by them.

Windows are pretty particular as to what kind of treatment they will stand for. Some really demand something rather grand and formal in the way of draperies and curtains. Others insist that a froth of lace or organdy is more becoming. Still others are at their best in something as starched and perky as a dress that's meant for a bustling happy day. Some time soon we're going to write about the new fashions for formal windows, but today we're going to use up all our space talking about informal windows that want a pretty but not too pretentious curtain, the kind most of us have. And a curtain that isn't too expensive either.

CALICO — For a simple maple room, use calico in gray or blue with white—you know those old dress fabrics with the tiny sprigs. Finish with white rick-rack, ruffle a valance of the same fabric across the top and tie back with white cotton rope cord.

—o-o—

SHEER BUT LINED—Theatrical gauze in a dark tone (if you can't buy just what you want, dye it to suit yourself), is very effective lined with cream sateen. Have a row of cartridge pleats at the top about a half-inch deep and ten inches long—these pleats made with the double thickness of gauze and sateen. On the back hang the curtains with hooks on a rod. These would have to be dry cleaned instead of washed, of course, but they suggest an idea for windows that you'd like to have some dignity without costing too much.

HORIZONTAL—Watch the trend toward the horizontals this season. You'll note it in everything from wall paper put up horizontally to curtains with the design running across. In lace net it is especially attractive, with or without Venetian blinds. You'll also find some attractive scrims with horizontal designs to give your windows a fresh outlook.

—o-o—

THE BLUES—With the increasing importance of the middle-between blues, we've seen several windows that reflect this trend. The prettiest probably had sheer white ruffled curtains, made like the usual tiebacks except fuller and on more generous lines, but across the top was a cornice made of two layers of scallops, one just above the other, and covered in two shades of blue (composition board or plyboard cut in scallops and covered with the material). The tiebacks were bows of these two shades of blue tied together.

—o-o—

FLOWERED—Instead of flowered draperies over plain curtains, we saw the order reversed the other day. Sheer flowered voile in pastel designs on white made the glass curtains, while draperies were in silver gray chintz made plain and to the floor. We liked this!

—o-o—

SCOTCH—The English crowned a Scotch Queen, and we're wearing plaids. Even at our windows. White sheer curtains made with ruffles we saw tied back with Scotch plaid hair-ribbon bows and finished at the top with a valance of the same Scotch plaid hair ribbon taffeta.

—o-o—

SUNBEAM—For a double window in a darkish room, take three shades of yellow, ranging from very pale to a brilliant canary shade. Use the lightest tone in the center of the window and the two deeper tones grading outward on each side. This brightens up a room no end. Use with a gold picture frame cornice.

—o-o—

PLATE RAIL—Here is an idea borrowed from the Scandinavians. Use a provincial cotton print, something quite peasant in effect, for the curtains and make them so they can pull back and forth easily. Have a shaped plywood cornice stained in a natural tone and above it a plate rail, with a guard piece in front to stand the plates against. Line your gaiest pottery plates up here and see what they do for the room.

LOOP THE LOOP—Now you can get large rings to fasten at the tops of the windows to draw swag draperies through. Have these at the top of a window you're particular about. Then draw a width of plain silk or rayon taffeta through the rings at each side, arrange the fabric so that it drapes in a graceful swag, then loop the material in long droopy bows at each side with streamers hanging just lower than the bows. Over nice sheer curtains this is a refreshing change from the usual jabot and swag. Better take a few stitches to hold it properly in place.

NOTHING IS NICER THAN SHEER, BILLOWY WHITE CURTAINS FINISHED WITH WHITE RUFFLES. THEY ARE ESPECIALLY APPROPRIATE IN A ROOM THAT HAS A FIGURED WALL PAPER AS SHOWN ABOVE.

A PRIM CALICO CHINTZ WITH DOUBLE RUCHING FRILL AROUND ITS EDGES HAS CHARM IN THE COLONIAL ROOM THAT IS REFRESHINGLY DIFFERENT IN DETAIL.

AS YOU LIKE WITH MAPLE OR ANY INFORMAL TYPE OF FURNITURE. BLUE AND WHITE CALICO, NOTHING MORE OR LESS, FINISHED WITH WHITE RICK RACK AND TIED BACK WITH WHITE COTTON ROPE, IS SHOWN HERE. THERE YOU HAVE A PERKY, PRETTY WINDOW.

Blue Shades For Gardens Of This Area

Furnished All Season by Members of Veronica Flower Family.

By Harret W. Chandler

YELLOW is of course the predominant fall color in flowers. At this time nature paints her roadsides and fields with it. Even in carefully planned gardens the different shades of yellow and orange will be found holding their own and a little more.

In contrast with these autumnal shades, the purple and lavender of the various asters offer some pleasing variety, but more striking and more unusual are the clear blues of many of our late bloomers.

The gray-green foliage of the well known Salvia farinacea, with its panicles of pale blue, is always good with the yellow and copper tints of the late Heleniums. Salvia pitcheri, a coarser variety, has china blue flowers in very soft shades but the plant must be staked to overcome its habit of sprawling. When planted with the Orange Flare cosmos, a flower of somewhat jarring tint, the effect is lovely.

The Vornica family gives exquisite shades of blue for the garden all through the season. Some varieties bloom very early, others in midsummer, and now perhaps the most attractive of all, Veronica longifolia subsessilis, is brightening our fall borders. Japanese Speedwell, as this Veronica is sometimes called, sends up its spires of gentian blue two to two and a half feet high, adding great charm to any planting. It is happily combined with the soft light yellow of the carnation-like marigold, Yellow Supreme, a flower very well named, being by far the best of its family.

MONKSHOOD is another beautiful blue flower blooming in fall, but unfortunately it takes the expert to grow it here. Quite the opposite can be said of the pretty Mist Flower or hardy Ageratum, which will hold its fluffy head of clear blue and thrive under almost any conditions. But like others, this plant, too, will give bigger and better blooms if planted in good soil in full sun. When combined with the pale gray Artemesia, Silver King, and perhaps a few large pink Zinnias, it gives one of the loveliest of the delicate fall effects. It persists for years with no care at all if not unwittingly dug up in spring before putting in its tardy appearance.

Plumbago Larpentae, with flowers of intense blue, will do for the rock garden in fall what the Squills and Chionodoxas did during the spring. It grows about six to eight inches high, with foliage forming a mass of glossy green which turns a reddish bronze as the season advances and holds this russet color until the fresh young green of spring appears. The Chinese Delephinium, the only member of its family to do here without a lot of mollycoddling, will hold over from summer to form lovely accents among the fall yellows.

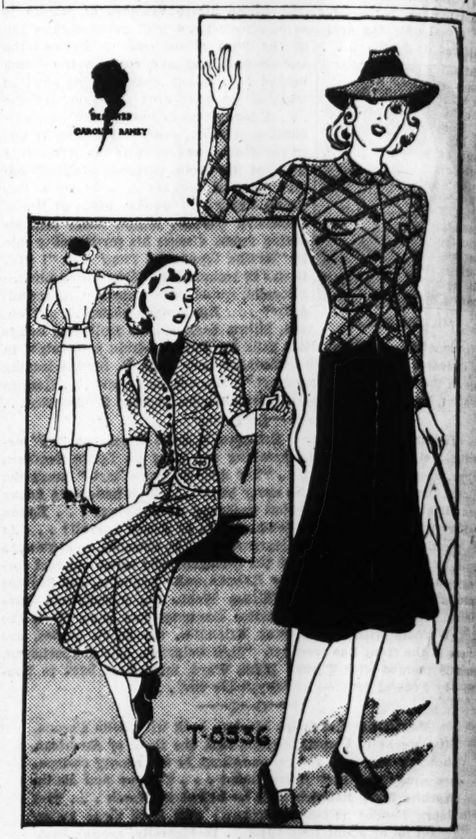
BUT ONE OF the daintiest, most satisfactory of our fall blue flowers is Browallia, which St. Louisans sadly neglect, though it is perfectly at home in our climate and soil. It is not found in one per cent of our local gardens, but would be more generally grown if better known. Beginning to bloom in July, these plants never falter through the drouth and will still be covered with their blossoms of ultra marine shades when the first frost comes to mow them down. They self-sow enough to become permanent ornaments in the border but never spread so as to take the place. No insects seem to attack them; all they want is to be left alone. While a rich blue is their characteristic color, some are marked with white and others lean toward the purple. The plants grow from 10 to almost 20 inches tall but are inclined to trail like a Petunia, so should be staked or grown in among foliage plants that will tend to hold them up. The small flowered variety, Elata, is more erect than Speciosa Major, which has larger blooms. Those who are not acquainted with these flowers will find them attractive features of the Board of Education's beautiful rock garden at Field and Loughborough avenues.

A peculiarity of the Browallia is that it can be transplanted while in full bloom. If lifted and potted just before frost, the plant will continue to bloom in the house though the flowers will be inclined to become successively smaller. It is better to start seeds in pots sunk in the garden during midsummer; then the young vigorous plants will just be starting their bloom when taken indoors and the flowers will hold their size. They do best near the glass of a window and should be pinched back at intervals to produce more compact growth. Blue flowers are rare during winter, so it would be well to become more familiar with these dainty little Browallias which fill a need for a blue flower in the winter window garden.

CAMPUS MODES By Carolyn Rainey



MIX your own in Scotch plaid wool and velveteen. This attractive two-piece model with Scotch plaid jacket-like blouse and velveteen skirt multiplies the variety of your wardrobe at a low price.

And how about making an extra skirt of plaid wool to match the little fitted blouse? It will prove a complete disguise. Top either skirt with bright wool sweaters for smart changes. For "date" and special occasions, a striped metal fabric blouse will look just adorable with the velveteen skirt.

A bright Ascot scarf adds gaiety to the v-neck version of novelty rayon crepe. It favors the short sleeves. Even your most intimate friend will never suspect you used the same pattern for both costumes.

Style No. T-8536 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Send 15 cents (coin preferred) for pattern to CAMPUS MODES, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 119 W. 19th St., New York City.

A GIRL ABOUT TOWN

about who is going in with whom —and hope he won't be an old man!

—o-o—

A MILLION little things have to be done for them. They are forever breaking lingerie straps, or coming ungartered, or stepping on the hems of their long, heavy gowns, and loosening a seam somewhere. Once Hattie had to take the scissors to a foundation garment that was too tight for comfort. So far, to her surprise, there haven't been any runs in sheer stockings.

The jittery girls make extra work for the two maids by taking their painfully new shoes off and having to get back into them again, with long tight dresses to maneuver out of the way. They never can decide when to put on their shoulder-length gloves, either. If they put them on well in advance of curtain time, they are sure to want to fiddle with their hair or touch up their lipstick, for both of which delicate operations they have to remove the long gloves. It becomes quite a problem. If they wait until the last minute to get into them, it jams things up dreadfully, because all those buttons can't be buttoned single-handed.

Hattie is expected to be in close attendance, too, when the girls are practicing their court curtsies, with the same committeemen who are to escort them to the throne and who rescue them as they come out of the low bow.

YOU MIGHT THINK that after Hattie gets the four special maids, and the two queens to the entrance of the auditorium, with their heavy trains arranged behind them, her tasks would be over. But not so. She goes back to the queen's room to straighten up (and incidentally to receive her pay).

"They just drop everything wherever they feel like it," she moaned. "It doesn't matter what it is, a purse with $100 in it, diamond jewelry, ermine wraps. I have everything in perfect order by the time they come back. Then the parents are admitted and the young men call for the young women to escort them to the queen's supper."

Off they dash, leaving Hattie and her assistant to straighten up once more and pack things away until "His coming again," It is usually midnight or after when the women get away.

For "the honor" of the thing, Hattie McWorter would gladly stay all night. For days afterwards, she says she has an audience of friends who rely on her for a first-hand account of the doings. Hattie is able to dress her story up with a fund of inside details, for she knows many of the girls, in whose homes she has served cocktail parties and teas—her specialties. By the grapevine, she picks up still more tidbits. The butler, for instance, in a Portland place home, is "a very dear friend" of the McWorters. Hattie had assisted at parties there, so that when the youngest lady of the house was a special maid at the ball, Hattie already knew a good deal about her.

She keeps up with the girls by avidly reading the society sections of the newspapers. Her guess this year, as to who will be who in the Veiled Prophet's Court, would probably be as good as the next person's, if not better.

Slide Fasteners As Decorations

NOT all of the slide fasteners on autumn dresses have a practical purpose. At least half of the number are purely decorative. Sides, front, back, pockets and waistlines all have their novelty closings.

Illustrative of the wide use of the fasteners in a decorative way is a striking brown crepe frock employing gold colored decorations. The slides extend the full length of the draped front and the form-fitting back besides appearing at the side seams from underarms to hem. The contrast of the gold and brown is most striking and supplies all of the elaboration that the dress requires.

Shoulder seams display the fasteners on another dress while the pockets of the front of the skirt also use them as decoration. Sleeves fitted very tight at the wrists become more sleek because of the slides replacing regulation snap fasteners, and a draped bodice that is zipped diagonally across the front is equally as impressive.

CALLING ALL DOGS -:- -:- -:- By Albert Payson Terhune

SLAP yourself more or less lightly on the top of the head, some dozen times in fast succession. It jars and hurts you. Well, that is the way it must feel to your dog when you bring down your palm on his head, in rough caress, patting him hard and in a fast succession of slaps. He endures it; partly because he has to, and partly because the average dog will put up with much discomfort in the form of a master's caress. But it is painful and it is not good for him.

"Painful patting" is as silly as it is annoying. There are saner and kinder ways of showing friendliness toward your four-legged chum than by pounding the top of his skull and by yanking his ears or pulling his nose. Most dogs like to have their ears rumpled gently or rubbed. Most of them like to feel the master's hand rest lightly on their heads for a moment or the occasional quiet stroking of that hand. But rough patting or the roughly playful tweaking of nose or of ears is an infliction that is not fair.

Indeed, indiscriminate and wholesale fondling of a dog is not normal; nor is it a good way to show your friendliness toward him. An ounce of square treatment is better than a ton of sloppy caresses.

HERE IS A QUEER SLANT on dog nature.

Our fiery little red-gold collie, Sunnybank Wolf, had been brought up, from earliest puppyhood, as a pal of our two big Sunnybank cats. He and they were devoted friends and playmates. All this, for several years. Then I bought a collie which was somewhat bumptious and mischievous. Wolf did not like the newcomer, at all. Nor did the cats.

One day the two cats were hunting fieldmice in the orchard. The new collie saw them there, and charged merrily in pursuit of them. As if by a signal, the cats drew far enough apart to allow his galloping body to pass between them, before he could check his speed. As he dashed by, both of them leaped on his head and neck, and they scratched ragingly for his eyes.

I was too far away to avert what seemed to be certain tragedy. But Wolf was not. He flashed into view, from somewhere or other, traveling like the wind. Before the cats could reach the helpless dogs eyes, Wolf had thrust them both to the ground and was driving them sweepingly before him to the nearest tree.

In brief, he had attacked his two lifelong chums to save a dog he disliked. Why? Who can explain it? Incidentally, both cats were Wolf's savage enemies, thenceforth, to the end of their days, despite all his wistful efforts at friendliness.

UP From Arkansas
By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

RIGHT down near me, on East Thirtieth street, lies the scene of one of the darndest feminine success stories of the current year. A nice quiet girl named Bernadine Angus, from Arkansas, has just written her first two plays — and sold both of them to George Abbott, producer of such hits as "Boy Meets Girl" and "Brother Rat!"

It's astonishing, and no fooling! True, Mrs. Angus has been a pretty successful penner of detective yarns for the past several years, as "Bernie Angus." But fine playmanuscripts are another kettle of broccoli, and this girl certainly must have a gift, to be able to peddle her very first pair of cracks to such an alert and able bird as Abbott, who can sniff a hit a hundred miles against the wind. But he's done it!

Bernie's plays are "Angel Island," which will be produced first, and "Home, Sweet Harlem." Both will see the footlights this season, under the Abbott banner, and if George's judgment hasn't faltered, for once, Mrs. Angus will spend most of the winter depositing royalty checks.

—o-o—

She admits that the output of sleuth fiction has suffered seriously during her period of playmaking, but she probably won't have to worry. Two George Abbott productions in one winter, for which experienced dramatists would sell their souls if they had any, have fallen into her lap this year. First stop, Arkansas; second stop, Broadway — look out, Hollywood, here comes Mrs. Bernadine Angus!

—o-o—

● MORE WEDDINGS are taking place in New York right now than in the town's history, barring an occasional June boom. Wonder why? Oh, maybe the young folks are hurrying to take the fateful leap before the miserable and dizzy world decides to quit in disgust! Right pretty brides, too, wearing veils and carrying costly boo-kays.

—o-o—

A BEAUTIFUL GIRL leaped to fame at a night club the other midnight and fled the premises, just because a flashlight bulb went off in her lovely eyes. Cooler heads identified the jumpy minx as Frances Farmer, one of the most lustrious and promising of the younger flicker stars. Looks like the true sign of a Garbo to me, all right! . . .

—o-o—

● SPEAKING of pretty little troupers, I hear that Joanie Bennett is going to draw down a minimum of $2000 the week for starring in "Stage Door" on tour. The nation had better rush for tickets, or there won't be much tour, at that dilary figure! . . .

—o-o—

● KATHLEEN CORY, a book-buyer of here, feared she had gone topsy as she arrived at her Charleston street home the other morning early. Snow covered the stoop of the house next door, lighted candles were in the windows, and it was holly! In September! She was about to give herself up when a man approached and said not to worry, that movie men were making a scene to boost the sales of Christmas Seals! Aren't the films wonderful?

—o-o—

● Sure sign of cooler climate—the White Russian are at it again for the season. They're opening up the Maisonette Russe at the stylish St. Regis with a benefit for wounded Russian war veterans in this country. It's a grape-harvest festival, with all sorts of quaint, old-world ceremonials. Leave it to the Russians to think up things here! But alas, their uncrowned queen is still not here to have her hand kissed. The Grand Duchess Marie, having spent months in India, is now supposed to be touring Europe to write pieces for a newspaper syndicate. And what is New York society without one of the most real of living Romanoffs—to take the salutes and curseys? Why, even duller than you'd suspect, I suspect!

● THE MILLINERS are all bitter their dainty finger-nails as they wonder whether our women are going to accept the enormous dinner hats, launched in Paris this summer, atop long, slim dinner-suits. Quite "turn of the century," if you please. They're lovely hats, but hardly practical these times, somehow. They are so big that they block all view of floor shows, plays, and any person but the hat-wearer. And modern Americans go places to see things, these times.

—o-o—

● NEW YORK show-goers get all sentimental about a small group of entertainers, now all matronly. The lisse includes such people as Fanny Brice, Sophie Tucker and Belle Baker. The last named, who sinks old songs of the tin-panny type, is just taken unto herself a third husband, Elias E. Sugarman, trade-paper editor. So Broadway cried tears of joy for its dear Belle. Maybe now she will sink swinky sonks for a spell!

● BEATRICE KAUFMAN, smart and handsome wife of George S., the play-playwright, is again a free woman—I mean professionally. She has given up her job as Eastern story editor for movie-magnate Sam Goldwyn. Bea, as you know, is one of our leading milliners' hates, as she swings through the midtown streets with her mass of handsome graying hair innocent of hat!

NEW YORK show-goers get all sentimental about a small group of entertainers, now all matronly. The group includes such people as Fanny Brice, Sophie Tucker and Belle Baker. The last named, who sinks to songs of the tin-panny type, has just taken unto herself a third husband, Elias E. Sugarman, trade-paper editor. So Broadway cried tears of joy for its dear Belle. Maybe now she will sink swinky sonks for a spell!

BEATRICE KAUFMAN, smart and handsome wife of George S., the playwright, is again a free woman—I mean professionally. She has given up her job as Eastern story editor for movie-magnate Sam Goldwyn. Bea, as you know, is one of our leading milliners' hates, as she swings through the midtown streets with her mass of handsome graying hair innocent of hat!

How to Train Juveniles in Care of Hands

Dwell On Their Beauty and Usefulness; Avoid Warnings.

By Angelo Patri

I HATE to see a child's hands badly cared for. Hands are beautiful in themselves, and if given ordinary care, shine with the light of intelligence. If you think that is a strange thing to say please study the hands of the people about you. They reflect the souls of their owners, their strength and their weakness; the story of the mind's workings are set in their bones, expressed in their movements.

The hands that do nothing except lie helplessly, soft, paddy, futile things are the hands of the helpless futile person who owns them. Study the surgeon's hands. Look well at the hands of the sculptor with its broad, flat thumb and short, strong nails. See the power in the hands of the good stonemason. They are the hands of a builder, and in them is the builder's vision shining like a light through them.

And the feel of intelligent hands. What a feeling of kinship they give you as you shake them! The grasp is firm and sure and steady and warm. It makes you long to hold on and never let go for there is a feeling of great security in the grasp of a friendly, intelligent hand. You know the feel of the flabby, cold, flipper of the individual who does nothing and cares less for human needs. It is a dead hand, the true expression of the dead soul. Nobody wants to hold it for a second; everybody wants to avoid touching it, even looking at it. The intelligent hand is the clear expression of the trained intelligence behind it.

CHILDREN should be trained to care for their hands. First to keep them clean; to keep the nails clean and trim. I have nothing to say for scarlet nails, nor anything against them. They do not matter much either way, but I have noticed that the surgeon and the artist and the writer and the mason, all people who do creative work, give the color of their nails scant attention. They are usually short, trim and of pearly-pink color, the color they had in the beginning. One can scarcely improve upon it.

Next, children ought to be taught to make their hands useful, to do things with them. Any work that uses the hands skilfully adds to the power of the child's intelligence and, in return, to the beauty and grace of the hands. Hands help to build minds, something that many people forget.

Girls fear that housework will dim the beauty of their hands. It will roughen the skin; it will break the nails; it will rob the hands of infantile beauty, that is true. But, who wants infantile hands? Housework demands intelligent work, and intelligent work is the salvation of humanity. In these days of lotions, good soaps and fine powders, splendid kitchen equipment—think of the electric appliances you can use in the household today—there is not much danger of ruining the hands as there used to be in the days of Mother Machree. All that is needed is a little care. Let the work go on.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.

MRS. PAUL MUNI is the guiding light in the Muni career in a very practical sense. Unobtrusively, she observes his work on the sets, sits in on story conferences, and especially on his contract-signing.

This began some years ago—I believe the story has never been told—when Paul came home one evening, enthusiastic after several disheartening experiences at his studio. He had made a couple of starring talkies for the old Fox company, the second of which was probably the worst film of his career, "Seven Faces." This evening, however, he felt cheered.

He had signed for a picture again. He was to play in "Lilliom."

"What role?" asked Mrs. Muni.

"Second lead to Charles Farrell," said Paul.

"No," said Mrs. Muni, with finality. "Second lead to a woman star, yes—but to a man, no."

"But I've signed the papers," protested Paul.

"We'll have to unsign them," she said.

And they did. And Paul Muni went back to the stage, and came back for "Scarface" and the seemingly permanent place he has made in pictures as the screen's leading character star—with Mrs. Muni supervising his taking of pen in hand.

● EXACTLY WHAT is a "Lubitsch touch?" From "Angel," some examples: the conversation between Herbert Marshall and Melvyn Douglas revealing subtly that in the war they had something in common, namely close acquaintance with a certain French girl; the sly digs at European diplomacy, especially as reflected in the conversation between those gentlemen's gentlemen, Ernest Cossart and Edward Everett Horton; the picturing of a ticklish luncheon scene of the principals in the triangle—Dietrich, Marshall, Douglas—entirely through the kitchen reactions and conversation of the servants; the racetrack arrival of Cossart, the butler, and his bride, during which he points out, with elaborate importance, the friends he has among those who serve the famous and well-bred; the general tongue-in-cheek approach to the pretentions, the foibles, and the elegances of the species.

"Angel," after what seemed to me a slow start, picked up considerably and became an engrossing version of the old three-cornered love story. Marshall got the preview audience hand, but Douglas was liked equally, and as for Marlay-nah—I thought she was less languid, more intelligent, and less prone to flutter her lashes aimlessly than in the days of her Von Sternberg puppetry. As in every Lubitsch film, however, the real star is unseen. That is Lubitsch, with his "touches."

—o-o—

● A LOT OF PLAYERS would give their front teeth (so easily replaced) to get one, but the court records indicate that a Warner contract is something to escape, not seek.

Kay Francis is the latest to ask her freedom. Before her were Bette Davis, Ann Dvorak, and James Cagney, the latter—so far—alone successful. Other stars—William Powell, Ruth Chatterton, Edward G. Robinson, Dick Powell, Joan Blondell—have had quarrels with the studio that never reached the courts.

Most studios somehow keep their family squabbles inside the lots. They all have discontented stars—who will tell you confidentially that the guys up front haven't the slightest idea what they're doing—but the Warners have hogged the courtroom spotlight consistently.

—o-o—

While Kay Francis's suit over assignment of Claudette Colbert to "Tovarich" awaits decision, you might expect strained relations between the two girls. You won't find any. Claudette is in the role of innocent bystander, and Kay knows that. Another good "feud" bites the dust.

—o-o—

● HOLLYWOOD FEUDS, occasionally, are fascinating because they have far-reaching results. You can dismiss most of them as minor incidents, the ruffling of feathers already harassed by exigencies of movie production. The girls and boys get over it, eventually, or maybe they don't. And it still doesn't matter.

But one of the major feuds of recent times resulted in a new production company that is now on top. When Darryl Zanuck spatted with Jack Warner during those troublous salary-cut times of 1933, he walked. He was at liberty only briefly before Joe Schenck telephoned. Came Twentieth Century—and shortly the merger with Fox.

Another one—between Connie Bennett and Gloria Swanson—indirectly cost RKO a major flop. Connie, having married Gloria's ex, the marquis, acquired the story "Rockabye" on which Gloria had set her heart. "Rockabye" didn't rock along very well. It ended by costing a million dollars to make and remake, and did nothing for Bennett.

A publicity feud—the Winchell-Bernie thing—helped bring both to pictures.

YOU ARE NOT "SAFE AT HOME"

Figures Prove a Majority of Accidents Take Place in Dwellings

By Francis Oliver

"SAFE AT HOME" is a phrase often applied to the security of the family circle, as well as to baseball. It would be better if it were confined solely to baseball, for it is probably that feeling of being "safe at home" that makes the home the most dangerous place a person can be. If you leave your home to take an automobile ride, it is almost like leaving the open spaces for a bomb proof cellar durmg an air raid. And an airplane flight is, comparatively, the ultimate in safety.

Ridiculous? Not according to statistics kept by the St. Louis Safety Council, both local and national. In St. Louis alone, during 1936, there were 440 fatal accidents, of which 182 occurred in the "safety of the home." There were 147 fatal automobile accidents, and only 56 industrial fatalities. In the entire country 38,500 people died as a result of accidents in the home during 1936; 37,800 from accidents involving automobiles.

The generally accepted reason for the high number of accidents in the home is that people simply feel too safe in their dwellings. On the street or driving they are on guard against accidents; they exercise considerable caution. If they were as careless on the street as at home, American cities would resemble Shanghai. For carelessness, authorities are pretty well agreed, is Home Enemy No. 1.

One reason folks are so careless at home is that most of them are aware of the hazards only if directly affected. For most home accidents "are so trivial" that they fail to become generally known; only the unusual cases receive attention.

"Oh, those little things don't amount to anything. What's a cut on the finger?"

Not much, if a person is lucky. But during the past year a St. Louis woman died of an infected finger—she had nipped it with a paring knife while peeling potatoes. The cut had not amounted to much in itself; neglect had made it as dangerous as a mad dog bite.

"All accidents can be prevented, for after all they go back to the individuals," explained a spokesman of the St. Louis Safety Council, which is devoted to reducing the number of accidents. "But the general attitude seems to be 'it can't happen to me,' and on that assumption a housewife will pile boxes on a rocking chair to adjust curtains, a mother will keep disinfectant on the pantry floor, a husband will put off replacing the bulb in a cellar stairs light. Any one of them is as dangerous as jaywalking in rush hour traffic."

Many people go to great lengths to safeguard their health and avoid infection, which is as it should be. The difficulty is they forget those safeguards entirely where home accidents are concerned. Yet among the diseases, only the mortality from cancer, tuberculosis and pneumonia exceeds that from falls in the home, alone. Last year falls were responsible for the deaths of 124 St. Louisans, while hundreds more were injured, many permanently. Whooping cough, diphtheria, influenza, scarlet fever, measles, typhoid fever, encephalitis, and infantile paralysis together caused only 143 deaths here during the same period.

Falls cause by far the greatest number of injuries in the home, with children and aged people the most frequent victims. The kitchen, considering the home in its entirety, is the locale for most of the fatal accidents, but the bedroom is the worst danger spot for falls, with the living room second, and, contrary to general belief, stairways third.

For one to fall out of bed is often considered rather laughable; yet many people are injured, often fatally, in this manner. A typical example is that of a mother who places a toddler on a bed "for just a minute" while she attends to something else. When she returns the child has rolled over the unguarded side, and is on the floor, perhaps with mere bruises, perhaps with a brain concussion, or a twisted limbed, or a bent spine. Records show permanent crippling, sometimes deaths, where no outward signs of injuries appeared until months after the fall.

Among elderly people, says the Safety Council, one of the chief causes for falls is getting out of bed in a hurry, and becoming dizzy. The council, in its home safety educational program, tries to convince people past middle age they should sit on the edge of the bed a moment before standing up. A fall may mean a broken bone, aside from the danger of striking the head on furniture, and pneumonia is a frequent aftermath of broken bones for the elderly.

Highly polished floors; small rugs that slide easily; rugs and carpets with turned-up edges; shoes, chairs, toys and other articles out of place, all take their annual toll of pain, time and money in both bedrooms and dining rooms.

Next to falls, burns are the most serious home menace. A majority, of course, occur in the kitchen. Matches in the hands of children are a well-known danger, but not the greatest danger. Overheated stoves and open grates can set clothing on fire; scalding liquids cause as many severe burns as flames. Mothers leave a pot of hot coffee on a table where the small tot pulls it off with the tablecloth; they place boiling water on the floor, where the child upsets it; children have been placed "safely" in the bathtub out of their mother's way, only to turn scalding water on themselves.

The bathtub is a danger spot because people slip and hit their heads, or break bones. It is dangerous also because people start to slip and grasp at a porcelain towel rack, which breaks and causes painful, if not dangerous cuts. And standing in water to turn an electric light on or off is much like playing with a stick of dynamite. But people do those things, just as they persist in keeping home remedies and poisons together in the medicine cabinet.

"Keep pins in the corks of all poison bottles, if you must keep them in the medicine chest," advises the Safety Council.

Drownings, which happen in bath tubs and through children falling into tubs of water, are comparatively rare, but do occur. Asphyxiation is not so rare. Aside from carbon monoxide poisoning while running an automobile in a closed garage—which must be classed as a home accident—hot water heaters without proper vents to carry off carbon monoxide, and gas flames that blow out when unwatched, have frequent victims.

"Unloaded" firearms are left about the house for the amusement and maiming of children and adults. Mirrors and pictures are insecurely placed on walls, and have a knack of falling at the most inopportune moment—when someone is underneath. Brooms and mops and buckets are placed at the head of poorly lighted basement stairs, and some member of the family as a result spends several weeks in bed. In St. Louis last year a man fell over a coal bucket, hit his head, and was killed.

Records deal chiefly with fatalities, but they are a very small percentage of the injuries, for many are treated either at home or by a neighborhood doctor and not reported. But here are a few of the fatal home accidents that give an idea of how injuries occur:

A 2-year-old child fell out of bed; a woman tripped over another woman's foot in her kitchen and struck her head on the stove; an infant caught his head between the bars on his crib, and was strangled; a 2-year-old leaned against a window screen, which gave way, and the child fell two floors to the pavement; a woman's clothing caught fire from an open kitchen stove grate; a woman stepped on a needle, ignored the injury as insignificant, and infection set in; an 18-months-old child drank kerosene, and a 5-year-old drank plant spray; a man ignored a blister from raking leaves, and infection set in; a girl, 3 years old, swallowed a toy watch; a metal cabinet fell on a baby in its crib, when the child pulled on it; an elderly woman suffered a fractured skull when struck by a swinging door.

The Safety Council lists as general causes of accidents: poor judgment, disorder, negligence of parents with their children, improper equipment and its improper use, need of repairs, dark stairways, physical disabilities and handicaps, and hurry. Poor judgment is the worst culprit; essentially, in the view of the Safety Council, it covers all of them.

The council usually is able to do its most effective work during the winter months, because it can reach so many homes through the children. At present it is working on Fire Prevention Week, which begins Oct. 9. The winter months also are the most hazardous, for cold weather keeps the family inside more than do the other seasons.

The primary precautions for safer homes are worth noting.

Since falls are so dangerous, care should be exercised when walking on polished floors, especially if there are loose rugs.

Poisons should be kept out of reach of children and, whenever possible, locked away, apart from the medicine chest.

Coal oil or gasoline should never be used in starting a fire, and naphtha and gasoline are highly dangerous in cleaning things. If they must be used, it should be in the open. Rubbing silk generates static electricity likely to ignite the fumes.

Grease, ice, snow and even water should be removed from floors, porches and sidewalks. Water on linoleum is treacherous.

All objects should be kept from stairways, which need proper lighting as well as the rest of the house.

Furniture, clothing and toys should be placed in order as soon as possible, and certainly at night, when members of the family walking in the dark can fall over them.

Cuts and scratches should be sterilized at once, no matter how trivial. A single prompt application of a germicide may save days in bed, a limb, or a life.

Always use something sturdy and reliable to stand on in reaching for things high up. A book on a chair, the top of the radiator, or a wobbly table have few equals for dropping people to the floor.

Keep everything possible a child can swallow or pull on himself or fall into or off of to his own danger, out of reach.

Repair everything about the house that might be dangerous—and everything in disrepair is dangerous.

Stitched Leather Cape

A cape of stitched leather is one of the novelties of the season. It is made of vivid red suede and accompanies a black tweed frock but there is no reason why it shouldn't be worn with many other costumes. Stitching finishes the shoulder yoke and the hemline. The cape extends slightly below the normal waistline. It fastens snugly at the throat.

Is Your Weight Below Normal? Diet Suggested

One Record Cited to Show What Can Be Done to Increase Weight.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

A WOMAN, 24 years of age, five feet, two inches tall, weighed 82 pounds. Her ideal weight would be 121 pounds. By increasing her food intake so that it was over 3000 calories a day, she gained, in 12 weeks, 24 pounds.

Thin people say they can't get fat, no matter how much they eat, and that they eat enough but the record above shows what can be done to increase weight by simple increase in food alone.

In other words, the beliefs of underweights on the subject of how much they eat, like the beliefs of overweights, cannot be relied upon.

But notice that the amount of food taken is very large. The woman was 24 years old, and weighed 82 pounds. Theoretically she required about 1800 calories a day, or less, at that age and weight. She actually received 3280.

It is as difficult, or more so, for these underweight people to eat the extra amount they need in order to gain as it is for the overweight to starve, and they have to be encouraged and cajoled to do it.

—o-o—

IF THEY CAN DO IT, however, the diet below, containing 4000 calories, in six meals, if continued with such substitutions as are needed to avoid monotony, will put on weight.

BREAKFAST — One baked apple, two tablespoons cream (coffee), one teaspoon sugar, one-half cup corn-meal, four tablespoons cream (coffee), two teaspoons sugar, one poached egg, one tablespoon butter, one-half slice toast, one slice toast, one tablespoon butter, six ounces cocoa.

MIDMORNING — Four ounces fruit gelatine, two tablespoons cream, one teaspoon sugar; two graham crackers.

LUNCH—Average serving cream of potato soup, two soda crackers, three strips, five inches long, crisp bacon, one slice entire wheat bread, one tablespoon butter, four ounces fruit gelatine, two tablespoons cream, one teaspoon sugar, six ounces milk.

MID-AFTERNOON — Six ounces eggnog, two soda crackers, one tablespoon butter.

DINNER — Average serving baked fish, one stuffed baked potato, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup string beans, four pieces, five inches long, celery; one slice entire wheat bread, one tablespoon butter, average helping Waldorf salad (no nuts), average serving ice cream, decaffeinized coffee, one and one-half tablespoons cream, two teaspoons sugar.

EVENING—Three halves stewed apricots, two crackers, tablespoon butter.

Lotte Lehman First Artist at the Principia

Lotte Lehman, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, who was last in St. Louis in January, 1935, returns Friday, Oct. 22, to open the Principia concert and lecture course. To follow in the same series are the Yale Puppeteers, presenting their satirical review, "Mr. Punch at Home," Nov. 5, this attraction replacing a lecture to have been given by Amelia Earheart; the Barrere Quintet, headed by George Barrere, flutist, on Dec. 3; the Helsinki University Chorus from Finland, on Jan. 21; Poldi Mildner, pianist, Feb. 11; Frank Parker, diseur, March 4, and Lanny Ross, tenor, April 8.

Suede Jewelry

Suede jewelry is something novel for the sportswear enthusiasts to consider. The type on display in the shops combines the leather with gold metal. Necklace, bracelet and clips are the featured items to be worn with wool dresses that have high necklines and with crew-necked sweaters.

Chocolate Rolled Wafers

Ingredients:
Three-eighths cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
One-half beaten egg.
One cup flour.
Two tablespoons coco.
One-fourth cup milk.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon cold water.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, beating very good; when well mixed, add coco and beaten egg. Sife together flour and salt; dissolve soda in the water and add together with sifted flour and milk and mix thoroughly. Brush outside bottoms of cake pans with melted butter and spread on the thinnest possible layer of the wafer mixture. Place in moderate oven and bake. Just as soon as baked, pull pans to front of oven and quickly cut each layer into four pieces and roll immediately while very hot. If too cool to roll without breaking, replace in oven for a moment.

Maxwell Anderso Writes Flashback Play for Broadwa

Author Who Has Been Winning Pr On His Poetry Uses Prose to So Problem of What-Might-Have-Be

NEW YORK, Oct.

By the Associated Press.

MAXWELL ANDERSON, undoubtedly the prolific playwright in the theater today turned to Broadway this week with the lay he has had in some time in straight dial and not in iambic pentameter or one of the poetic moods. In this new item, "The Star Wag he refrains from the dreamy pattern of speec his "Winterset" or "High Tor," both prize winn his "Wingless Victory" and "Masque of Kings," it is still a far cry from the lusty, realistic An son who wrote the disturbing lines of "What P Glory?"

In "The Star Wagon" he presents the prop tion that so many frustrated, aged people when they contemplate what they might have if only they could live life over again and tak different road from the one they chose.

Stephen Minch and Martha Minch, played Burgess Meredith and Lillian Gish, are at greying age when they are forced to realize perhaps they are failures in both their dome and business life and that it is too late to go b and change.

Stephen is a hard working, low-paid factory gineer who has perfected successful invent from which he received no royalties. Then, w the aid of his loyal friend, Hanus Wicks, he vents a machine that eliminates space and ti It will carry people back to any hour and w any people they wish in all the history of ti Stephen and Hanus decided that they want to back to the age of first manhood, when they take the different paths in adult life that th turned aside when they were first 21.

So back they go, Stephen and Hanus and around them, to their adult beginning again. derson transposes his characters in the philosop of Hamlet in that "I could be bounded in a nutsh and count myself a king of infinite space." B it is in his transposition that the plot lags, faili to conform to A. S. Eddington's theory that "th is a bending round by which East ultimately comes West but no bending by which Before u mately becomes After."

But, where Playwright Anderson conforms that he inducts that element of mysticism into t cience of eliminating space and time. Steph and Hanus do this, and when they go back to th age of 21 and attempt different careers, both in business and domestic way, they find that th re economically more successful, but from a pe sonal standpoint they are far less happy, content and proud of their lives than they were, ev though failures on the surface, as they real lived their lives in the first place.

Meredith, at moments, is the lusty, excelle actor he used to be in the days when he was pla ing in such tumultous entertainment as "Little Boy" and "She Loves Me Not." But he is suming a ponderous, precious quality where ays overly much to infinite space in the win nd neglects to react to the cues of the more reali e actors opposite him.

Miss Gish is lovely and artful, and especially he commanding and interesting in those scen here the play moves from the present day ba o 1902 when girls wore bloomers to ride bicycle The performance of the evening and the one th knits the play into a unity was that of Russell Co lins, who played the loyal friend, Hanus Wick Here was a magnificent performance from an a tor who excited Broadway last season with his pe formance of the disillusioned doughboy in "John Johnson," and who began his stage career at t Cleveland, O., playhouse in "Dr. Faustus."

THERE seems to be a foreign deluge into t Broadway theater this early part of the se son, with two of the most exploited first nigh of the week being "French Without Tears," fro "veddy" English pen of Terence Rattigan, a "The Lady Has a Heart" from the Budapest typ writer of Ladislaus Bus-Fekete.

"French Without Tears" is the tale of a grou of young Englishmen who are studying for th diplomatic service under the tutelage of a Frenc teacher. Which is, understandably, quite prope for one can travel to the outermost points of th world and you will still find, even though it b in the midst of an Ethiopian jungle, that the on universal language is French.

But, as performed in this Broadway play ther is so much French vis-a-vis that the audience find that it is not keeping up with the English part o the plot.

In "The Lady Has a Heart" the first night au diences looked upon a minor play about the wel known subject of a butler falling in love with h mistress and she with him. Perhaps in real lif it doesn't work out so well, but in this theatrica case the mistress is blond Elissa Landi of the film Vincent Price, who comes from St. Louis and wh is probably the first matinee idol since John Barr more leaped across a West Forty-sixth street stag a "Hamlet" years ago, is the butler.

Price is a tall fellow with a Shakespearean hai cut, acts well and has improved so much since h played Prince Albert to Helen Hayes in "Victori Regina." In "The Lady Has a Heart" he had th women members of the first night audience prac tically swooning.

"IT WON'T BE LON NOW UNTIL WE'L BE MOVING IN

"Sure be great to have a new home of our own, but I'm worried about the things we will have to buy for it."

Maxwell Anderson Writes Flashback Play for Broadway

Author Who Has Been Winning Prizes On His Poetry Uses Prose to Solve Problem of What-Might-Have-Been.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.

By the Associated Press.

MAXWELL ANDERSON, undoubtedly the most prolific playwright in the theater today, returned to Broadway this week with the first play he has had in some time in straight dialogue and not in iambic pentameter or one of the other poetic moods. In this new item, "The Star Wagon," he refrains from the dreamy pattern of speech of his "Winterset" or "High Tor," both prize winners, his "Wingless Victory" and "Masque of Kings," but it is still a far cry from the lusty, realistic Anderson who wrote the disturbing lines of "What Price Glory?"

In "The Star Wagon" he presents the proposition that so many frustrated, aged people face when they contemplate what they might have done if only they could live life over again and take a different road from the one they chose.

Stephen Minch and Martha Minch, played by Burgess Meredith and Lillian Gish, are at that graying age when they are forced to realize that perhaps they are failures in both their domestic and business life and that it is too late to go back and change.

Stephen is a hard working, low-paid factory engineer who has perfected successful inventions from which he received no royalties. Then, with the aid of his loyal friend, Hanus Wicks, he invents a machine that eliminates space and time. It will carry people back to any hour and with any people they wish in all the history of time. Stephen and Hanus decided that they want to go back to the age of first manhood, when they can take the different paths in adult life that they turned aside when they were first 21.

So back they go, Stephen and Hanus and all around them, to their adult beginning again. Anderson transposes his characters in the philosophy of Hamlet in that "I could be bounded in a nutshell and count myself a king of infinite space." But, it is in his transposition that the plot lags, failing to conform to A. S. Eddington's theory that "there is a bending round by which East ultimately becomes West but no bending by which Before ultimately becomes After."

But, where Playwright Anderson conforms is that he inducts that element of mysticism into the science of eliminating space and time. Stephen and Hanus do this, and when they go back to that age of 21 and attempt different careers, both in a business and domestic way, they find that they are economically more successful, but from a personal standpoint they are far less happy, contented and proud of their lives than they were, even though failures on the surface, as they really lived their lives in the first place.

Meredith, at moments, is the lusty, excellent actor he used to be in the days when he was playing in such tumultous entertainment as "Little Ol' Boy" and "She Loves Me Not." But he is assuming a ponderous, precious quality where he plays overly much to infinite space in the wings and neglects to react to the cues of the more realistic actors opposite him.

Miss Gish is lovely and artful, and especially is she commanding and interesting in those scenes where the play moves from the present day back to 1902 when girls wore bloomers to ride bicycles. The performance of the evening and the one that fruits the play into a unity was that of Russell Collins, who played the loyal friend, Hanus Wicks. Here was a magnificent performance from an actor who excited Broadway last season with his performance of the disillusioned doughboy in "Johnny Johnson," and who began his stage career at the Cleveland, O., playhouse in "Dr. Faustus."

THERE seems to be a foreign deluge into the Broadway theater this early part of the season, with two of the most exploited first nights of the week being "French Without Tears," from the "veddy" English pen of Terence Rattigan, and "The Lady Has a Heart" from the Budapest typewriter of Ladislaus Bus-Fekete.

"French Without Tears" is the tale of a group of young Englishmen who are studying for the diplomatic service under the tutelage of a French teacher. Which is, understandably, quite proper for one can travel to the outermost points of the world and you will still find, even though it be in the midst of an Ethiopian jungle, that the one universal language is French.

But, as performed in this Broadway play there is so much French vis-a-vis that the audience finds that it is not keeping up with the English part of the plot.

In "The Lady Has a Heart" the first night audiences looked upon a minor play about the well-known subject of a butler falling in love with his mistress and she with him. Perhaps in real life it doesn't work out so well, but in this theatrical case the mistress is blond Elissa Landi of the films. Vincent Price, who comes from St. Louis and who is probably the first matinee idol since John Barrymore leaped across a West Forty-sixth street stage as "Hamlet" years ago, is the butler.

Price is a tall fellow with a Shakespearean hair-cut, acts well and has improved so much since he played Prince Albert to Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina." In "The Lady Has a Heart" he had the women members of the first night audience practically swooning.

First Symphony Student Concert Set for Nov. 10

THE first of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's five student concerts, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann, will be given at the Auditorium Opera House on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 10, instead of the Armistice day holiday. Others are set for the Thursday afternoons of Dec. 9, Jan. 13, Feb. 10 and March 10.

For the first program, Golschmann has chosen C. P. E. Bach's Concerto in D Major, the second movement from Beethoven's First Symphony, two selections from Bizet's Suite No. 1, "L'Arlesienne" and the Polovtsian Dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor."

The second concert will feature a children's composition, "Animal Pictures" by the orchestra's former conductor, Rudolph Ganz, to be played for the first time in St. Louis, with the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," the third movement from Beethoven's First Symphony and Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice."

The Overture to Von Weber's "Euryanthe," the fourth movement of Beethoven's First Symphony, waltzes from Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier," first St. Louis performance of Horace Johnson's "Imagery," an orchestral suite based on Hindu themes, and the Polka and Fugue from Weinberger's "Schwanda the Bag-Piper" are on the third program. The fourth has the Overture to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," selections from Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," Sowerby's "Irish Washerwoman" and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." The final program has not been announced.

Little Theater Cast for 'Circle'

THE cast for the Little Theater's opening production, "The Circle," by W. Somerset Maugham, will be made up of three veterans in the organization—Charity Grace, Elliot Bergfeld and Adelaide Tarrant; four players who have been added in recent years—Rozene Johnson, Leonard Visser, Leo Lederer and Alvin Queen, and two newcomers, Eugene O'Neil and Madeline Haertter.

"The Circle," a sophisticated English comedy-drama which came to New York in the early twenties, combines hilarity with discussion of a significant problem—that of whether a woman shall leave her husband. The action takes place in the drawing-room of Arnold Champion-Cheney, Member of Parliament (Leonard Visser), and his wife, Elizabeth (Rozene Johnson). Arnold's mother, Lady Kitty Champion-Cheney (Charity Grace) arrives by invitation of her daughter-in-law, with Lord Porteus (Elliot Bergfeld), with whom she had run away 30 years previously from her husband, Clive Champion-Cheney (Leo Lederer), also present. Lady Kitty discovers that her son's wife is about to follow her example and run away with Teddy Luton (Eugene O'Neil). How the members of the house party react to the situation brings forth the comedy.

'Barber of Seville' To Open Opera Season

Rossini's "Barber of Seville" will open the St. Louis Grand Opera Company season on Nov. 22, instead of Verdi's "Rigoletto," Director Guy Golterman announced yesterday, after making arrangements by cable with Erna Sack, German coloratura soprano who is to be starred, for a change in roles from Gilda to Rosina.

Ritzes Reach the Goal Line

By Colvin McPherson

RECOGNIZING that a part of the population doesn't like the Ritz Brothers and never will —which is the case also with the Marx Brothers—it is still possible to see that the Ritzes are up-and-coming fellows so far as pictures are concerned. Arrival of their first starring film, "Life Begins in College," at the Fox Theater, proves that.

"Life Begins in College" issues from the Twentieth Century-Fox studio, the one that has been giving the customers the better musicals of this and last year—"Wake Up and Live," "On the Avenue," "One in a Million" and "Sing, Baby, Sing." In three of these the Ritzes have appeared, helping the entertainment a great deal. "Life Begins in College" has a larger share of their nonsense, some of which is very, very good and some not so good, and the same showmanship that went into the other musicals.

As so often customary with football pictures, the idea back of this one involves the prowess of a greenhorn student in the backfield and the winning of the crucial game by a one-point margin. The greenhorn is Nat Pendleton, with his hair parted in the middle and his sentences chopped off at both ends. In other words, an Indian. And he goes through the conference like a university through its endowment income.

Mistreated by the campus smart-alecks on the day he arrives, Pendleton is befriended by the Ritzes, who are cleaning and pressing their way through college. Out of gratitude, he turns over his $10,000-a-day bankroll to them and they proceed to run the school as they see fit, by bribery. Pendleton is disqualified for the final game and the Ritzes manage to get in. The winning is in a new way, hilarious and a clean climax to the picture.

Taking the side of those who like the Ritzes, the top scenes would seem to be those in which they sew a pair of pants to the accompaniment of a familiar pizzicato waltz; where they storm the dean's office and demand that Coach Fred Stone remain in charge of the team, despite the alumni; where they dance a rhumba at a college festival. On the other hand, lyrics of their songs are not amusing, an Indian dance they do must be overlooked and so also many other repetitions of their usual vaudeville "business."

Most amusing to the football follower will be a sequence showing Pendleton's triumphs and the Ritz Brothers' share in them. With the score at 60-0 or some other comfortable figure, the coach often lets them go in and give the other side a touchdown or two.

Pendleton is a good Indian and teamed opposite that eccentric comedienne, Joan Davis, is twice as funny. Gloria Stuart represents romance and the family suffering when her daddy is about to lose his coaching. She sings but my guess is that the voice was dubbed in, a shameful practice where so attractive an actress is concerned. The handsome captain of the team and Gloria's favorite is Robert Baldwin, not so long ago a St. Louisan, who has become Dick Baldwin for his screen career. One appears to be waiting for him after this performance.

Along with six or seven trailers at the Fox, there is a second feature, "The Big Shot," starring Guy Kibbee. Mr. Kibbee inherits a big criminal gang from an uncle and proceeds to clean it up. Since he can say, "I'll tear him from limb to limb" in a manner equally threatening to "How much is it?" he soon has them on the run and even when they have kidnaped him, outwits them.

The Life of the Party.

IF it is laugh-provoking to have a leading man say "Why don't you stop treating me like a worm?" and a leading lady reply, "Why don't you turn?" then "The Life of the Party" at the Ambassador is truly lively and all should see it. That is a fair sample of humor from a picture which has the combined efforts of Joe Penner, Gene Raymond, Harriet Hilliard, Parkyakarkus, Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, Billy Gilbert and Ann Miller.

What it is about, few will know after they have seen it. A party of musicians, dancers and singers are journeying to Santa Barbara and on arriving take rooms at a hotel. Gene Raymond, heir to millions, pursues Harriet Hilliard, a singer. At one time his room is filled with shoes and at another time the shoes fall on Victor Moore's head. Twice, if I recall. And by odd circumstance, Gene and Harriet have to spend the night in the bridal suite, although unmarried.

Penner's a right droll character, fully half the laughs coming as he steals shoes from the hallways of the hotel, plays a flute or one-man band or blubbers in his boyish fashion.

"Annapolis Salute," the Ambassador's bargain piece offering blares "Anchors Aweigh" for a while and then takes us around to look at all the tablets on the wall and places where people are buried. James Ellison, Van Heflin and Marsha Hunt do the performing and one looks in vain for Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler behind some bush, sitting on some bench.

Dead End.

IN its second week at Loew's, "Dead End" remains the top picture attraction in town. Sidney Kingsley's extraordinarily realistic play has been translated to the screen with fine ingenuity and understanding on the part of Lillian Hellman. While the accomplishment may not be entered into the "Ten Best" list when the year is over, it will rank very near that all-star team.

Second view of the film is more convincing than the first and permits greater study of the acting and direction, which in this case are of accepted excellence. To Sylvia Sidney and Joel McCrea go the leads in the play, and to a half dozen street arabs a greater part of the attention, but "Dead End" would not have character without two scenes in which Humphrey Bogart appears and in which the honors are not his, but those of the actresses playing opposite him.

First of these and the best bit performance of the year, in my estimation, is that of Marjorie Main as Gangster Bogart's mother. The other is Claire Trevor's brief and heart-broken appearance as Francey, the girl who didn't wait.

Remaining in the first run list are the Missouri's two selections, "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" and "Something to Sing About," taken over from the Fox and Ambassador. Both are better than average for their particular types.

'Tobacco Road' Next Stage Play

When "Tobacco Road" comes to the American Theater on Oct. 17 for its third and farewell engagement in the city, there will be a new Jeeter Lester in John Barton, noted dramatic actor and vaudeville headliner. Barton will follow in the footsteps of Henry Hull and of Taylor Holmes, both of whom have been seen here as Jeeter. He is an uncle of James Barton, now playing the same role in the New York production of the play.

The company to be seen here is the only one on tour. Newcomers to the cast this season will be Lonnie Nace as Sister Bessie Rice, the evangelist; Sondra Johnson as the child wife, Pearl, and Kay Thorne as Ellie May. The remainder of the cast will be the same as seen here last season, including Florence Gerald as Ada Lester and Pitt Herbert, William Bishop, Lillian Ardell, Dick Lee, Rhett Townes and Walter Ayers.

Foreign Pictures, Reserved Seats for Shady Oak Theater

'Art Cinema Policy to Be Instituted at House in Clayton—"Nine Days a Queen" Booked to Open on Oct. 11.

CONVINCED that the art cinema should have a trial in St. Louis, Fanchon and Marco will start operating the Shady Oak Theater in Clayton as a reserved seat house, showing foreign and domestic films of distinction, on Monday night, Oct. 11. The first booking will be the British drama, "Nine Days a Queen," released more than a year ago but not hitherto played in St. Louis.

A tentative list of films to follow includes the French tragedy, "Mayerling," with Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux, based on the same fatal romance of Rudolf of Hapsburg and the Baroness Vetsera out of which Maxwell Anderson made his play, "The Masque of Kings"; "La Kermesse Heroique", which received the New York film critics' award last year as the best foreign film; the opera, "Martha," and "Madame Bovary," with Pola Negri, both in German; "Heart's Desire" and "Forever Yours," two English musicals starring Richard Tauber and Benjamin Gigli, and "The Girl Said No," a Hollywood production with Gilbert and Sullivan selections sung by Frank Moulan, William Danforth, Vivian Hart, Vera Ross and other light opera favorites.

"Nine Days a Queen" was previewed at the Shady Oak yesterday morning by an invited audience and plans were discussed for the formation of review committees to advise the management and help select future pictures. Forming the nucleus of the audience were members of a group who has been active since last spring, at least from point of discussion, in a project to develop an art cinema on the lines of those which have proved popular in New York, Chicago and other cities.

"Nine Days a Queen," which stars Nova Pilbeam, describes the brief reign of Lady Jane Grey, innocent pawn of British statesmen in the Tudor period. Several of Great Britain's most distinguished actors and actresses are in the supporting cast. Sir Cedric Hardwicke plays the Earl of Warwick, John Mills is young Lord Dudley, Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies plays "Bloody Mary" and Dame Sybil Thorndike is lady-in-waiting to the child-queen.

The picture runs only 80 minutes so that the first program will be augmented with short subjects of a higher type than those exhibited at larger houses. The intention of the management is to have a two-hour show, with or without short subjects.

The policy of the theater will be to have one show daily, at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, except on Wednesday and Sunday, when 2:30 o'clock matinees will be offered. Special matinees will be available, too, for groups that wish to book them.

SEAT prices will be 55 cents for the first 10 rows of the theater, 75 cents for the remainder. Because of the reserved seat feature, pictures will not be kept more than a week. Instead, if they prove popular, they will be rebooked at later dates. Although this is a more expensive way than holding over a picture, it assures the hostess who arranges for a theater party at a certain film that there will be no interference in bookings.

Whereas other organizations for the showing of foreign films have usually been concerned with those affording their own special type of propaganda, the Shady Oak policy will rule out any obvious propaganda picture, according to Chauncey B. Nelson, in charge of the project for Fanchon and Marco at present. Otherwise a pretty wide latitude in the field of entertainment will be afforded, with the management following suggestions not only of the reviewing committees or any other interested persons. Revivals of outstanding pictures of the past, first showings of certain pictures which will later play in the big Grand boulevard or downtown houses, even the type of picture that is roadshown in the East but not roadshown here will all be possibilities.

Selection of the Shady Oak as the spot to try out the specialized type of pictures is the result of long-deferred plans for re-opening of the Grand Central Theater as a de luxe "Guild Cinema." When Fanchon and Marco took over the Warner Bros. theaters in the spring of 1936 and became sole operator of first-run theaters, except for Loew's, an ambitious scheme was drafted for remodeling the Grand Central into a luxurious art theater. The front was boarded up and an "Under Construction" sign went on the outside.

But with a string of de luxe houses already operating on Grand boulevard, the risk of sums up to $100,000 on the "Guild Cinema" became more and more prodigious as months went on. If the Shady Oak venture succeeds and outgrows its theater, it might yet lead to a "Guild Cinema" but the size of the audience for films of the type to be shown is yet to be discovered.

Fanchon and Marco, who operate the St. Louis Amusement Co. houses in addition to their own first-run theaters, are more willing to use the Shady Oak for foreign films than other houses. They have the Hi-Pointe, Richmond, Varsity and Tivoli to take care of regular neighborhood trade in the same territory and figure that most of the art theater's customers would come from the West End or St. Louis County. Bus service is available in front of the theater, which is at 7630 Forsythe boulevard.

RADIO NEWS AND CURRENT PROGRAMS

Bing Crosby Back on KSD

Will Resume KSD Appearances Thursday—Robert L. Ripley and Jack Haley on KSD's Saturday Night Bill—Amos 'n' Andy Shift to 6 P. M.—Other Coming Features Include We, the People.

WHEN Bing Crosby returns to his program with Bob Burns on KSD next Thursday night, he will have as guests Beatrice Lillie, William Gargan of the movies, and Mischa Levitzki, the pianist, who has appeared with Crosby on the program more times than any other artist and entertainer. He will sing songs from his new picture, including "The Moon Got in My Eyes," "All You Want to Do Is Dance" and "It's the Natural Thing to Do."

Saturday night, the period on KSD from 7 to 8 o'clock will be occupied by Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It or Not" program, which will be shifted from another network, and a new show headed by Jack Haley, the comedian. Ripley will continue to draw on the whole world for strange and bizarre facts and to feature persons who have had unusual and even seemingly incredible experiences. He will be supported by B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra and the Men About Town quartet.

Haley, who has been featured on network programs, will be supported by Warren Hull, the actor; Virginia Verrill, the singer, and Ted Fiorito's orchestra and Wendie Barrie, of the movies, as his stooge in comedy sketches. Haley, who played in vaudeville until 1928, has been a movie star since 1933, and, going aboard the Show Boat last July, scored an immediate radio success.

SHEILA BARRETT, THE MIMIC, WHO WILL BE STARRED IN A NEW KSD SERIES, SCHEDULED TO OPEN TODAY ON KSD.

AMOS 'N' ANDY are now broadcasting over KSD at 6 o'clock Monday through Friday, their program having been shifted as a result of the general change in time of network programs which went into effect last Sunday.

Following their appearance on KSD at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening, Burns and Allen's program will feature guest stars during the two comedians month-long vacation from radio. Their return to KSD is set for Monday night, Nov. 8. This evening, Fred Astaire will join them.

Ben Bernie is billed with Lanny Ross and Charles Butterworth on KSD Tuesday night.

Rudy Vallee's guests Thursday night will include "Charlie McCarthy" and Edgar Bergen; Eddie Peabody, the banjo star ,and Edward Arnold in a one-act play, "Mr. Jones Changes His Mind," by Milton Geiger, whose work was introduced on the networks by Vallee. Tommy Riggs and his "Betty Lou" also are billed.

WALTER HUSTON, Nan Sunderland and Barbara Kent will play in a Radio Theater performance of "Dodsworth" tomorrow night. New Monday programs will include: Mary Margaret McBride, who was born in Paris, Mo., is a Missouri U. graduate and is known to listeners as Martha Deane, in a comment series, at 11 a. m., three days a week on the CBS net and KMOX; Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne Quintuplets, speaking from his hospital, with music from New York, at 3:45 p. m. three days a week on the CBS and KMOX; Elsie Hitz and Nick Dawson in a revival of the Follow the Moon serial, at 4 p. m. Monday through Friday on the CBS net and KMOX; The Life of Mary Sothern serial (moved from another network) at 4:15 p. m. on the CBS net and KMOX; "New Horizons," featuring explorers and scientists under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, at 5:15 p. m. on the CBS net; Famous Jury Trials, at 8 p. m. on KWK. Dorothy Gordon's Children's Corner has been moved to 4:45 p. m. on the CBS chain.

A new serial, Painted Rock, which is set for 10:15 a. m. on the WJZ net Monday through Friday, tells the story of a girl teacher from the East who becomes caught in the political and social currents of a small Western town.

Carson Robison and his Buckaroos and Frank Novak and his one-man band will start a series at 12:15 p. m. tomorrow on the Mutual net.

Tuesday's schedule includes: Bill (Bojangles) Robinson and Caspar Reardon, the swing harpist, on Ben Bernie's program; Lum and Abner and Frank Fay with Al Jolson; a new "Dere Teacher" children's program of questions and answers games for contestants 8 to 12 years of age, at 4:45 on the CBS net.

WEDNESDAY will bring the first of a Hobby Lobby series produced in New York by Dave Elman, at 6:15 p. m. on the CBS net. Elman, who has been doing the program for New York listeners, will introduce on his opening CBS program Charles C. Weideman, an Ohio State University professor, who creates music with electric light bulbs, auto tires and more than 1000 other articles of common use. The life of Mary Lyon, pioneer educator, who founded Mount Holyoke College more than 100 years ago, will be dramatized in the Cavalcade period. Jessica Dragonette and Charles Kullman will conclude their musical comedy revivals. Sid Skolsky will start a Hollywood program at 7:30 p. m. on the WJZ net and KWK.

Thursday, the We, the People, programs will be revived at 6:30 p. m. on the CBS net and KMOX. Gabriel Heatter, the radio commentator, will produce and direct the broadcasts in place of their originator, Phillips Lord, who is said to be too busy with other radio work to handle them again. Helen Hayes, the actress, will be Heatter's guest on his opener. Part of the celebration of James Whitcomb Riley's birth anniversary and the dedication of the Riley memorial home at Greenfield, Ind., will be broadcast at 7:30 p. m. Thursday on the WJZ net.

Kate Smith's guests Thursday night will include an act of Ibsen's "Doll's House," with Paul Lukas, Dennis King, Ruth Gordon and

The new Grand Central Station dramatic program, with setting in New York City's railroad terminal, which was scheduled to start last Tuesday, instead will be a 7-7:30 p. m. Friday feature on the WJZ net and KWK. Its opening is set for next Friday.

Friday, the Varsity Show will come from Purdue University at 8 p. m. on KWK; Dolores del Rio will play in the Hollywood Hotel; Singin' Sam will be the Song Shop guest.

Saturday, the WEAF and WJZ nets will cover the Army-Columbia and Carnegie Tech-Purdue football games and WGN will broadcast the Notre Dame-Illinois game, starting at 1:45 p. m. W. C. Handy, composer of "St. Louis Blues," is billed for the Swing Club.

Saturday, the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music concerts will be resumed at 10 a. m. on the CBS net. Mozart's Symphonia Concertante for Violin, Viola and Orchestra and Haydn's "Clock" Symphony are programmed.

H. H. M. Joachim's Your Unseen Friend programs are scheduled on KMOX at 7:00 Saturday night, beginning Oct. 9.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE, who will go off the air after her broadcast of Wednesday, plans a concert tour, and will not broadcast again until it is concluded . . . The shift of the March of Time programs from the CBS net to the WJZ chain and KWK has been set for 8 p. m. Thursday, Oct. 14, when it will compete with the Show Boat and Maj. Bowes' amateur hour. . . . Ann Leaf, the organist, is playing for Tony Wons on his new KSD programs at 9:30 a. m. three weekday mornings. Wons, who retired from broadcasting 18 months ago, spent the time convalescing in a hamlet on Lake of the Woods, near Winnipeg, Can. . . .

Mrs. R. P. Gruber of Webster Groves, whose plays, "The Son of His Father" and "Happy Landing" were accepted and produced in First Nighter broadcasts, has written a serial, "Mrs. O'Brien's Boarding House," which KWK will carry at 9:15 a. m. Monday through Friday.

Pat Barnes' Opera House, a Mutual chain program, is carried by KWK at 8:30 p. m. Mondays.

Stars of Opera In New Concert Opening Tonight

Erna Sacks and Grace Moore Among Soloists — Kirsten Flagstad Will Sing From Detroit.

RADIO concerts this morning and afternoon will be broadcast about as last Sunday, the principal one listed for the forenoon being the Radio City program at 11:30 on KWK.

The Madrigal Singers will give a concert of Elizabethan songs at 9:30 this morning on the WEAF net.

Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" and serenades for strings by Tschaikowsky and Sir Edward Elgar will be played in the Everybody's Music period at 2 p. m. today on KMOX.

Another concert by Marion Talley will be broadcast by KSD at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Max Hollander, violinist, and John Mundy, 'cellist, will assist Sigurd Nilssen and Helen Marshall in KSD's Fireside Recital at 6:30 this evening.

AT 7 o'clock tonight, the Concerts from Carnegie Hall, for which eight noted singers have been engaged, will begin on the WJZ net and KWK with Erno Rapee again as conductor of the 70-piece symphony orchestra. Erna Sacks, the European soprano of the phenomenally high voice; Jussi Bjoerling, leading tenor of the Stockholm Royal Opera, and Richard Tauber, the European opera and concert tenor, who are all to be members of the company, will take part in tonight's concert. Mme. Sacks will sing from Stockholm; Bjoerling from the same Swedish city, and Tauber from Derby, England, where he will be giving a recital. Grace Moore and Helen Jepson, also members of the company, will sing from Hollywood. Maria Jeritza, Joseph Schmidt, the German tenor, and Donald Dickson, the baritone, the other members of the company, will sing tonight from New York.

Mme. Jeritza is to sing Stolz' "Im Prater" and also the Love Duet from "Faust" with Schmidt and the "Give Me Thy Hand" duet from "Don Giovanni" with Dickson. Miss Jepson is to sing Schubert's "Serenade" and Schmidt, Leoncavallo's "Mattinata." Orchestral pieces programmed include Albeniz' "Triana," the Polka from Weinberger's "Schwanda," the Liebestod from "Tristan and Isolde" and Enesco's "Roumania Rhapsody."

KIRSTEN FLAGSTAD has programmed Wagner's "Traume," the "Du Bist der Lenz" aria from "Die Walkuere," Bohm's "Stille Wie Die Nacht," "At Parting," "Love Went a-Riding" and "Old Folks at Home" for her appearance as soloist in the concert from Detroit which Jose Iturbi will conduct at 8 o'clock tonight. For the orchestra, Iturbi has selected the overture to "The Magic Flute," the Prelude to Act 2 of "Lohengrin," two pieces from Debussy's "Children's Corner" suite and the overture to "Die Meistersinger."

Josephine Antoine, coloratura soprano of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera Houses, will take Margaret Speaks' place in KSD's concert at 7:30 tomorrow evening as the regular soloist is making a brief concert tour. Miss Antoine will sing Wilson's "Carmena," Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me" and Bishop's "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark."

Jose Iturbi, the pianist-conductor, will be the soloist in Andre Kostelanetz' symphonic concert at 8 p. m. Wednesday. He will play Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Caprice Espagnol" and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

COMEDIAN ON KSD THIS EVENING

JACK BENNY AND MARY LIVINGSTONE, ALL SET FOR THEIR RETURN TO KSD AT 6 O'CLOCK THIS EVENING.

World Series Broadcasts as Usual Planned

BROADCASTING of the world series is to begin at 12:15 noon Wednesday on the four national networks, and will cover all the games.

KSD will be unable to start the broadcasts until 12:45 noon each day, because of time sharing requirements.

Announcers probably will be "Red" Barber, Tom Manning and George Hicks for KSD and the WEAF and WJZ networks, France Laux and John Dyer for the CBS chain, and Dave Driscoll, Bob Elson and John O'Hara for the Mutual.

It was stated yesterday that the broadcasts would be on a sustaining basis, that is, that they would carry no advertising.

For the past three years, a sponsor has paid $100,000 for the radio rights for the games and around $150,000 for the time on the networks. With the broadcasts non-commercial, the charge for the radio rights probably will be prorated among the stations in the chains and the stations will donate the time.

Broadcasts of Veiled Prophet Parade and Ball Over KSD

Kathryn Turney Garten to Describe Ceremonies Wednesday Night at Municipal Auditorium and Queen's Supper—KSD to Cover Festival on Municipal Plaza Tuesday Evening as Well as Street Procession.

KSD will broadcast descriptions of the Veiled Prophet parade and the music and folk dance festival on the Municipal Plaza Tuesday night and of the ball in the Municipal Auditorium and the Queen's supper in the Gold Room of the Jefferson Hotel Wednesday night. Kathryn Turney Garten, whose book reviews, musical biographies and Municipal Opera previews have made her well known to KSD listeners, will be at the microphone for the broadcasts of the ball and the Queen's supper. Mrs. Garten will fly here for the occasion from Detroit.

Covering of the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday will be made possible by KFUO relinquishing half an hour of its time, from 10 to 10:30 o'clock. KFUO will have the period from 10:30 to 11:30 Wednesday night.

Tuesday evening, KSD will cover the Veiled Prophet parade from about 9:15 to 9:30 o'clock as it passes the Post-Dispatch building at Olive and Twelfth streets. Then, from 10 to 10:30 o'clock, it will broadcast from the scene of the Municipal Plaza festivities. KSD announcers will pass through the crowd and the celebrants with a microphone and the station's new ultra short wave transmitter, which one of them will carry on his back as he would a knapsack. This miniature station will broadcast as does KSD's big transmitter on the roof of the Post-Dispatch building and its radiations will be picked up by a portable radio set connected with an amplifier and wires to the KSD studios and the main transmitter for rebroadcasting on KSD's regular channel of 550 kilocycles. The portable transmitter, built recently by KSD's engineers, was used first for KSD's Monday night broadcast from the National Home Show.

Mrs. Garten, assisted by R. Fullerton Place, conductor of the Sunday Community Forum, will begin her description of the Veiled Prophet Ball Wednesday night at 9:45 and will continue it until 11 o'clock. She will begin her broadcast from the Queen's supper at 11:45 o'clock, and will continue until 12:15 in the morning.

Jerry Belcher Program From St. Louis Today

JERRY BELCHER, who began a series of Interesting Neighbors interviews on KSD last Sunday, will put his program on the station and the WEAP network from St. Louis at 6:45 o'clock this evening. The broadcast will come through the studios of KSD.

Belcher came here early the past week from Elgin, Ill., where last Sunday he interviewed men and women who are enrolled in a school for persons over 70 years of age which was established recently by Dr. Charles E. Sharp.

Belcher plans to interview today Marlin Perkins, snake curator of the St. Louis Zoo, who has had numerous adventures with the deadlier reptiles. Belcher will take his microphone to Perkins' home, 6904 Julian avenue.

Jack Benny's Return to KSD Feature of Programs for Today

Sheila Barrett's New Series at 4:30 on KSD—Rudy Vallee With "Charlie McCarthy"—Metropolitan Opera Auditions, Silver Theater, Joe Penner, Phil Baker and Tyrone Power Also Scheduled.

PROGRAMS scheduled for today on KSD include: 12:30 noon, Smoke Dreams; 1:00, baseball scores, Associated Press news and orchestra music; 1:15, address by Dr. Arnold H. Lowe and singing by choir; 1:30, baseball scores and Community Forum; 2:00, talk on Confraternity of Christian Doctrine; 2:15, Tapestry of Melody; 2:30, baseball scores; 4:00, Marion Talley's concert; 4:30, new Shiela Barrett program; 5:00, Associated Press news; 5:15, Tales of the Foreign Legion; 5:30, Sugah and Her Friends; 6:00, Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone; 6:30, Fireside Recital; 6:45, Jerry Belcher's Interesting Neighbors interviews; 7:00, "Charlie McCarthy," W. C. Fields, Rudy Vallee and Nelson Eddy; 8:00 Manhattan Merry-Go-Round; 8:30, Album of Familiar Music with Frank Munn; 9:00, Music; 9:15 to 10:15, off the air; 10:15 to midnight, music.

When Jack Benny returns to his program on KSD at 6 o'clock this evening, he will be supported by his old cast, including Mary Livingston, Andy Devine, Sam ("Schlepperman") Hearn, Kenny Baker, the tenor, and Phil Harris and his orchestra and Don Wilson. He plans no special departure from the type of comedy which has marked his previous broadcasts.

Sheila Barrett, the mimic; Joe Rines and his orchestra, Roy Campbell's Royalists mixed chorus, with Graham McNamee as master of ceremonies, will begin a Sunday series on KSD at 4:30 this afternoon. Miss Barrett has won countrywide recognition for her impersonations of noted persons, not only for the accuracy of her mimicry, but also for the deftness of the touches of caricature.

Rudy Vallee, who has gone to Hollywood from which his Thursday night hours on KSD will come for some weeks, will act as master of ceremonies tonight for the KSD program featuring "Charlie McCarthy" and Edgar Bergen and Nelson Eddy, and Sally Eilers will be the featured dramatic star. W. C. Fields may not be in the radio studio, but probably will be heard from at "Charlie's" expense. Don Ameche is expected back on the program next Sunday.

A program including an address by Dr. Arnold H. Lowe and singing by a choir of 30 voices will be broadcast by KSD at 1:15 this afternoon. Wednesday, at 6:15 p. m., a similar program will feature an address by the Rev. Henry Little.

Today, the Community Forum program on KSD will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Two of the more important religious programs will be resumed today, Dr. Ralph W. Sockman beginning another Radio Pulpit series at 9 a. m. on the WEAF net and Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick starting his winter National Vespers at 3 p. m. on the WJZ net.

A series of interviews between Linton Wells and newspaper correspondents speaking in other countries will be inaugurated in the Magic Key period at 1 p. m. today on KWK. This afternoon, Wells will discuss war possibilities in Europe with Frederick T. Burchall, chief European correspondent of the New York Times, who will be in Geneva. Others on the program will be John Charles Thomas, the baritone; the Tune Twisters and Jolly Coburn's orchestra.

ANOTHER Metropolitan Opera Auditions series will begin at 4 p. m. today on the WJZ net and KWK with Edward Johnson, general manager of the "Met" as master of ceremonies and the opera house auditions committee selecting the singers and acting as jury. It will run for 26 weeks. Today's competitors will be Jess Walters, a 28-year-old baritone from Pennsylvania; Miss Virginia Mauret, a 26-year-old dancer, who has sung in operettas in New York, and Hardesty Johnson, a 38-year-old tenor, who sang on one of these auditions programs two years ago.

Rosalind Russell and James Stewart, of the movies, will play the leads in the opening Silver Theater performance at 4 p. m. today on the CBS net and KMOX. The play will be "First Love," written for radio by Grover Jones, a Hollywood writer. It will be broadcast in four weekly installments with Conrad Nagel, the movie actor and director, as producer, director and master of ceremonies.

Irene Wicker's Singing Lady music plays will begin at 4 p. m. today on WGN and the Mutual net, and will continue weekly. Today, she will broadcast, dramatize the story of "The Boy Verdi."

Joe Penner will be back on the CBS net and KMOX at 5 p. m. today with his old cast, including Gene Austin, the tenor; the two clowns; Jimmy Grier's orchestra and a cast of actors. A girl singer, probably Julie Gibson, will be featured instead of Joy Hodges.

Phil Baker will have Patsy Kelly, of the movies, as his feminine stooge when he takes over the period from 6:30 to 7 p. m. today on the CBS chain in which the Summer Stars program has been substituting for him.

Werner Janssen's program at 6:30 p. m. Sundays will be replaced today and hereafter by one featuring Ozzie Nelson's orchestra; Harriet Hilliard, the singer, and Feg Murray, a cartoonist.

The concluding part of the Columbia Workshop's performance of "Alice in Wonderland" is set for 7 p. m. today on KMOX.

Tyrone Powers' dramatic program will replace Shep Fields' Rippling Rhythm at 8 p. m. today for a weekly run. The young movie star will be supported by other film actors in special versions of popular plays. Tonight, Margaret Sullavan will play with him in P. G. Wodehouse's adaptation of Jacques Deval's comedy, "Her Cardboard Lover." Jack Smart, the radio actor who went Hollywood, also will have a role.

Smiling Ed McConnell, who was hurt in an auto accident Sept. 13, expects to be back on his program this afternoon.

Results of the preliminary telepathy test made in last Sunday's Foundation period will be given out at 9 o'clock tonight, when another experiment will be made with the help of listeners. In coming programs, the extra sensory perception cards used in extensive experiments by Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke University, will be used. Dramatized episodes will continue to be part of the broadcasts.

WEBSTER COLLEGE TO OPEN CATHOLIC AUTHORS' GALLERY

Pictures, Letters and Manuscripts Chosen in Poll Conducted by Periodical.

Webster College will open its "Academy of the Gallery of Living Catholic Authors" Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock with a meeting in the college auditorium, Lockwood and Plymouth avenues, Webster Groves.

The gallery is a collection of pictures, letters and manuscripts of 33 Catholic authors who were chosen ni a poll conducted by the Catholic periodical, "America." The gallery has been assembled by Ssiter Mary Joseph of the college. Two additional Catholic writers, one American and one foreign, will be added to the gallery each year.

Speakers on Saturday will include the Rev. Christian H. Winkelmann, auxiliary Bishop of Missouri, and the Rev. Francis X. Talbot, S. J., and the Rev. Leonard Feeney, S. J., both of New York, and from the staff of "America."

GOLD TREATMENT FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Koch Hospital Staff Member Reports 15 of 26 Patients Improved During Test.

Fifteen of 26 tuberculosis patients at Koch Hospital who received injections of a gold preparation improved as a result, a member of the hospital staff who directed the study reported in the American Review of Tuberculosis. He pronounced the results "fairly encouraging."

Nine of the patients showed definite improvement and six were slightly better. On the other hand, during the same time, only four patients in a control group who did not receive the gold injections improved.

In judging the worth of the experiment, however, it is necessary to consider that only a small group of patients was treated, the physician pointed out. In the 18 months that have elapsed since the study was made, some of the patients have not maintained the gains which they showed in the shorter period of observation, hospital officials added.

The preparation, gold-sodium-thiosulphate, which contains 37.4 per cent gold, increases the body resistance and stimulates the formation of new connective tissue. The increased resistance manifests itself by lowered temperature, a gain in weight and more favorable blood counts.

All Advanced Cases.

Average age of the men and women studied was 39 and the average duration of the disease in the group was five and a half years. All had advanced tuberculosis and were considered by the staff as unsuitable for other special methods of treatment, like collapse therapy.

Doses of the drug were increased gradually, the men getting larger ones than the women. Some had mild complications and others reacted so strongly that treatment had to be stopped entirely. Three in the gold group and three in the control group died. However, the director of the study wrote, deaths in the gold group could not be ascribed to the treatment.

At the start, members of the hospital staff were more or less prejudiced against gold, but later they were surprised at the wholly unexpected benefit derived in a few cases from the procedure, the article related. "I shall not hesitate to use gold in the future, subject to certain limitations," the physician wrote.

Since Mollgaard 12 years ago published the results of a study of gold-sodium-thiosulphate and made claims that the substance has a specifically curative effect in tuberculosis, there have been hundreds of men who have tried the drug on patients, the physician related. However, there is still no uniform opinion as to its place as a therapeutic agent.

Although large single doses of gold were given when the treatment was first developed, now it is known that patients cannot tolerate a great amount. Usually between 6 and 9 grams is given, he explained. The gold is injected in a vein after the patient has been without food 10 to 12 hours. After treatment, the patient is required to eat lightly at the next meal.

Can't Foresee Reaction.

Complications encountered are chiefly those of heavy-metal poisoning. It is impossible to tell, the physician wrote, which patients will react unfavorably.

It was decided to make the study at Koch Hospital because laboratory and X-ray facilities are excellent and because no similar work had been undertaken with gold, he related.

"I believe there is a very small group of tuberculosis patients, probably one or two per cent, in whom gold is indicated," he declared. "This group would consist of patients with recent involvement, not over one or two years' duration, in whom the disease is acute or subacute. Such a group might be benefited by gold through the drug's property of stimulating scar-tissue formation.

"It is probable that one of the weaker gold compounds, or some other compound having the same connective-tissue stimulating effect, will come into use. Some drug of this nature that would produce the same effect, but cause few complications, would indeed be welcome.

"Because of differences in results published, any attempt to popularize this treatment among general practitioners would be disastrous. Only men thoroughly acquainted with treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis should use this drug, and then it would seem best that treatment be given in a hospital where all necessary material for following the patient is available."

THOUSANDS SEE FUNERAL OF PATRICIA MAGUIRE

Young Woman Who Died After Five-Year Coma Is Buried With Cherished Possessions.
By thee Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Thousands of persons crowded Oak Park streets today to witness the last chapter in the strange story of Patricia Maguire, who died after lying in a coma for more than five years.

Miss Maguire was buried in Forest Home Cemetery with some of the things she cherished before the Valentine day in 1932 when she became a victim of sleeping sickness, a ring from her sister, Mrs. Gladys Hansen; a necklace from the fiance who continued to call during her 67 months' sleep; a bridal bouquet.

Hundreds gathered about the small home. Hundreds more were at the Church of the Ascension when the cortege arrived. Automobiles lined the streets for blocks in the vicinity of the church while the Rev. Bernard Burns sang the mass.

Mrs. Peter Miley, Miss Maguire's mother, who with Mrs. Hansen had given the sleeping girl uninterrupted attention throughout her illness, walked with difficulty. She injured herself when seh collapsed at her daughter's death Tuesday night.

DRAW ME!
TRY FOR AN ART SCHOLARSHIP
Copy this girl and send us your drawing — perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.
Prizes for Five Best Drawings — FIVE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfits. (Value of each course, $215.00.)
FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.
Nowadays design and color play an important part in the sale of almost everything. Therefore the artist, who designs merchandise or illustrates advertising has become a real factor in modern industry. Machines can never displace him. Many Federal students, both men and girls who are now commercial designers or illustrators capable of earning from $1000 to $5000 yearly have been trained by the Federal Course. Here's a splendid opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send your drawing to the address below.

RULES
This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal students are not eligible.
1. Make drawing of girl 5½ inches high, on paper 6½ inches high. Draw only the girl, not the lettering.
2. Use only pencil or pen.
3. No drawings will be returned.
4. Print your name, address, age and occupation on back of drawing.
5. All drawings must be received by October 30th, 1937. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

VEILED PROPHET BROADCASTS on KSD

PARADE BROADCAST, TUESDAY, OCT. 5

At approximately 9:15 p. m., an eye description of the parade from the southwest corner of the Post-Dispatch Building will be given while the parade is passing.

MUNICIPAL PLAZA OPEN AIR FETE

At about 10 o'clock activities will be centered on the Municipal Plaza for the first Veiled Prophet's Open-Air Community Fete, with music and folk-dancing. The description of this colorful scene will be broadcast by KSD. Announcers will move about among the celebrants, with a KSD pack transmitter, used to great advantage for the first time last week at the opening of the St. Louis National Horse Show.

KATHRYN TURNEY GARTEN

CORONATION WEDNESDAY, OCT. 6

From 9:45 to 10:30 the Coronation will be broadcast. KSD listeners will hear Kathryn Turney Garten paint vivid word pictures of the entrance of Veiled Prophet with his colorful retinue, and the description of the impressive ceremony in the Court of His Mysterious Majesty. She will be assisted in the broadcast by R. Fullerton Place.

QUEEN'S SUPPER, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 6 11:45 P. M. to 12:15 A. M.

For the third time KSD will broadcast an eye description of the Queen's Supper. Kathryn Turney Garten will use her descriptive talents to broadcast the Queen's Supper direct from the Jefferson Hotel.

PART SEVEN

Anthony Eden States Britain's Attitude to A World in Turmoil

England Ready for Pact to Disarm, but, Until That Is Made Will Authorize Needed Expenditure for Defense.

(Following is the text of the speech by Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, before the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva):

WE ARE met at a time of profound international anxiety. Though the people of the earth want peace, they seem as far as ever from attaining to it. In two parts of the world at least—in the southwestern corner of Europe and in the Far East—war is being waged as fiercely as at any time in history, while to the age-old bitterness of strife is added the deadly power of modern armament.

The influence of these events is everywhere felt. Even those of us here whose nationals are not engaged, either directly or indirectly, in either of these conflicts, even the most peace-loving amongst us, are now spending a great proportion of national wealth upon armaments.

Let me take my own country as an example. Last year I made a reference in this Assembly to the rearmament program which we had then undertaken. Let me give an illustration to show what this has meant to one nation alone.

British in Arms Race.

At the present moment the aggregate tonnage of the principal types of warships actually building for the British Navy exceeds 150,000 tons. I take no account in this figure of ships already launched this year, nor of a further 55,000 tons which Parliament has sanctioned and which will shortly be put in hand. The last three naval programs partly completed or in actual execution in the United Kingdom at the present time represent a total expenditure of £130,000,000 (about $600,000,000).

Naval personnel is being expanded at a rate without precedent for our country in time of peace. Only on rare occasions in our history has a comparable naval effort been made.

At the same time, the program of expansion and re-equipment of our air force is going forward, with the result that a formidable increase of offensive as well as defensive power is being effected, while the equipment of our land forces has proceeded with increasing momentum and a continuous growth in the capacity for production of all three services is taking place at vast expense.

Reason for Arming.

I mention those facts and figures not so much to indicate the determination which exists amongst all sections of my fellow countrymen to carry this program through, but rather as an illustration of the consequences, even for those countries whose nationals are not now engaged in conflict, of the deterioration in international relations which has taken place in recent years.

We are always conscious that a weakening of the existing system of international order must greatly increase the risks and anxieties, strains and stresses, the world over. In the long run, such a weakening of international order could benefit no nation. It is benefiting no nation. It is true that in divers parts of the world the warfare that has taken place, or even is taking place, has resulted in territorial gains by one nation at the expense of another. But it has also resulted in the improvement of the victor to an extent only less than that when, at the close of the Great War, we, like the other nations assembled in this great hall, joined the League of Nations and sought to set up a new international order. 'It was not only from love of peace but from a conviction that aggression did not pay.

"War Wasteful and Futile."

We see no reason for modifying that conviction. Indeed recent history may be held to confirm it.

The League was not originally formulated only as an ideal towards which men might strive. It was formulated as a practical application of a principle which, at least in 1919, was generally already accepted by the nations of the world—the principle that war does not benefit either victor or vanquished.

It may be that this view is not so generally held today. But so far as my country, at any rate, is concerned, our attitude to war is exactly the same as it was in 1919. We believe war to be both wasteful and futile. We believe that it can confirm no permanent benefit, either on the nation that wins or the nation that loses. Had war in 1914 and since been averted there can be little doubt that the world would be more prosperous and more stable than it is today. Nor do more

Harvard Savant's Books Disclose Irreconcilable Clash of Ideas

Felix Frankfurter versus Franklin Roosevelt

Most Distinguished of President's Advisers Admires Him Still

Not Consulted About the Scheme to Enlarge and Pack the Supreme Court—White House Contact at End Since February.

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Author of "Leon Blum, Poet to Premier.")
(Copyright, 1937, by The Pulitzer Publishing Co. All rights reserved.)

BOSTON, Oct. 2.

BASKING like a salamander in the rays of a noontide sun which burned down through unshuttered casements, the diminutive figure of a man—he weighs 138 pounds and is 5 feet, 4 inches tall—perched before an oversize desk with something of a bird's poise between rest and flight. Through silver-rimmed spectacles, blue eyes, studious rather than fiery, twinkled on his visitor with a glance lively and intent, but also gentle and profoundly kind. The well-modeled skull was both capacious and compact; the brow was one fit to house superlative talent. A nose vigorous but not predatory. A mouth generous and sensitive. A chin resolute without pugnacity. Gray hair, retaining only hints of youthful swarthiness, parted at the side and brushed with military exactness. Garb punctiliously neat.

Such were the writer's first swift impressions of Felix Frankfurter, James Byrne professor of administrative law at the Harvard Law School and a personage celebrated at one extreme as the "Iago of the New Deal" and at the other as an educator whose influence on public affairs has been comparable, in beneficence and import, to that of George Wythe alone. It will be recalled that Wythe bore the quaint title of Professor of Law and Police at William and Mary College, and was the teacher—to name two among many ardent young spirits—of John Marshall and Thomas Jefferson.

The Professor Visited On Own Terms in Own Way.

Having protested mildly against being addressed as "Dr. Frankfurter," on the ground that his only formally earned degrees are those of Bachelor of Arts of the College of the City of New York and Bachelor of Laws of the Harvard Law School, Prof. Frankfurter embarked on a procedure unique in this correspondent's experience. Throughout the two periods of his service as a member of the Harvard faculty, Prof. Frankfurter has never granted an interview. The reason, he explained with a touch of shyness, is that scholarship may be regarded as a kind of priesthood, with its own vows and sanctities—among them a restriction of public utterance to the form traditionally accepted as appropriate to a scholar—that is to say, his own published and responsible writings in books or magazines. Therefore, nothing of a public nature that might chance to escape his lips was to be quoted directly or indirectly.

One exception was expressly made. The writer was authorized to make use, at discretion, of such oral information as Prof. Frankfurter chose to vouchsafe regarding himself as a private individual—the facts of his career, for instance, and in particular the men and books that have exerted decisive effects on his intellectual evolution. It was further agreed that the correspondent was at liberty to describe the circumstances of his two calls on Prof. Frankfurter—one of two hours at his office in the Library Building of

Fundamentals of Prof. Frankfurter's View of Our Political System

THE following quotations from various works by Prof. Felix Frankfurter present his views, which he says are still valid today, concerning such questions now agitating public interest as the independence of the judiciary, the enlargement of the Supreme Court, its authoritative position in the American Federation and its function as an organ of policy-making and statecraft:

"The doctrine of the separation of powers . . . embodies cautions against tyranny in government through undue concentration of power. The environment of the Constitution, the debates at Philadelphia and in support of the adoption of the Constitution, unite in proof that 'the purpose was not to avoid friction, but, by means of the inevitable friction incident to the distribution of the governmental powers among three departments, to save the people from autocracy'."—"The Public and its Government," p. 77. (The quotation within the quotation is from the dissent of Mr. Justice Brandeis in Meyers v. United States.)

"Life tenure for United States Judges grew out of the doctrine of the separation of powers. An independent judiciary was part of the scheme of counterpoises of government."—"The Business of the Supreme Court," by Felix Frankfurter and James M. Landis, p. 218.

"The Court very early in its history refused to give merely advisory opinions. Partly this was an assertion of its independence, a refusal of the role of subordinate either to Legislature or Executive."—Article on the Supreme Court in the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences.

"The first judicial act provided for a Supreme Court of six members, which was increased to seven in 1807 and to nine in 1837. Subject to short fluctuations from a tribunal of 10 to one of seven between the years 1863 to 1869, this has remained the size of the Court. There is no magic in the number nine, but there are limits to effective judicial action. Deliberation by the Court is the very foundation of sound adjudication, as is also a lively sense of responsibility by every member of the Court for its collective judgment. Experience is conclusive that to enlarge the size of the Supreme Court would be self defeating. . . .

With the increase of business after the Civil War, "a larger membership of the Court was proposed, ranging from 15 to 24, so as to permit shifts in the sittings of the Court or work by standing divisions . . . either of these devices would be fatal for the special functions of the Supreme Court . . . happily, these devices never attained enactment . . . not until 1891 did Congress pass the requisite legislation. Instead of increasing the size of the Court, it decreased its business."—Article on the Supreme Court, Encyclopedia of Social Sciences.

"The serious proposals made from time to time to increase the membership of the Court, to add temporary Judges, to break up an enlarged Court into divisions, did not prevail. There are intrinsic limits to the size of a court if it is to be a coherent instrument for the dispatch of business, and at the same time to observe the needs of consultation and deliberation . . . despite the country's phenomenal increase in population and wealth and the resulting extension of governmental activities, the duties of the Supreme Court have been kept within limitations appropriate for nine Judges who are not supermen."—"The Business of the Supreme Court," p. 187.

"If the Thames is 'liquid history,' the Constitution of the United States is most significantly not a document but a stream of history. And the Supreme Court has directed the stream."—"The Commerce Clause under Marshall, Taney and Waite," p. 2.

"This tribunal is the ultimate organ—short of direct popular action—for adjusting the relationship of the individual to the separate states, of the individual to the United States, of the 48 states to one another, of the States to the Union, and of the three departments of Government to one another."—Encyclopedia of Social Sciences.

"Some mechanism for adjusting conflicts between the center and the constituent units is indispensable . . . if any federalism is to endure, it must provide for some checkrein on the constituent units, and the history of the American Colonies and States made it inevitable that that checkrein should be a court and not Congress."—Encyclopedia of Social Sciences.

"Two major issues have been the dominant concern of the Supreme Court throughout its history. Under shifting forms and with varying intensity the Court has had to decide what belongs to the Nation and what belongs to the States; under what circumstances may Society intervene and when is the individual to be left unrestricted."—"The Commerce Clause under Marshall, Taney and Waite," pp. 111-112.

"In a federated nation, especially one as vast in its territory and varied in its interests as ours, the authority must be lodged somewhere to make necessary accommodations between the States and the central Government. The Supreme Court is that ultimate arbiter."—From the essay on "Mr. Justice Holmes and the Constitution."

"Most of the problems of modern society, whether of industry, agriculture or finance, or racial interactions of the eternal conflict between liberty and authority, are sooner or later legal problems for solution by our courts and, ultimately, by the Supreme Court of the United States." —Preface to "The Business of the Supreme Court," pp. V and VI.

"With the great men of the Supreme Court, constitutional adjudication has always been statecraft."—"The Public and Its Government," p. 75.

"The essentially political significance of the Supreme Court's share in the operations of the Union can hardly be overemphasized." — Preface to "The Business of the Supreme Court," p. VI.

"Throughout its history, the Supreme Court has called for statesmanship—the gifts of mind and character fit to rule nations."—"The Business of the Supreme Court," p. 317.

"The accents of statesmen are the recurring motif of Supreme Court opinions. From the beginning, the Court had to resolve what were essentially political issues—the proper accommodations between the States and the central Government. These political problems will persist as long as our federalism endures; and the Supreme Court will remain the ultimate arbiter between Nation and States. Now the still more subtle conflicts of economic forces also press for answers from the nine Justices in Washington. To wisdom in political adjustment, talent for industrial statesmanship must be joined."—"The Business of the Supreme Court," p. 318.

Soviet Union Pushes Building of Heavy Type of Auto Truck

In This Line It Is Second Only to United States—Methods of Ford Plant Followed — Difficulties That Slow Up Work.

By JOSEPH BARNES,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, Sept.

THE Bolshevik campaign "to put the Soviet Union on wheels"—one of the slogans of the first two five-year plans—has already changed the face of the Russian countryside. It has made a young, American-planned automotive industry one of the most important levers in the tool-box with which the Communists have engineered Russia's sudden leap from almost medieval backwardness into the modern world. In the process it has reversed much of the experience it has borrowed from the rest of the world.

According to Soviet figures, the world as a whole produced nearly four times as many passenger cars as trucks in 1936. In the Soviet Union the ratio is more than reversed. Plan figures call for production during 1937 of 195,000 trucks and 25,000 passenger cars. Add an annual production of nearly 100,000 tractors, and the utilitarian character of the Soviet automotive industry becomes apparent.

These figures do not mean that private passenger cars will not have an eventual place in the Soviet scheme of life. Although they are often regarded in Moscow as a hallmark of "bourgeois" prosperity, many important commissars, playwrights, flyers and army officers already have private automobiles. But the Soviet Union is still building its industry in a race against time, according to the Bolsheviks, and during the next few years, whether there is a war or not, Russia's greatest need will be for heavy duty trucks.

In truck production, the Soviet Union already ranks second only to the United States. In passenger car production, its place in the world is eighth. In 1942, the final year of the third five-year plan, according to estimates currently being discussed in the Soviet Press, the country is expected to have an annual production of 510,000 trucks, compared to 132,917 last year.

More Passenger Cars Too.

The original estimates for passenger cars call for a 1942 capacity of 220,000, compared to 3666 last year (when the country's biggest plant was closed for a change in model) and 18,954 in 1935. There is every likelihood that the 220,000 estimate for 1942 capacity will be increased, and perhaps even doubled, before the third five-year-plan is formally adopted.

Production of both trucks and passenger cars is at present concentrated in two plants, the Stalin factory in Moscow and the Molotov factory at Gorki (formerly Nizhni-Novgorod). There is a bus plant at Yaroslavl, farther north on the Volga, and foundations have been laid for what will be the country's largest automobile plant at Kuibishev (formerly Samara). But major effort at present is being concentrated on raising to capacity figures the production of the Stalin and Molotov plants.

This has proved to be no easy job. "Conveyor belt production" has become in Russian an almost magic phrase which suggests all the mysteries of modern industry into which an untrained people is being arduously initiated. It requires a vast co-ordination of effort, effective transport facilities, highly skilled labor and careful planning. Even if trucks and tractors had not been so desperately needed for the nation's burgeoning factories and collective farms, the automotive industry would probably have held its special place in the Soviet industrial scheme because of the degree to which it is a symbol of the skills demanded by the modern world.

The Molotov factory at Gorki, for example, produces at present the standard passenger car of Russia, a four-cylinder sedan of fifty-two horsepower, called "M Odin." Although this is a marked improvement over the "Gaz" touring car which this plant first produced in 1932, it is not yet comparable to the lowest priced cars of American manufacture. Plans have been adopted for discarding it in favor of a six-cylinder model with 80 horsepower.

Following Ford Methods.

In its present form, however, it is an assembly of more than 7000 detailed parts. Part of these are manufactured at the plant itself and part are supplied by 44 other factories. The experience of the Ford Motor Co. in decentralizing production has been carefully studied and approved by Soviet engineers, and they have planned the structure of their industry, like the assembly shops of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

If They Get a Monopoly—

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ with very much interest your editorial, "A Matter for Public Vigilance," and want to commend you on the stand that you have taken.

The writer knows from many years of credit experience that if the lawyers get a monopoly in the credit field, it will be the most disrupting and disturbing thing that we have experienced yet. It is too bad that business houses in general have not put forth organized resistance. Perhaps if you will write a few more editorials like this, you will stir them to action before it is too late.

CENTRAL SHOE COMPANY,
E. J. Ball, Credit Manager.

Miss Thompson's Vermont Article.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AGRICULTURAL economists should read the article in the Post-Dispatch of Sept. 30 by Dorothy Thompson—"Concerning Vermont." It should encourage them to write in larger letters, in their conclusions, of the "enormous imponderables" of farm life—lived as it should be.

I was born and reared on a farm, and have thereafter spent 50 years in close observation of its ups and downs, and in official service in aid of farm life; and I am not unappreciative of the "enormous imponderables" the woman writer so graphically depicts. She is one of the clearest-headed men in the nation—may her sex increase in mentality. J. W. C.

In Defense of Minorities.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in his Constitution day radio speech said that he did not want the majority to encroach upon the liberties of the minority and that he would be the first to stop a minority from forcing its will upon the majority.

How is it then that he will gladly accept a one-vote majority in Congress when a bill is being passed but apparently wants a two-thirds majority in the Supreme Court when a citizen appeals his case to the Supreme Court from a lower court to test that same bill?

That looks to me like a sure way of making the majority supreme and bottling up the minority so that it has not a fair chance to protest. In my mind, the minority is what keeps the majority from going wild.

Both sides are citizens and they should have equal privileges. J. A.

IN THE NAME OF LIBERALISM.

Hugo Black, seeking to explain away the damning facts of his former active membership in the Ku Klux Klan, laid down the smug and hypocritical premise that his speech was inspired by a "planned and concerted" campaign which threatened to bring on a wave of religious and racial intolerance in America. He desired to "contribute (his) part in averting such a catastrophe in this land dedicated to tolerance and freedom." That was why he went on the air.

Can that profession as to his motives deceive anybody? Can anybody believe, in the face of the facts as they have been unfolded, that in the publication of the charges against Mr. Black there has been any "concerted" campaign, or any kind of campaign, to fan the flames of racial or religious prejudice? If there has been, in any quarter, any such effort, then it has met with dismal failure. The truth is, as we observed the other day, that the Black affair has had the salutary effect of further discrediting the Klan and Klan-mindedness.

Black sought to create a false issue in order to obscure the real one. He sought to put his critics in a defensive role and himself in the role of a righteously indignant warrior against the forces of darkness. That is a familiar trick of the hard-pressed politician. It won't work in this case. The facts are too plain.

Black spoke out for the simple reason that he had been caught in the Klan's nightshirt and had thereby got himself and the administration into a jam. That is the crystal-clear truth of the unsavory matter, and no weaving of words about Black's lofty and disinterested purpose in making his radio speech can hide it. It stands out like the white hood on the face of a Kleagle.

Black's speech, like the act of the President in appointing him, was too smart. The exalting of the motive behind his speech was of a piece with the hypocrisy which his champions fasten upon him by their defense of his Klan membership as a matter of political expediency. For they can't have it both ways: he was either a Klansman at heart during the days of his admitted membership, or he wasn't. If he wasn't, he was guilty of swallowing his convictions on the Bill of Rights—the "heart of the Constitution," as he himself now says—for the sake of getting into political office.

This is the man, confessedly at one time a member of the Jew-hating and Catholic-hating Klan, who tomorrow will take his seat on the Supreme Bench of the United States. He will take his seat alongside a Catholic, and, irony of ironies, alongside Brandeis and Cardozo, those two men of a Klan-proscribed race whose flaming zeal for human and economic rights has won them the respect alike of liberals and conservatives, of all races and creeds.

Into the company of Brandeis and Cardozo, with the shade of the great Holmes brooding over the scene, goes Hugo Black, ex-Kluxer, as the Roosevelt contribution to the cause of liberalism.

ALBERTA'S EDITOR.

The latest report from Alberta is not so good. There, as elsewhere, it's quite a distance from blueprint Utopia to the flower in full bloom. Premier Aberhart, it will be recalled, was going to blow all economic troubles out of that Province, and do it—NOW. But that $25-a-month allowance he had arranged to give to everybody still remains a promissory note, and other things have happened, too, to delay the perfect state.

The idea of the moment has to do with the press. The papers henceforth will have to print Government news accurately, and in full, word for word as the information is officially handed out. The publisher or editor who departs from the "copy" will be fined, and if the offense is too flagrant, the publication will be suspended. Further, when the Government demands, the responsible editors will be required to tell everything about any statement they print: who gave them the information and who wrote the article.

So "Bible Bill" Aberhart is learning, from experience, what J. Stalin, B. Mussolini and A. Hitler intuitively perceived, to wit: that, in the ideal order of things, the dictator or the Duce or the Fuehrer has to edit the papers. A free press simply does not fit into the scheme at all.

Yes, "war is hell," and Gen. Sherman, if here, would probably add, "and so is Utopia."

THE INDISPENSABLE FOOT SOLDIER.

From time to time since the World War, enthusiastic proponents of the airplane have been writing of the "next war" in which aerial armadas were to make paralyzing attacks on big cities before the victim knew there was to be a war. These armadas were to blast navies out of the water and armies off the land. In three undeclared wars, the airplane has shown that it is a distinct military asset, but it is yet to make obsolete the older methods of warfare.

The Italians began their shameful conquest of Ethiopia with air raids on helpless native villages, but it took the foot soldier to follow up and press home the final inglorious victory against a poorly equipped foe. The loyalist and rebel forces in Spain have been making frequent and widespread use of planes, but neutral military observers have reported their military value has been little save for breaking the morale of the civilian populace. In fact, Madrid, bombed from the air time after time, has suffered more from artillery fire than it has from aerial bombs. The decrepit and ancient battleship Espana, first said to have been sunk by an aerial missile, later was reliably reported to have been sunk by a mine.

In China, the Japanese have bombed cities from the air with terrible effect, but their planes have not been able to rout the Chinese infantry decisively. The foot soldier, whether he slowly crawls forward, doggedly digs in or desperately fights a rearguard action, seems to be the determining factor.

It has been shown that the airplane can be used successfully for strafing ground troops, for mass killing of civilians, for destroying ammunition and food depots behind the front lines and for scouting and patrolling. On the other side of the ledger, it cannot drive out snipers, fly low enough to do much damage where it meets anti-aircraft artillery fire or hold territory that has been captured by the infantryman. It seems that, although modern warfare may begin in the air, it still ends in the mud, with the foot soldier just as essential as he was in the days of Frederick the Great.

OUR PATRIARCHAL OAK TREE.

Missouri's biggest oak tree awaits the verdict—to be or not to be. Will the executioner's ax of commerce carve the sentence of death? Will sentiment, that vague, unbidden guest, appear, with its unspoken authority, to stay the thrust of gain and pay us all in the coin of a mystical realm?

A tall, proud patriarch, there is drama in its age. It was back in the sixteenth century when the acorn, emboldened by the miraculous urge, decided to become a tree. The year was about 1557. Plymouth Rock was still waiting for "that band of Pilgrims." Piping Rock was not even a mirage. De Soto had looked on the Mississippi, flowing in pristine majesty to the "Vermilion Sea" upon whose farther shore was spread the wealth of India. Our tree was a bright, young sapling when Coronado learned that the "Seven Cities of Cibola" were a journalistic hoax. Two centuries and more were to trudge the treadmill before statesmanship brewed that cup of evasion—the Missouri Compromise.

What gales of wrath that oak tree's head has braved, what sons of adventure it has seen laughingly throwing dice with destiny, what starry serenades it has listened to, what splendor of spirit it remembers, what squalor of littleness it has superbly forgotten!

It saw the birch canoes of Pere Marquette and Joliet tossingly ride the flood. It saw the cross and chasubel transform the savage fury into friendly awe, sheathe glittering blade and, in rituals of hospitality, it heard the hosts beseech and persuade the voyagers to turn back.

Perhaps in its infancy, faint echoes may have traversed the skies from that far-off Mermaid Tavern when Ben Jonson and Kit Marlowe and Will Shakespeare drank down the roystering nights.

The diary of this tree is the full scroll of America. It has heard the martial drum beats from Lexington to Yorktown, from Palo Alto to Chapultepec, from Sumter to Appomattox. It saw Laclede's trading post become the birthplace of a continent's conquest. Before Polk's ambition could be translated by a nation's defiance into "54-40 or Fight," Lewis and Clark had to pay the expeditionary price. Missouri's oak tree saw democracy, in one of history's greatest tribal movements, carry law, order, church and home into the Northwest along the Oregon trail. Missouri's oak tree saw Missouri's Doniphan gallop down the Santa Fe trail to a lasting glory which didn't have and didn't need a Xenophon.

The buffalo's thunder is silenced, and the spangled avenues of a thousand cities glitter in the lights of civilization's pyres to the romantic distances of our prairie past. Birch canoes, mackinaws, bull boats, keel boats and steamboats have paid their homage to the Mississippi and gone. And "the fleets of iron have fled." In steel-lunged flights, the oak tree sees the airplane pre-empt the eagles lost dominion. It hears its triumphant song and murmurs smilingly to itself—

Hush—'tis the lullaby Time is singing—
Hush and heed not, for all things pass.

NO MORE WAR INSURANCE.

A commentary on this turbulent world's prospects for the future, more significant than any outgiving of the professional observers and publicists, has been recorded in the news dispatches. This is the abandonment of war-risk insurance on property by 300 British companies, with firms all over the world reported to be falling in line with this policy.

Insurance underwriters are canny business men. If any risk can be mathematically calculated or even shrewdly guessed at, they will issue policies against it. In former years, insuring against damage caused by war was a species of virtual velvet to them, much like policies against earthquake damage in shock-free plains regions. The rate was low, but the total profit on many policies was large. The disturbing international scene brought gradual increases. And now, viewing the world's crisis and the immense damage of which incendiary air bombs are capable, the insurance companies give up this phase of their business.

In the background of this dark picture is a ray of light. If large property holders know they must henceforth make good their own losses from damage in war, the companies' statement points out, they will be more concerned about preserving peace. In some instances, this will probably be true. From this aspect, the decision tends to make war more costly to influential interests, and as such helps the cause of peace.

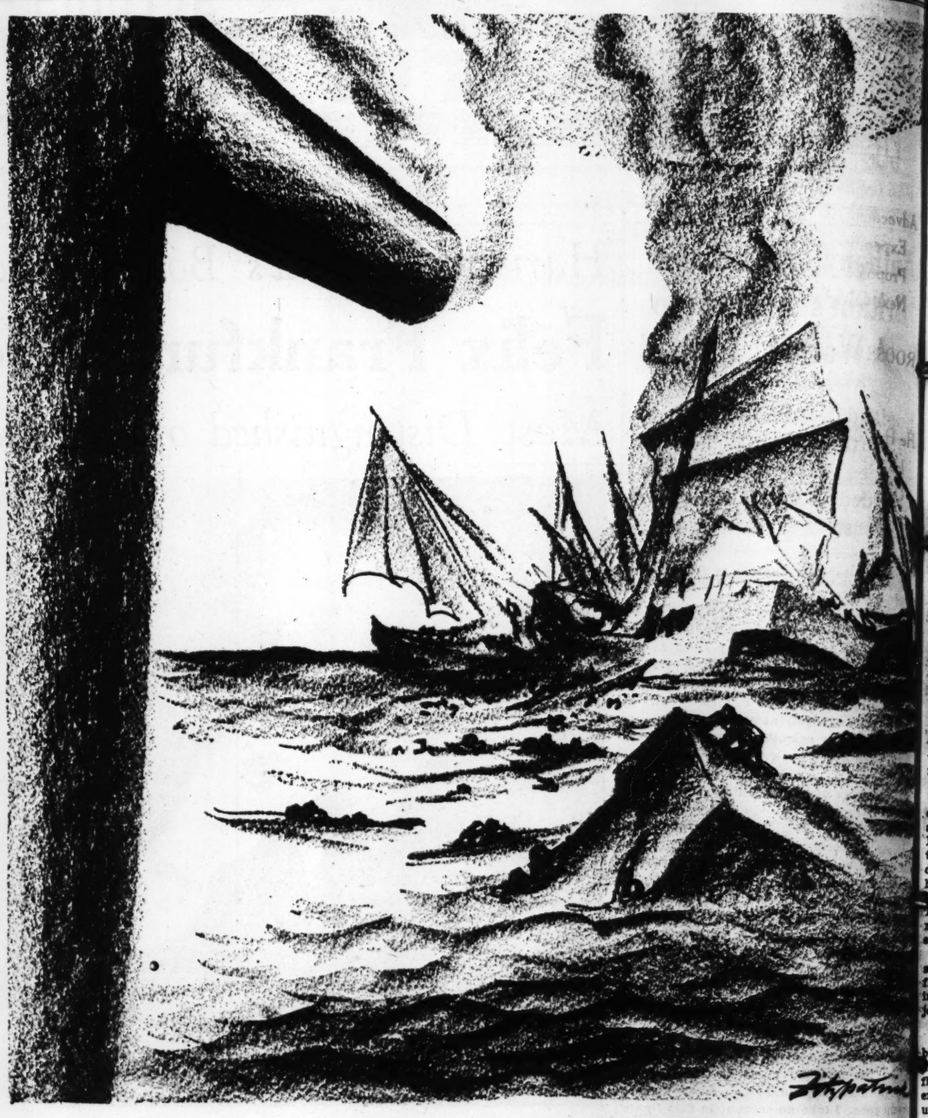
LEGAL PERHAPS, BUT UNWISE.

Out-of-state marriages by residents of Illinois who wish to avoid the venereal disease examination now required under the Saltiel Act may or may not be legal. In response to a query by the State's Attorney of Lake County, Ill., Attorney-General Kerner has ruled that such marriages are valid and that in omitting a "null and void" clause, the Legislature recognized the fact that "many marriages are celebrated outside of Illinois 'for practical, legitimate and sound reasons.'"

On the other hand, a number of Illinois Judges have taken the stand that when a marriage is contracted out of the State for the purpose of evading the act, marriage laws are violated and the marriage itself is invalid. In support, they cite the 1915 uniform marriage and evasion law which declares illegal out-of-state marriages which would be unlawful under Illinois statutes.

It probably would take a decision by the Illinois Supreme Court to settle beyond doubt this question of legality. Sooner or later a test is bound to come, as an out-of-state marriage has already been used as the basis for an annulment. Meanwhile, legality is not all that is involved. Indeed, it is a matter of secondary importance. If there are occasions when "practical, legitimate and sound reasons" require Illinoisans to be married out of their State, they do not bulk very large in the grand total. What counts is whether or not such marriages, if arranged expressly to avoid the new law, are at variance with sound public policy as well as the State's public health program.

We believe that they are and hope that Missouri and other states adjacent to Illinois will prevent thoughtless avoidance by Illinoisans, while serving their own citizens, by enacting similar laws at the next meeting of their Legislatures.



GLORY FOR THE JAPANESE NAVY.

The Voice of Conservatism

How Republicans can afford to pass up one Dutchess County aristocrat (Ogden L. Mills) while Democrats triumph with another (President Roosevelt) draws attention of New York political leader; thinks affability of the one and austerity of the other may be the answer; says G. O. P. cannot afford to "put embargo on brains."

Robert Moses, Republican Nominee for Governor of New York in 1934, Now Park Commissioner of New York City, in the Yale Review.

NO one, with the possible exception of Herbert Hoover, has so clear a title to speak for 17,000,000 anti-New Dealers as Ogden Mills (in his new book, "The Seventeen Million"), and no one, not even excepting Herbert Hoover, faces an audience so packed and papered against the speaker.

"What's in a name?" says the poet, as though this were an idle, rhetorical question. There has been plenty in the name of Ogden Livingston Mills for shrewd and malicious critics inside as well as outside the Republican party to work on, aided and abetted, it must be said, by something in the manner of the man which infuriates the "lesser breeds."

Ogden, they say, is for gold and the Forty-niners; Livingston, for aristocratic colonial New York; Mills, for the little decimals that represent interest on inherited wealth. Born at Newport, when it was most fashionable, brought up among the "Hudson bracketed" estates of Dutchess County, all his life one of the ablest living Republicans, he has tried in vain to escape the connotations of his name and background, and today, for no other reason, the wisdom concentrated in his latest book would have a safer passport under almost any other sponsorship.

A rose by any other name may smell as sweet, but a political treatise by Ogden Mills would have a much better chance of success on its merits if it were signed by that ultimus Romanorum, Carter Glass, especially if it had a dash of Lynchburg venom thrown in for good luck.

A quarter-century ago, it was no handicap to be frankly a gentleman of wealth in politics. A decade or so hence, if there are still undisguised gentlemen and millionaires in this fair land, there may again be room at the top for an Ogden Mills, but right now the type is in eclipse, and but for a glaring exception, we should say that the camel can walk through the needle's eye more easily than a conscious native aristocrat out of Harvard by Groton can be elected to high public office.

And that brings us to the greatest of all American political puzzles, for not a Dutchess County apple's throw from the Mills estate at Staatsburg is Hyde Park, where another boy of old New York lineage, wealth and what is commonly regarded as snobbish upbringing spent much of his youth. What, then, has shut the gate of political preferment to Ogden Mills and opened it wide to Franklin Roosevelt? It is one of those political freaks which show that we are not yet grown up in politics.

Mills is an exceptionally able, honest, unyielding conservative, arrogant in manner, bitter in debate, scornful of even the most innocent wiles of the demagogue and convinced that in history and logic lie our salvation. As an example of his wit and sharpness of tongue, I recall a correspondents' dinner in Albany in the spring of 1932, before the national party conventions, at which Gov. Roosevelt, ex-Gov. Smith and Mills, then Secretary of the Treasury, were impromptu speakers. Turning to the two prominent Democrats, Mills said: "As for you two gentlemen, the only question is which of you will be disappointed in June and which in November." Remarks like this are immensely diverting to a sophisticated audience, but not easily forgotten by the targets.

The arts and expedients by which the other Dutchess County boy has so cleverly dissociated himself from wealth and the Hudson aristocracy have no charms for the former Secretary of the Treasury. Mills has cultivated no electric smile and no mass appeal. The affability of Mr. Roosevelt and the austerity of Mr. Mills are, of course, only surface qualities, but they are significant because the public has been led to believe that they are the true measures of the two men.

As a student, Mills recognizes the Roosevelt formula as an old one, for which there are many astonishingly close historic parallels, ancient and modern, none of them reassuring to conservatives. As an American gentleman, proud of his pioneer inheritance, dedicated to the principle of free enterprise, and unashamed of his wealth, Mills always acts in character, and you can take it or leave it, and be damned to you. He is no reactionary, and his claim to be a true liberal will some day be vindicated.

In the meantime, the Republican party, under whatever name it may survive, cannot afford to put a complete embargo on brains, although it has gone pretty far in that direction, and the party dullards who fear Mills' sharp tongue and contempt for cheap and shabby devices can be spared more easily than the man they label as a Bourbon because he is too intelligent and too honest for them. The day may come when the Republicans will conclude that if the Democrats can overlook Hyde Park, they can overlook Staatsburg.

Warning by a Friend of Labor

From the New Orleans Item.

AT a time when so much is said about equal responsibility in labor relations, an old expression on the subject by Justice Louis D. Brandeis seems particularly timely. He is one of the most liberal and humane members that the United States Supreme Court has had in the past two or three generations. This paragraph is culled from a paper that he published long before he entered the court—about 33 years ago:

"This practical immunity of the unions from legal liability is deemed by many labor leaders a great advantage. To me it appears to be just the reverse. It tends to make officers and members reckless and lawless, and thereby alienate public sympathy and bring failure upon their efforts. It creates on the part of the employers, also, a bitter antagonism, not so much on account of lawless acts as from a deep-rooted sense of injustice, arising from the feeling that while the employer is subject to law, the union holds a position of legal irresponsibility."

Missouri's Pension Pad

From the Kansas City Journal-Post.

THE new Missouri Social Security commission has barely tipped the hid[den] investigation of old-age pensions [and] under the former system of local [ad]ministration, but it has tipped it far enough to permit escape of an unmistakable stench.

Analysis of the pension rolls in five counties revealed that from 10 to 40 per cent of the pensioners were ineligible for assistance under the law. Ineligibility means that the recipients possess resources which the law considers sufficient for their self-support. Under the same ratio holds in other counties, and there is no evidence that it does not, Missouri taxpayers are supporting thousands of parasites who can afford to spend their pension checks on luxuries.

If such a condition is permitted to exist long without correction, it will undermine public sympathy with social security. Genuine work a hardship on those who deserve it and are legally entitled to old-age assistance are padded pension rolls have, in fact, already prevented the payment of the maximum pensions to the eligible, and until the padding is eliminated, thousands of deserving will feel the pinch of want.

The politicians who feast on social security carry the art of the vulture to a new level. A generous State burdens itself with a heavy tax to guarantee a sense of security to the indigent aged. It seeks to save them from the stigma of the poorhouse. Petty politicians, as the official survey shows, [have] undeserving to climb aboard in some counties to the extent of 40 per cent of the list.

The Social Security Commission, by purging the rolls, is doing more than save State money. It is saving social security from a blight which it could not long survive.

"CRUTCHES TO SPAIN."

From the New York Times.

THE Associated Press brings us the sardonic commentary on man's [re]lation with his fellow-man.

"Crutch Factory Burns Up in Mid[dle] War Boom," was the headline, and the story from Warner, N. H., told of [the] stroying the "two-story wooden factory of the New England Crutch Co. . . . [Mr.] Lowell, the owner, said the plant had been operating day and night, sending many of the crutches to Spain."

Crutches to Spain . . . Crutches for [the] maimed in the drive for Madrid, crutches for Spaniards mutilated in the shadow of the ruined glories of the Alcazar, crutches for Frenchmen, Germans, Russians, crippled by the senseless slaughter. . . . Crutches for China, where brown men are slaughtering brown men in the land of Li Po, where youths are dying in the dust of centuries.

Crutches for a world sick with the [fe]bing fever of fanaticism, blinded by [ha]tred, prejudice and false loyalties to false gods, crippled by the personal lust for power and national lust for empire and for gain.

Crutches to Spain! . . . A bitter mockery to the maimed and to those who died with dreams that died, a bitter mockery that the world vitalize the stuff of shadows to make life its ancient dream of peace.

FLOOD CONTROL PROGRAM WOULD COST A BILLION

Advocates of Vast Federal Expenditures to Make Proposal Big Issue at Next Congress.

ROOSEVELT FOR REGIONAL PLAN

He Has Urged Seven Areas Like T V A Be Set Up—Others Favor Existing Areas Handling Work.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Advocates of vast Federal expenditures for flood control are planning a new and determined effort to evoke from the next Congress a comprehensive program that may cost a billion dollars.

Advocates who insist that man ultimately can abate the high water menace said today the problem would be made a prime issue at the next regular session.

An attempt to push through an $800,000,000 program, recommended by the army engineers, failed several months ago when President Roosevelt requested its consideration be deferred until next year due to budgetary limitations. Later he submitted his program calling for seven regional authorities like T V A to direct flood control and related problems such as hydro-electric development.

This program, facing considerable opposition among "old line" flood control leaders, was left pending in committee when Congress adjourned.

Issue at Next Session.

The issue next session will lie between the President's proposal and plans of those who believe the flood problem should be handled by existing governmental agencies under the direction of army engineers.

Another topic of debate will be the question of financial co-operation by local governments. Programs in the past have required local interests to pay the cost of property rights for reservoirs, flood walls and other works.

Some Congressmen already have indicated they would ask Congress to place the whole burden upon the Federal Government on the ground flood control is a national problem. Other national legislators oppose such a change, contending local governments should co-operate except where they can give absolute proof of inability to raise funds.

While abandoning the $800,000,000 program, Congress authorized expenditure of $105,000,000 this year, half the amount to come from relief funds and the remainder from "regular" sources.

Provisions in Omnibus Act.

This money was appropriated for projects authorized in the Copeland "Omnibus" Act of 1936 and the earlier Overton Act. The omnibus measure authorized projects estimated to cost $310,000,000 in various sections of the country. The Overton bill would permit annual appropriations for the lower Mississippi River valley. Neither appropriated funds.

The $105,000,000 voted last session, while marking a step toward achievement of the omnibus objectives, would permit construction of only a small portion of proposed projects.

President Roosevelt already has allotted nearly $45,000,000 for individual projects in scattered areas. Army engineers said work on those projects would get under way as speedily as possible.

Included in this year's $105,000,000 appropriation was $24,877,000 for flood walls and other works in the Ohio River basin, but only $11,000,000 has been reserved for expenditure since most of the remainder was intended for lower Mississippi and other projects.

Aid for 155 Communities.

In the $800,000,000 program of the engineers some 155 communities in the Ohio basin would have received an aggregate of $190,000,000 for all manner of projects, including reservoirs at headwaters. Engineers said 12 communities would benefit by this year's $24,877,000 authorization.

Congress authorized President Roosevelt to remit 50 per cent of the property costs where necessary, but engineers said there was little likelihood of projects being undertaken this year except in communities able to pay the entire cost. They explained no Federal funds were available for the other 50 per cent.

Another problem centers around relief labor. Congress stipulated that the Ohio Valley appropriation be used for employment of persons from Works Progress Administration rolls. The engineers are seeking to have W P A regulations released to permit employment of some skilled personnel. They also suggested that regular funds might be used for the purchase of materials.

Proponents of a broad national flood control program said they hoped to settle at the next session of Congress the question of local contributions. If requirements of these contributions were removed, the Federal outlay for a program similar to the proposed $800,000,000 program probably would exceed a billion dollars.

An attempt to push through an $800,000,000 program, recommended by the army engineers, failed several months ago when President Roosevelt requested its consideration be deferred until next year due to budgetary limitations. Later he submitted his program calling for seven regional authorities like T V A to direct flood control and related problems such as hydro-electric development.

This program, facing considerable opposition among "old line" flood control leaders, was left pending in committee when Congress adjourned.

Issue at Next Session.

The issue next session will lie between the President's proposal and plans of those who believe the flood problem should be handled by existing governmental agencies under the direction of army engineers.

Another topic of debate will be the question of financial co-operation by local governments. Programs in the past have required local interests to pay the cost of property rights for reservoirs, flood walls and other works.

Some Congressmen already have indicated they would ask Congress to place the whole burden upon the Federal Government on the ground flood control is a national problem. Other national legislators oppose such a change, contending local governments should co-operate except where they can give absolute proof of inability to raise funds.

While abandoning the $800,000,000 program, Congress authorized expenditure of $105,000,000 this year, half the amount to come from relief funds and the remainder from "regular" sources.

Provisions in Omnibus Act.

This money was appropriated for projects authorized in the Copeland "Omnibus" Act of 1936 and the earlier Overton Act. The omnibus measure authorized projects estimated to cost $310,000,000 in various sections of the country. The Overton bill would permit annual appropriations for the lower Mississippi River valley. Neither appropriated funds.

The $105,000,000 voted last session, while marking a step toward achievement of the omnibus objectives, would permit construction of only a small portion of proposed projects.

President Roosevelt already has allotted nearly $45,000,000 for individual projects in scattered areas. Army engineers said work on those projects would get under way as speedily as possible.

Included in this year's $105,000,000 appropriation was $24,877,000 for flood walls and other works in the Ohio River basin, but only $11,000,000 has been reserved for expenditure since most of the remainder was intended for lower Mississippi and other projects.

Aid for 155 Communities.

In the $800,000,000 program of the engineers some 155 communities in the Ohio basin would have received an aggregate of $190,000,000 for all manner of projects, including reservoirs at headwaters. Engineers said 12 communities would benefit by this year's $24,877,000 authorization.

Congress authorized President Roosevelt to remit 50 per cent of the property costs where necessary, but engineers said there was little likelihood of projects being undertaken this year except in communities able to pay the entire cost. They explained no Federal funds were available for the other 50 per cent.

Another problem centers around relief labor. Congress stipulated that the Ohio Valley appropriation be used for employment of persons from Works Progress Administration rolls. The engineers are seeking to have W P A regulations released to permit employment of some skilled personnel. They also suggested that regular funds might be used for the purchase of materials.

Proponents of a broad national flood control program said they hoped to settle at the next session of Congress the question of local contributions. If requirements of these contributions were removed, the Federal outlay for a program similar to the proposed $800,000,000 program probably would exceed a billion dollars.

the Harvard Law School and another of an hour and a half at his home, 192 Brattle street, Cambridge.

It so happens, however, that in printed works under his signature, Prof. Frankfurter has expressed highly articulate views on most of the problems currently exercising the public mind. These, he took pains to remark, are no careless improvisations, but considered, long-time judgments. They register his present opinions as validly as on the day when they were written—with the exception of a few that have been outmoded by events, such as his discussions of the Eighteenth (prohibition) Amendment to the Constitution.

His writings, of course, are available not only to the writer but any other journalist, and indeed to every man, woman and child with recourse to a library; but he was willing to be of any assistance compatible with his scruples as a scholar, so that the colloquy which, by an understanding on both sides, was not to be an interview, took the following unusual course.

How Questions Were Answered.

This question and that was put. Frequently, with a smiling shake of the head, Prof. Frankfurter refused an answer of any sort; but, in response to certain queries, he darted up from his desk—he has a gift of swift, flashing movement—rapped unerring fingers on some particular tome in the voluminous shelves behind him and courteously opened it, in at least one instance, at the pertinent page and paragraph.

For example, reference was made to President Roosevelt's attack on the legal profession in his Constitution day address, and a question was put as to Prof. Frankfurter's opinion regarding that profession's place in the social structure.

His reply was the production of a study entitled, "The Business of the Supreme Court," which he wrote in collaboration with James M. Landis, now dean of the Harvard Law School. Prof. Frankfurter turned to page 315 and placed a finger on a passage containing this pronouncement:

"An adequately equipped professional bar is the mainstay of the Anglo-American legal order."

Stack of Authoritative Statements.

As the chat continued, the books at the visitor's elbow became gradually a sizable stack. In addition to the treatise on the Supreme Court, they included Prof. Frankfurter's "The Commerce Clause Under Marshall, Taney and Waite" and his "The Public and Its Government," the "Collected Legal Papers" of Associate Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes; a set of essays, edited by Prof. Frankfurter and enriched with a chapter from his pen on "Mr. Justice Brandeis and the Constitution," which was published in honor of that jurist's seventy-fifth birthday; a similar sheaf of tributes presented to Justice Holmes on his ninetieth birthday, which Prof. Frankfurter edited and to which he contributed a study on "Mr. Justice Holmes and the Constitution"; an essay by Prof. Frankfurter, published in the Harvard Law Review, on the "Early Writings of O. W. Holmes Jr."; and a 714-page survey, with Prof. Frankfurter and Dean Roscoe Pound as joint directors and editors, on "Criminal Justice in Cleveland," under the auspices of the Cleveland Foundation. Attention was directed, moreover, to an article on the Supreme Court which Prof. Frankfurter contributed to the Encyclopedia of Social Sciences, and to another, entitled "The Young Men Go to Washington," which he published in the January, 1936, issue of the magazine Fortune.

Irreconcilable Conflict.

Of all men alive, Prof. Frankfurter, in the nature of things, is the one most familiar with his own writings. He knew, of course, that their leading motive is a fervent sympathy with the general objectives of the New Deal. However, he must have been aware that they contain reiterated passages which are irreconcilably in conflict with the message and bill on the reorganization of the Federal judiciary which President Roosevelt hurled dramatically at the feet of Congress on last Feb. 5. They are passages calculated fairly to explode from the printed page under the eye of the most inattentive reader.

The Harvard scholar is not a man prone to act without substantial reasons. What, then, could have been the actual consideration which induced him at this time to receive a journalistic caller and place at his disposal such significant material? Was it merely a benevolent desire to prove helpful to a newspaper for which he professes a particular esteem, and to a correspondent with whom he was acquainted by reputation and who bore exemplary introductions? Or is it possible that, in view of the President's recent announcement of his determination to press the fight against the Supreme Court, Prof. Frankfurter conceived the time had come at last, as a public duty, to permit his silence to be thus broken on so towering an issue? That is a puzzle which he alone may clarify; and he is not likely to do so in the near future.

A Series of Conclusions.

The writer ventures on the preceding speculation because it was agreed between Prof. Frankfurter and himself that the latter was free to draw, on his own authority, such deductions as pleased him from the former's writings and from the circumstances of their meeting. It was also agreed that Prof. Frankfurter had no jurisdiction over such information as might be obtained from sources other than himself. After two days of inquiry in Boston and Cambridge, supplemented by exploration in Washington of circles particularly close to the White House, the correspondent has arrived at a series of definite conclusions. For these, save in so far as they are based on his published writings, Prof. Frankfurter is explicitly absolved from responsibility. This is not the usual disclaimer on behalf of a public man who desires to mask his discourse behind the anonymous fiction called "background." Quite literally and simply, Prof. Frankfurter did not communicate to the writer a syllable of the information presented in the following list of particulars:

During Mr. Roosevelt's first term, Prof. Frankfurter ranked as probably the most respected and intimate of the President's advisers. It is said by Mr. Roosevelt's friends that he really trusts only two sorts of people—those who were with Roosevelt before Chicago and those who, since he became President, have proved themselves disinterested. Prof. Frankfurter happens to belong to both categories. He demonstrated that he wanted absolutely nothing by refusing Attorney-General Cummings' offer of the Solicitor-Generalship of the United States. The President is known to have paid a characteristic tribute to the professor's powers of intelligence. Prof. Frankfurter, Mr. Roosevelt laughingly told friends, is the only man who ever gave him "mental indigestion."

Save for the college term of 1933-34, which Prof. Frankfurter spent abroad as George Eastman Visiting Professor at Oxford University, he was, until recently, a frequent White House guest. The President and he were, in addition, steadily in communication by means of telephone, telegraph or post, and also through intermediaries in the confidence of both, particularly Thomas G. Corcoran, legislative handy man of the Administration.

Nevertheless, Frankfurter was not consulted regarding the President's attack on the Supreme Court. This program was the particular sugarplum of Attorney-General Homer Stille Cummings, who was unwilling to share the smallest bite of credit with anyone else and insisted that the matter be held confidential among the President, himself and his subordinate, Solicitor-General Stanley F. Reed, who performed the actual drafting of the bill.

The President's court-packing plan aroused in Prof. Frankfurter the liveliest consternation. He has published, and he still holds, the opinion that an independent judiciary is one of the essential safeguards — and was designed as such by the framers of the Constitution—which protect the people against tyranny and autocracy.

Any advice which Prof. Frankfurter might have given on the project must perforce have been not only useless for the President's purpose, but also acutely embarrassing.

Prof. Frankfurter has not visited Washington for "a number of months," which means that he was not summoned by the President for counsel in what may prove to have been the most crucial and perilous episode of Mr. Roosevelt's career.

Since the beginning of the Supreme Court fight, contact between the President and Prof. Frankfurter, whether direct or indirect, has come virtually to an end.

This does not mean, on either side, that there has occurred anything so drastic as a definite parting of the ways or even an estrangement. Prof. Frankfurter is said to hold that it is possible for two civilized men, in warmest sympathy regarding objectives, to differ firmly but without rancor concerning methods. His services remain at the President's call, on any future matter regarding which they can see eye to eye.

Philosophy of Government.

Such of his views as are of present interest the writer will undertake to summarize here, as he understands them, in his own language, with a reminder that the statements are founded on the Professor's written, but not spoken, words:

The system of separate and independent powers, as established by the Constitution and distributed among the Executive, Congress and the Supreme Court, is necessary as a bulwark against excessive centralization; but too rigid and mechanical a separation of these organs of rule would make modern government impossible.

Subject only to the will of the people, as expressed, say, in a vote on a constitutional amendment, the Supreme Court is the authoritative and final arbiter between the nation and the states, among the 48 states, and between the citizen and the nation or the citizens and the states.

In consequence, the function of the Supreme Court has been from the outset, and remains today, essentially political and policy-making. Its important decisions, however disguised as settlements of mere lawsuits, are in effect deeds of statecraft.

Thanks to the summary curtailment of jurisdiction which the Supreme Court has undergone in recent years, largely by its own wish, it is today less a forum of fact and law, on which unanimous agreement might be expected, than an arena in which the most passionately controversial issues of the day battle to the death. Therefore, divided decisions are inevitable, and signify that the tribunal continues to function as a vital organism.

The membership of the court should not be enlarged. This scheme has been tried, but did not prevail. Nine has been approved, by decades of experience, to be the number ideally practicable for assuring group deliberation, and at the same time a lively sense of responsibility on the part of individual Justices for their collective verdicts.

The problem of relieving congestion in the Supreme Court's docket has been triumphantly met, not by increasing its membership, but by decreasing its business. This has been done in two ways. Its obligatory jurisdiction has been progressively diminished until at present it serves as an appellate court only in suits plainly involving a constitutional, national or international question. A great quantity of its former transactions has been handed over to the Circuit Courts of Appeal and specialized Federal tribunals, such as the Court of Claims or the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

The authoritative adviser of Congress on legislation governing the judiciary is the conference of senior Circuit Judges, who meet annually under the presidency of the Chief Justice of the United States.

Little Data on Past Justices.

A question as to the suitability of Justice Hugo L. Black as Supreme Court material was not one of those in response to which Prof. Frankfurter snatched a book from his shelves. In another connection, however, he indicated a thought recurring again and again in his works. This is to the effect that while there have been nearly 80 Supreme Court Justices, adequate biographies of only two or three have been written, thanks to a mysterious oversight on the part of American researchers; from which fact a Thomas Henry Huxley, Prof. Frankfurter's great master in the art of truth-seeking, would scarcely fail, with scientific detachment, to take the next logical step, towit: That since we lack conclusive evidence as to the average caliber, character and affiliations of the men who have sat on the highest bench, no competent standards exist for judging Justice Black's qualifications.

Neither did the Professor point out page and paragraph when questioned regarding President Roosevelt's definition of the Constitution as "a layman's document"; but a comment pops from the sixth page of "The Public and Its Government." After praising the "Federalist" essays as "the most profound contribution to political thought in America," Prof. Frankfurter adds that these papers are "a lawyer's brief by the framers of the Constitution in defense of their handiwork."

Gen. Johnson's Characterization.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson was not grossly exaggerating when he described Prof. Frankfurter as "the most influential single individual in the United States." It must be said that Prof. Frankfurter's power did not derive solely from his alleged ascendency with the President. In his own right, the Harvard savant holds a commanding place in what is, after all, the national law school of the United States. There he has made himself the most famous legal employment agency in the country—an agency unsalaried, unofficial and totally disinterested. Since 1906, when he became Assistant United States District Attorney of Southern New York under Henry L. Stimson, he has been engaged in finding berths for graduates of the Harvard Law School, not only in the departments at Washington, but in Wall Street law offices and in legal firms throughout the nation. Thus he has multiplied his personality many hundred-fold from Atlantic to Pacific. He is said to be bound by personal ties to more men of influence all over the country than any other person in the United States, excepting only the President himself.

He cultivates these bonds by means of innumerable brief notes to his disciples and allies. He is said to be one of the most prolific letter-writers in the country.

Active Before New Deal.

He did not await the coming of the New Deal in order to invent the practice of supplying Washington with bright young men. He had been at the business under Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. But the beginning of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, with its emergency demand for trained legal talent, suddenly enlarged his scope of activity. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation, established by President Hoover, was already largely staffed by "Frankfurter's kids." Then they swarmed, all of them devoted to their teacher, into the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Public Works Administration, the Federal Housing Administration, the Maritime Commission, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, the Solicitor-General's office, and the Interior and Treasury departments.

He began by finding jobs for young lawyers because they were to be had cheap, but ended by erecting this expedient into a settled policy. The reasons are explained in his article, "The Young Men Go to Washington." He begins by stating that sensible and humane government is impossible without "well-trained, disciplined, imaginative, modest, energetic and devoted administrators," and proceeds to the following declaration:

"It was not by accident that the founders of the Republic were mostly youngish men. Disinterested enthusiasm, freedom from imprisoning dogmas, capacity for fresh insight, unflagging industry, ardor for difficulties—these are qualities that in the main youthful years must supply."

Charge and Answer.

He has been accused by Gen. Johnson of insinuating "his boys" into "obscure, but key positions in every vital department" of the present administration with the presumable purpose of using their teeth for eating away the Constitution and the American system of government. He has been charged with debauching the choicest youth of the land through subversive social and economic doctrines.

It is true that he wishes to extend the democratic process to the fields of commerce and industry, and that he has imbued successive waves of young men with his ideals of social justice, but he has written censorious phrases about socialism, and accepts the capitalist order as an existing fact. Moreover, when one comes to the thinkers who have most profoundly affected his own mentality, there emerges a list which a conscientious brain-truster would be inclined to tabulate as mid-Victorian.

Not Keynes, but Bagehot.

The economist who has most influenced him is not John Maynard Keynes but Walter Bagehot, a London banker of Gladstone's day, whose principal books, "The English Constitution" and "Lombard Street," have the merit of being the works, not of a theorist, but a man of vast practical experience in politics and the money market.

A third book which has been a potent factor in his intellectual growth is Morley's "On Compromise." Though not at all scientifically minded, Prof. Frankfurter owes his technique and passion in the search for truth to Thomas Henry Huxley. Still another work that makes a deep impression on his thinking is Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

He owes a particular debt to the reflections and vision of Emerson. His favorite poet is not Gertrude Stein, but Heinrich Heine. The man whose personal friendship most enriched him was Justice Holmes. If asked to name the most original political mind that has as yet appeared in America, this purported radical would instantly cry out: "Alexander Hamilton."

The great adversary of Jefferson, according to Prof. Frankfurter, "possessed a precocity of genius—that is, the quality of being different from other men—which arouses a constant sense of the miraculous."

Marshall, Taney, Lincoln.

The greatest creative statesman to adorn the Supreme Court, in his opinion, was John Marshall; for sheer cerebral virtuosity, for classic lucidity of thought, pre-eminence goes to Chief Justice Taney.

"But the man into whose presence I return with more pleasure than in any case of any other statesman," said Prof. Frankfurter, "is Abraham Lincoln. Many other rulers, such as Gladstone, had greater intellects and profounder learning; but I find him the most satisfactory human being of them all. He shows what a man can be in the field of statesmanship. Perhaps, all round, he was the wisest reflector on the actual art of government that ever lived. He had a strange combination of shrewdness and tenderness, and was a true lover of his kind. He evolved from a dunghill into an American Beauty rose."

Life and Career.

Prof. Frankfurter holds that a scholar, like a happy nation, should have no history, but others are likely to find in his career the essence of romance. He was born of a Jewish family, in Vienna, on Nov. 15, 1882. . . . This was also the natal year of Franklin D. Roosevelt, but the professor is nine months and two weeks younger than the President. . . . When 12 years old, Felix was brought to the United States by his parents. He did not know a word of English. Nine years later he was leading his class in the strenuous competition of the Harvard Law School and was learning to write the language, not only with exactness, but with felicity, so that only the other day a young lady of Cambridge exclaimed: "What marvelous books Prof. Frankfurter could write if only he would choose an interesting subject."

At the age of 20 he took an A. B. degree at the College of the City of New York. In the fall of 1903 he matriculated at the Harvard Law School. This was President Roosevelt's senior term at Harvard College and the year of his glory as editor-in-chief of the Crimson. The two men did not meet, but they became acquainted four years later as fellow members of the Harvard Club in New York after both had been admitted to the bar. Friendship did not ripen until six years more had passed, in 1913, when Roosevelt became Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Frankfurter was law officer of the Bureau of Insular Affairs under Secretary of War Stimson.

Summoned by Stimson.

Frankfurter was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1906, at the head of his class. Two months later, when he had barely settled down at a desk as clerk in the top-flight New York law office of Hornblower, Byrne, Miller & Potter, he was summoned to become assistant to Stimson, also a Harvard Law School man, who had been impressed by Theodore Roosevelt to wage a fight against malefactors of great wealth as United State District Attorney in Southern New York. Stimson had a limited budget. He commissioned Frankfurter to recruit men recently out of law school who would be willing to accept $2500 a year. Then and there began his career as a legal employment agent, which has continued to this day.

He had an important part in the rebate cases against the New York Central and other trunk line railways and against the American Sugar Refining Co., which put an end to rebating in the East. He took part in proceedings against Edward H. Harriman and helped to try Charles W. Morse and Fritz Augustus Heinze. He assisted in the trial of officers of the Sugar Trust, in prosecutions for weight frauds, and carried through alone the argument of the appeals in most of these cases. He developed a peculiar talent for appellate work and is said to have lost only one case, in which he carried with him the distinguished dissent of Justice Brandeis.

To Washington in 1911.

In 1911, Stimson went to Washington as Secretary of War and took Frankfurter with him to be legal chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs. In 1914, the latter was appointed a professor at Harvard Law School, in charge of such courses as public service companies, criminal laws and penal legislation and administration. America's entrance into the war snatched him back to Washington in 1917; he acted in turn as assistant to the Secretaries of War and Labor, secretary and counsel of the President's Mediation Commission and chairman of the War Labor Policies Board.

When peace was declared, he returned to his chair at Harvard, whence three potent solicitations have failed to lure him. In 1927, a New York law firm offered him a salary of $100,000 a year, but he was too busy with the Sacco-Vanzetti case, on which he wrote a book, to bother with such a trifle. (The book was "The Portentous Case of Sacco and Vanzetti," published in 1927. Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Italians, were tried, convicted and condemned to death at Dedham, Mass., in May, 1921, on charges of murder in the killing of a messenger and guard in a payroll holdup at South Braintree, Mass. Their cause was taken up in various quarters as an instance of persecution. After exhaustively reviewing the procedure and the evidence against the two men, Prof. Frankfurter concluded there was grave doubt of their guilt. Sacco and Vanzetti were executed Aug. 23, 1927.)

In 1932, he declined Gov. Ely's nomination to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, and in 1933, as has been recorded, he refused the Solicitor-Generalship of the United States.

He was married in 1919 to Marion A. Denman of Long Meadow, Mass. They have no children. His favorite pastime is "good talk," especially with friends who disagree with him. His habits are sedentary, though he does not go so far as Justice Holmes, who slept always with closed windows and jeered at "this damn nonsense about fresh air and exercise." Prof. Frankfurter likes fresh air and walking and loves to swelter under the sun's heat.

Distinctive Traits as Teacher.

Former pupils recall two of his distinctive traits as a teacher. Other professors usually gallop their classes through 200 or 300 law case histories during a term. Prof. Frankfurter confines himself to 40 or 50, but these he takes minutely to pieces, with a special view to discovering how the evidence was, or might have been, jockeyed and jiggled by the trial lawyers so as to place emphasis on favorable particulars or to obscure inauspicious ones. He proposes that his "kids" shall go out into the world as harmless as doves, but also as wise as serpents. They are to be fitted to cope with the legal tricks and guiles which, in the service of the powers of darkness, they are sure to encounter as practicing attorneys.

As early as possible, it is his habit to pick out the 10 most promising men in each class. On these he concentrates his interest. He pays them the honor of working them hard; after they have been graduated, he actively guides or watches over their careers for the first five or six years. He is fond of warning these favorites against being in a hurry to get in on the ground floor of some big law firm and of assuring them that by waiting they may some day soar out of the top story in a balloon. He instructs them, not only by precept, but by example, that fun is better than money, and that it is normally impossible to have both.

Secretaries to Justices.

One of his ardent pursuits is that of supplying secretaries, from the best men in each graduating class, to Supreme Court Justices. He still performs this duty for Justice Brandeis as he did for Justice Holmes until his death. He relates that Justice Holmes had a stock letter, in which his prospective secretary was admonished with mock ferocity to present himself at 11 a. m., "not a minute earlier or later," on the Friday prior to the court's opening on Monday. After his seventy-fifth birthday, the Justice added a codicil to his formula, in which he warned the secretary that he reserved the right to resign or die at any moment.

The gift of fleet repartee is not usually considered typical of professors. The following anecdote regarding Prof. Frankfurter indicates that he is an exception to the rule. There was a meeting afoot to protest against some current outrage against civil liberties, and he was walking to the hall with a portentous dignitary from the Back Bay. The latter ventured to express a hope that Prof. Frankfurter would not permit himself to "grow hot."

To which the professor retorted: "I'll agree to keep cool if only you will get hot."

A Joke on the Lawyers.

According to a story that was related to me in Cambridge, Prof. Frankfurter relishes a practical joke of a scholastic flavor. In June, 1936, his law class celebrated its thirtieth anniversary, and he was asked to speak on the general topic, "Where Do We Go From Here?" The graduates financially able to attend such reunions are largely attorneys with established positions, representing large interests. Prof. Frankfurter rose and read a paper, ending with this incendiary passage:

"The relations between the employer and the employed, between the owners of aggregated capital and the units of organized labor, between the small producer, the small trader, the consumer and the great transporting and manufacturing and distributing agencies, all present new questions, for the solution of which the old reliance upon the free action of individual wills appears quite inadequate. And in many directions the intervention of that organized control which we call government seems necessary to produce the same result of justice and right conduct which obtained through the attrition of individuals before the new conditions arose."

These sentiments were greeted with frowns and mutters. Whereupon Prof. Frankfurter gleefully explained that the words were not his; he was merely quoting from an address delivered in 1916 by that illustrious radical—Senator Elihu Root.

Frankfurter on Democracy, Politics and Personages

ARRIVING in America at the age of 12, without a word of English, Felix Frankfurter has learned to write the language not only with flawless precision, but with a grace of his own. The pages of his books are sprinkled with deft and sparkling observations on personages and principles of political philosophy, of which a few out of many are cited herewith:

"The mists of prejudice are only gradually lifting from Taney's reputation. (Roger Brooke Taney, Chief Justice from 1835 to 1864, handed down the Dred Scott decision.) Eventually, one hopes, it will become intellectually disreputable to see him predominantly as the judicial defender of slavery."

"The commerce clause has been utilized as the great centralizing force in our constitutional scheme."

"The fact is that we ask more of government than any society has ever asked."

"The framers of the Constitution intentionally bounded it with outlines not sharp and contemporary, but flexible and prophetic."

"The ultimate justification for democracy still remains the lack, in the long run, of a decent and workable substitute."

"Democracy is the reign of reason on the most extensive scale."

"Perhaps the central juristic problem of our time is to harmonize 'law in action' with 'law in books.'"

"Marshall's greatest judicial utterance was that 'it is a constitution we are expounding.'"

"One hears from time to time much shallow talk about the elimination of politics, as though politics—the free exchange of opinion regarding the best policy for the life of a society—were not the essence of a free and vigorous people. A dictatorship means precisely the prohibition of politics."

"Marshall, the creative statesman; Story, a scholar of vast learning; Taney, who adapted the Constitution to the emerging forces of modern economic society; Holmes, the philosopher become king; Brandeis, the master of fact as the basis of social insight."

U. S. Consular Transfers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The State Department today assigned James H. Wright of Chillicothe, Mo., now American Vice-Consul at Cologne, Germany, to Bogota, Colombia, as Vice-Consul and Third Secretary of the American Legation. Robert F. Woodward of Minneapolis, Minn., now Vice-Consul and Third Secretary of the Legation at Bogota, was ordered transferred to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, as American Vice-Consul. Odin G. Lorin of Seattle, Wash., American Consul at Rio de Janeiro, was assigned to Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, as American Consul.

ART MUSEUM TALKS FOR FALL AND WINTER

Three Lecturers to Conduct Program—First of Series This Week.

The fall and winter program of gallery talks at City Art Museum in Forest Park was announced yesterday by Miss Mary Powell, supervisor of education. The series will begin this week.

On Saturday afternoons there will be talks for three groups—children of grade school age, those of high school and college age, and adults.

Miss Powell will give a series of talks for adults on Tuesday mornings at 11 o'clock, which will be repeated on Friday mornings at 10 o'clock. The talks this month will be related to the decorative arts.

On Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock, beginning next week, Miss Jaquelin Ambler will give a series of talks on "Art in America."

The Saturday afternoon activities will begin at 1:30 o'clock with a half-hour drawing period for children of grade school age, followed by a half an hour of museum games. The story hour for these children, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, will be conducted by Miss Powell. Stories from legend and history, illustrated by objects in the museum's collections, will be told.

Miss Ambler will give the talks for young people of high school and college age on Saturday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock. These talks will be about painters, sculptors, architects, and craftsmen of various periods, and the work they have contributed to the museum's collections will be considered.

Miss Jessie B. Chamberlain will give the Saturday afternoon talks for adults, at 3:30 o'clock. Her talks will cover a wide variety of subjects. This month they will deal with Egyptian wall paintings, comic strips of Paris life, a special exhibition of prints, and oriental rugs.

CHURCH FIRST BUILDING IN OHIO RIVER REFUGEES' NEW TOWN

Inhabitants Driven From Leavenworth, Ind., by Flood Move to Top of 400-Foot Bluff.

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Ind., Oct. 2.—Leavenworth's refugees from the Ohio River will worship tomorrow in a new church, the first building to be completed in their new town on high ground.

Last January's flood drove the 420 inhabitants from their lowland homes to a 400-foot bluff back of the town. Living in a Red Cross tent city on the bluff, they decided to make the bluff their permanent home and rebuild their wrecked town out of reach of the water.

So the first thing they did was to build a $15,000 brick church. Though it has a Presbyterian pastor, the Rev. Luther Sharpe of Corydon, Ind., it will serve both the Presbyterian and the Methodist congregations that attended Leavenworth's two churches before the flood. The congregations have merged.

Emile Bahr, Crawford County landowner, gave the land on the bluff for the new town. The Red Cross is helping build homes for citizens who do not have enough money. A hundred Works Progress Administration workers are laying streets, sidewalks and water and sewer systems and building a town hall, on a $123,242 allotment, of which the town gave $25,000 for materials.

CHARITY DRIVE VOLUNTEERS ORGANIZE EMPLOYES UNIT

Irving Edison to Head Division in Campaign for $2,555,000 Starting Nov. 1.

Organization of the volunteer staff for the employes division of the United Charities campaign Nov. 1 to 20 is nearing completion, Irving Edison, chairman of the division, said yesterday.

The staff, which will solicit contributions from more than 200,000 workers in 1100 industrial concerns in the metropolitan area, will be headed by James P. Hickok. Assisting him as regional chairmen will be Oscar von Lahr, G. A. Gantz, Arthur A. Guenther and Eugene D. Cronk.

An 80-acre pamphlet describing the work of various United Charities agencies has been published for distribution among prospective subscribers in the campaign for $2,555,000.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY JOHN G. NEIHARDT

THE SPLENDOR NO ONE SAW

FELICITA. By R. E. Spencer. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

FOR reasons concerned, no doubt, with the social chaos of our time, frustration and futility are distressingly common themes in contemporary fiction, and since they involve a negative view of human life, a mood of disintegration, they seldom result in beauty, which demands creative seeing.

"Gentleman Overboard," a story of frustration which appeared some months ago and got precisely nowhere with the critical gentry and the public, achieves a weird and spirit- cleansing splendor with its vision of the crystal vastness of the cosmos and an ego lost therein. "Felicita," here noted, is another rarely beautiful vartation on that theme, lacking the adumbrated meanings and the cosmic implications of the former. In "Gentleman Overboard," the frustrated ego merges with the whole, "the dew-drop slips into the shining sea." In "Felicita" the lonely ego dies imprisoned within walls of its own making, glorified by the beauty of a compensating dream.

Santayana, in keeping with his philosophy as illustrated in "The Last Puritan," would say that Malcolm Burke, protagonist of Mr. Spencer's tale, had rejected the life of Nature and espoused the life of Reason with the inevitably fatal result. Malcolm, far from prepossessing in appearance, had really never lived below his ears. Critic by profession, he had dealt intellectually with mere representations of reality, and the time came when it wouldn't do any longer. 'Life's cheek fell in' for him, and 'every goodly thing grew all at once unutterably old.'

Malcolm goes to the country home of a friend for a rest—a rambling old house lonely with dim memories that float ghost-like through the tale and somehow shape the doom that is to be. Save for three unobtrusive Negro servants, who serve as contacts with reality, Malcolm is alone with his day dreams that grow steadily more fantastic and convincing to him. He undertakes to write a romance based upon those memories; but strangely the tale takes on a life of its own. Ceasing to write, he begins to live the story. Felicita, the heroine, comes alive, more vividly real to him than are the dusky servants who watch him furtively, aware that he is mad.

The scene in the desolate, snow-choked garden where Malcolm conjures the magic of Maytime and brings before Felicita the lovers he has fashioned for her choosing, is likely to haunt most readers.

The tale moves onward like a deep and noiseless stream made eerie by starlight, and the doom comes with the splendor of a perfect vision—the final wish-fulfillment of a life defeated.

Brilliant Details, Doubtful Whole

JOHN CORNELIUS: HIS LIFE AND ADVENTURES. By Hugh Walpole. (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Garden City, N. Y.)

FROM the time when Hugh Walpole published his first novel, about 1909, critics have been sharply divided into two camps over the question of the merit of his work—and there is no reason to believe that the appearance of his latest novel will alter the situation. There will be those who will read "John Cornelius" and, fascinated by its wealth of detail, the ease of its progress, and its vivid pictures of events in the life of an "ugly duckling" English author, will pronounce it a monumental work. But there also will be those who, while appreciating the excellence of its parts, will be vaguely dissatisfied with the whole.

Ugly little Johnny Cornelius, with his skinny legs encased in red tights, making his first professional appearance with a tenth-rate road company in a little seaside town, is certainly a convincing enough figure. So is young John Cornelius going home from the school where he taught backward boys to amuse his drunken mother. For that matter, he is equally convincing in all the other situations of the book—in his unfortunate marriage, in his hatred of his fame; yet somehow this multiplicity of convincing situations fails to build up a unified personality.

Whatever else it does or does not do, this latest novel of Sir Hugh Walpole demonstrates again his versatility. It is presented in the form of a biography, written supposedly by a very close friend of John Cornelius from his personal recollections eked out by those of Anne Swinnerton, valiant daughter of a prostitute whose one glory in life was "Johnny," and of Charlie Christian, who had established himself in childhood as Johnny's protector. Since the subject of the biography becomes in his later life a celebrated English author, much of the book deals with literary circles in London, and although most of the characters seem to be purely fictional, more than one actual contemporary literary figure masquerades in the story under a fictitious name.

Looking Backward To Bellamy

EDWARD BELLAMY SPEAKS AGAIN: Articles, Public Addresses and Letters. (The Peerage Press, Kansas City, Mo.)

THE son of a Baptist minister, Bellamy was born in 1850 in Chicopee Falls, Mass., where he spent most of his 48 years. After flings at the law and journalism, he settled down to a quiet life as the writer of fiction set in American villages, apparently content with the environment of the small town.

But it was not long before he became dissatisfied with his work as the author of novels which made little impression, and deliberately resolved "to reason out a method of economic organization by which the Republic might guarantee the livelihood and material welfare of its citizens on a basis of equality corresponding to and supplanting their material equality." The result was "Looking Backward," a utopian romance whose circulation was at once phenomenal.

What Bellamy advocated was a mild socialism to mitigate the social evils of his day. He did this by telling a romantic story of a young man, Julian West, who went to sleep in 1887 and dreamed that he awoke in the year 2000 in a land without poverty or misery because people no longer worked for profit but for the joy of the working.

Fanciful though the story plainly was, it found acceptance by many persons as a kind of economic Book of Scripture and over the country Bellamy clubs were organized for its study. This manifestation of popular interest apparently convinced the writer that "nationalism," as he called his remedy, could be applied in his own day. Launching a national campaign, he espoused it from the platform and in the periodical press.

The present collection shows Bellamy in action, vigorously carrying his gospel to the people. Whereas "Looking Backward" was gracefully, not to say charmingly, written, the addresses and editorials now assembled are primarily straightforward appeals to the masses to accept his panacea for the ills of the world.

R. Lester McBride of Pasadena, Cal., who contributes the foreword, says that Bellamy gives the reader "new eyes to see with, new ears to hear with and a new mind and heart with which to understand." If that is claiming too much for the bearded crusader of Chicopee Falls, it is certain that 40 years after his death he still has a challenge for the thinking of the rank and file.

Less Romantic, More Amusing

THREE DESERTS. By Major C. S. Jarvis. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

THE movies are wont to picture the Arabs as quite gallant fellows, and even the late T. E. Lawrence left the impression that they were an heroic lot, dashing about cutting railway lines and making it tough for the Turks. All of this is no doubt true of the fighting tribes; but Major Jarvis, late Governor of Sinai, during 14 years as a British official in the Egyptian and Sinaitic deserts, came into contact with a far less romantic, but decidedly more amusing type of nomad—a Bedouin with "a very fine brain if he cares to use it," yet indolent and fatalistic, contentious, parochial and undisciplined.

It fell to the lot of Major Jarvis as Governor to administer the civil law among the indigenous populations of the deserts, as well as further their economic welfare, which was far from easy among people accustomed for centuries to settling their differences with a private war, and who had preferred a hand-to-mouth existence rather than exert themselves in keeping up the marvelous Roman irrigation and agriculture. However, he really had an engaging time, for however serious the situation, something laughable was sure to crop up. For instance, 11 native dignitaries of the Dakhla Oasis once demanded that he travel 120 miles to punish a gross insult to them, and when he arrived he found the local doctor had named his 11 turkeys after the oasis leaders!

"I had the greatest difficulty in stifling my laughter," comments the British Major, "for the 11 fat men, choleric with rage and gesturing in my office, did resemble turkeys very closely."

His charges also were extremely fond of litigation, along with being addicted to oratorical flights, so he soon learned to keep all law cases going as long as possible. The litigants were better satisfied that way, since every few months they could have a "delightful morning in court yelling at each other.

"I go into the court two or three times to see that everything is going on satisfactorily—much as a mother visits her nursery to see her children at play—and when everybody has completely lost his voice I solemnly adjourn the case for six months."

Not all of his book is about the Arabs and their affairs. Major Jarvis gives an excellent account of almost every phase of the desert. He writes with a rare sense of humor, nor is British officialdom and its lack of perception spared. Some of the best anecdotes deal with the Colonial Administration.

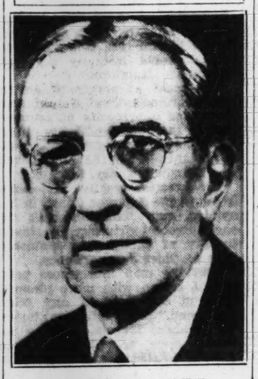
Author of "Europa" Continues His Novel



ROBERT BRIFFAULT.

Life of a Gallant Sailing Ship

GALES, ICE AND MEN. By Frank Wead. (Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.)

IN the 1880's San Francisco was a sailorman's town with the Barbary Coast running full blast, and a man had to be sure of himself before he elbowed another aside at the bar. Those who had "U. S. M. R. S. Bear" in gold letters on their hatbands always found a place at any bar when they returned from patrolling in the frozen North. It was known that they were just a little tougher, for the Bear led one of the hardest lives that any ship ever experienced.

She spent her youth as a sealer, her maturity in the Coast Guard and Revenue Cutter Service, and her old age with Admiral Byrd in the Antarctic. Launched in 1873 as a Newfoundland sealer, she was purchased by the navy in 1884 and sent to seek the lost Greely Arctic expedition. She succeeded and won international fame. Turned over to the Revenue Cutter Service, she began a career that made her known as the rescue ship of the North Pacific. She exchanged shots with seal poachers, succored starving icebound whalemen, was almost the sole representative of law and order during the Alaskan gold rushes, looked after the Eskimos, and aided Arctic explorers.

She came through it all because her crew always was made up of real seamen, such as Bos'n Thurber, who could emit a string of 27 epithets without repeating himself or drawing breath. Then, too, the wrinkled shipwrights had put into her only honest wood which would yield without rupturing when gripped by ice. Not for nothing had her sides been sheathed with Australian iron bark, the toughest wood known. Thus it was that six years after her retirement in 1926, she was given another chance and carried Admiral Byrd to Antarctica.

By means of moldy records, letters and talks with veterans who served on the Bear, Mr. Wead has been able to recount the experiences of 60-odd years in the life of the ship. He has done so with a spirit that gives the impression he might be one of the Bear's veterans. There is not a dull spot in the book, and yet Mr. Wead has avoided any tinge of the melodramatic.

Chasing Their Own Shadows

THE COMEDY OF PHILOSOPHY. By Dr. M. Leon. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.)

OMAR KHAYYAM, listening to the disputations of doctor and saint, found that he "evermore came out by the same door where in I went." Dr. Leon has reached much the same conclusion. "Philosophy," he says, "has ever been in a circular movement, always returning to the precise point from which it started." He finds it, therefore, "the most delightful comedy of errors ever evolved by the human mind."

The reader is permitted to reach this conclusion, if he wishes, through his own thinking; the writer makes no arguments, but allows the facts about the various schools of philosophy to speak for themselves. Essentially, the book is a compact introduction to the study of the subject. A skillful job of condensation has been done in a field which has inspired its writers to more wordiness than perhaps any other under the sun.

Dr. Leon, a retired St. Louis physician, for years made the study of philosophy his avocation. His book was first published in 1932, and the present is an enlarged and revised edition. Additional comments have been added on many pages, and there is a new chapter, on Zoroastrianism, and an index. The language of the book is nontechnical, but the broad scholarship of the writer is plainly evident throughout. His flashes of wit and his numerous apt quotations and anecdotes add to the readability of the volume.

THE TRADER'S CHILDREN. By Laura Adams Armer. (Longmans, Green & Co., New York.)

Another book for boys and girls by the author of "Waterless Mountain," telling a good, lively story of real children at Black Mountain Trading Post in the Arizona desert.

"BETWEEN A DYING WORLD AND ONE YET TO BE BORN"

EUROPA IN LIMBO. By Robert Briffault. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THE outbreak of the World War found Julian Bern, a mildly cynical and moderately wealthy young Englishman of scientific bent, in Germany and in love with the wife of a Russian princeling. Zena, the Princess, accompanied him to England, whence she felt impelled to hasten to her family in Petrograd. Julian, who could not obtain a passport to Russia, was at loose ends until he lackadaisically decided to "join up." He had acquired a rather thorough knowledge of the depth and quality of the British nobility's patriotism, and his contempt for the aristocrats was soon augmented by a like feeling for military officers.

Meanwhile, Zena was writing him from Petrograd to tell him of the worms of corruption eating away the Russian Empire. The soldiers at the front were sent munitions that would not explode, and were slaughtered as sacrifices to the cupidity of profiteers who supplied the materials at fabulous prices. The Queen was under the thrall of an insane religious fanatic. Voices in the market places were calling out the prophecy that all this would pass away. The debris of a dying social order swept aside, the people would ascend to power.

Julian's revolt remained without direction or goal, until a fateful encounter in the Swiss Alps, where he was convalescing from a wound. He met a dynamic little man with assured manner and strangely compelling eyes. The little man, whose name he later learned to be Lenin, spoke to Julian in clear, simple words, and set his mind on a firm rock of conviction.

Julian appeared in Petrograd as a fugitive from a German prison camp just as the Whites and Reds were contending for supremacy. Reunited with Zena, he became an active revolutionist, but lost heart again when a White bullet ended her life. Back in England, he sank into lethargy, lost, as he put it, in the limbo between a dying world and a world yet to be born. "To be anything but a misfit in a society so constituted is to be a scoundrel or a fool," he told a friend. He found some small comfort in writing for a radical weekly.

At times, as in the battle scenes, Mr. Briffault writes with considerable clarity and vigor, but his performance is uneven, and some passages are incredibly banal or ludicrously decorative. The sarcasm is not infrequently too heavily pointed, and the characters serving as foils for the author's shafts are a sorry lot, indeed. If the guardians of conservatism and reaction were in truth as lecherous and idiotic as Mr. Briffault has represented them, social revolution would not be long in coming.

Fabulous Days in California

RALSTON'S RING. By George D. Lyman. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York.)

A PRIME example of that paradox, the buccaneer-philanthropist, was William Chapman Ralston, who in 1854 promoted the Bank of California in San Francisco. He had expansive ideas. He would make California not only great and beautiful, but entirely independent of the States. And there was, strangely, a generous slice of unselfishness in this.

Ralston's plans required money. His nearest source was the great Comstock silver lode over on Sun Mountain in western Nevada. Ralston's ring of bank directors controlled a large share of its wealth. Millions were taken out of the lode and pumped into the young industries in the San Francisco area. For years one bonanza after another contributed to the transfusion.

San Francisco grew prosperous, cosmopolitan, beautiful, Ralston and his crowd rich. He lived in splendor at suburban Belmont. His horses must be the fastest, his hospitality the finest, his visitors the greatest. He and his friends dealt casually in millions. He was by turns kind and cruel. He kept the demented and splendiferous "Norton I, Emperor of California and Defender of Mexico" in regal state, and ruthlessly persecuted the worthy Adolph Sutro whose bore through Sun Mountain threatened Ralston's supremacy.

One day a trans-continental train reached California bearing St. Louis and Chicago products that were cheaper and better than San Francisco could make them. And not long afterward old faithful Comstock began to peter out. Ralston prayed for just one more bonanza. It never came. The bank's millions, sunk in faltering California industries, froze. The bank suspended, carrying thousands to ruin. Ralston, who personally owed the bank nearly 10 million, went swimming in the Bay. The next day his body was found drifting through Golden Gate.

The headlong rush of Dr. Lyman's breathless, exciting narrative of fabulous days in old California is sometimes retarded by repetition. The volume is a companion to the same author's "The Saga of the Comstock Lode," and is based on sound research.

Two Lives Against Rich Background

TIME OF OUR LIVES. By Orrick Johns. (Stackpole Sons, New York.)

ST. LOUIS-BORN poet and playwright, lately director of the New York Federal Writers' Project, has paused at 50 to write "the story of my father and myself." He goes back another generation to "my pioneering grandfather," a Mississippi planter transplanted to Missouri, and to the background of both the writer's parents, in St. Charles. The father, George Sibley Johns, was editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch until his retirement in 1930, after 47 years' service with this newspaper.

Half the book is devoted to the elder Johns, his journalistic career, the Post-Dispatch, and the St. Louis of his active years. The other half is autobiography, a story of study, travel, literary, dramatic and class-struggle associations, and marital experiences. Dedication is to "the mother of the Johns circus." Orrick is one of five sons who grew to maturity in the Johns home, four of whom are now living.

The son's picture of the father is admirably drawn; his account of his own career has frankness and objectivity. The story is not narrowed to the Johnses; the life and spirit of successive periods, in the local and the international view, form a rich background. There are inaccuracies of detail, such as the statement that Mayor Ziegenhein of St. Louis served three terms, instead of his one actual and troubled quadrennium; and some of the newspaper episodes are sketchy; but the presentation of the chief characters, and of such incidental figures as Woodrow Wilson and William Marion Reedy, is authentic. One need not know Orrick Johns, or his father, or their home city, to find this book one of lively interest.

Some Much-Needed Kidding

LET YOUR MIND ALONE. By James Thurber. With Drawings by the Author. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

THIS season's crop of self-improvement books has been particularly lush. Readers have been coaxed to Live, Be Glad, Make Friends, Succeed, until even the most complacent have begun to be bewildered. And now comes the denouement—the Dorothy Parker last line—in James Thurber's new book. He gives the old-fashioned advice: "Let Your Mind Alone," and follows it up with some of the wittiest and most intelligent essays recently written.

In the matter of the New Psychology, Mr. Thurber is shockingly unorthodox. He refuses to believe, for instance, that a man jumps back and forth before an on-coming car because he sees in it a sex-symbol. He thinks it quite possible that he is trying to avoid being run over. He has seen the same behavior, he claims, in happily-mated squirrels. He is always introducing gloomy shadows into the bright little pictures the Shapers of Success draw. Suppose, he suggests, the young man who is being offered so much help about the proper way of escorting a lady to a table, is really worrying about how to pay the check!

Not all the book is given to pessimistic comments on the inspirationalists. In his simple, concise style, the author considers a range of troublesome matters from autobiography-writing to bridal showers. Perhaps the high spot of the book is the chapter which attempts to explain to a worker what the leftist critics are saying.

The author illustrates the book with his well-known impressionistic sketches.

Says Fascism Threatens To Engulf the World

G. A. BORGESE.

Tragedy of Italian People Interpreted

GOLIATH: The March of Fascism. By G. A. Borgese. (The Viking Press, New York.)

NATIONS, like people, exhibit personality patterns, and neurosis, it seems, is not peculiar to the individual. Moreover, there is a developmental psychology of states as well as of men, knowledge of which is no less essential to the understanding of present conduct in the one case than in the other. This is the thesis which guides Mr. Borgese in his diagnosis of contemporary Italian life, and in his exposition of what he regards as the world-menace of Fascism.

As he represents it, Italy's personality is revealed in a persistent inclination to dwell upon past glories while daydreaming of a future renaissance of the Roman Empire as heart and mind of the civilized world. An all-embracing inferiority complex completes the picture. This is the material that was moulded and shaped in turn by such diversely gifted hands as those of Dante, Machiavelli, the idealistic poets and political leaders of the Risorgimento, the fiery D'Annunzio, and the statesmen of the World War era.

The background, says Mr. Borgese, helps one understand how Fascism achieved its initial hold upon the Italian nation; but it does not explain Fascism itself. The latter is most emphatically not a necessary product of Italian culture; it has been impressed upon that culture by the will-to-power of a single man. Mussolini is portrayed as a decidedly mediocre figure, whose sole aim is ruthless self-expression in a combination of Nietzschean superman and Machiavellian prince.

Few can speak dispassionately of things nearest the heart. Mr. Borgese, himself an exile by choice, often writes with bitterness, occasionally even stooping to propaganda of the cruder sort. His treatment of the Catholic Church, for example, reflects more the spirit of Ku Klux Klan than that of a recognized scholar and historian of current events; and such tactics will cost him the sympathy of many readers in this country. Inevitably one questions the fidelity of such a witness, even where other matters are concerned.

What Black Gold Did to Them

FAMILY STYLE. By Karle Wilson Baker. (Coward-McCann, Inc., New York.)

MRS. KARLE WILSON BAKER, who has won considerable distinction as a poet, here tells with remarkable insight the story of a quite ordinary group of farmers.

The Priests had, for generations, tilled in quietude the red soil of East Texas. But with the discovery of oil on their land, their lives exploded. The weak members of the family—like Fred, who, after making a good deal of more or less honest money, divorced his wife and bought an airplane—succumbed to the temptations of sudden wealth. Stronger characters, like Duke and Kathleen, emerged with a larger and deeper conception of living than they had even suspected was possible. Oil in no case changed character. It only magnified all things, and increased the speed of events.

Everything about the oil was melodramatic, from the first whispered rumors to the bringing in of a well; and the lives of the people involved with it took on something of that exaggerated quality. Yet Mrs. Baker has conveyed so vividly the enchanted ugliness of the oil field, and the fever of its existence, that the melodrama seems, not forced and unnatural, but the normal state of things.

"Family Style" is a strongly moving tale, and its power is increased by the control which Mrs. Baker keeps over her material, by the restraint with which she writes, and by flashes of poetic insight, which illumine her characters.

THE NIGHTINGALE HOUSE. By Elizabeth Palmer. Illustrated by Marjorie Peters. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York.)

A charming tale for youngsters about a doll's house that belonged to a little Swedish girl in early Minnesota.

BRIGHTENED IF NOT CLEARED

AARON BURR, a Biography. By Nathan Schachner. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

IF there was need of another biography of Aaron Burr, Nathan Schachner was the man to write it, if only because he takes the view that few villains are as black as painted; yet now that he has done the job, on the basis of some hitherto undisclosed and undiscussed private papers, the mass of primary and secondary source material already available and the partisan later accounts of friends and enemies of Burr, there remains a question—was it worth the effort? The best Schachner can do is to reinterpret and readjust a few emphases. Technically he enters a plea of not guilty for his client, but he addresses himself mostly to collateral issues, just as Burr did before Chief Justice John Marshall at Richmond when caught in a series of remarkable coincidences, if not, in fact, treason.

That trial, by the way, ought to make a good book or movie. Beveridge considers it in his life of Marshall; Bowers touches it in his "Jefferson in Power"; it figures briefly in Elliott's "Winfield Scott," and all the chroniclers of Burr naturally make great to-do about it; but the fact is, the outrageous and melodramatic proceeding has never been adequately synthesized from all points of view. Here was Burr, put on his defense illegally in a wrong jurisdiction, prosecuted by President Jefferson, an ancient enemy and rival, accused by a disreputable fellow conspirator, defended and judged by the brightest galaxy of Jefferson's enemies that could be assembled. By Marshall, his own definition of treason, on which the Government relied for conviction, Burr was guilty, but Marshall did some hasty redefining and Burr went free—and ruined. Sardonic drama indeed! A comedy of cross purposes in which the ends of substantial justice were served by accident!

Burr was a brilliantly able man, wrong chiefly by force of circumstance, whose vaulting ambition o'erleaped itself and fell. Whether he was a villain, deep-dyed black or only slightly gray, his tragedy was almost wholly personal. If one may hazard a guess on an "if" in history, it was well that he fell. If he had not—? Well, whatever the case, the new life, judiciously pro-Burr as it is, was worth writing. It justifies itself on the ground of reason. If one is to have and keep a single book about Burr it might well be Schachner's, but the text disturbs no broadly settled judgments.

When Victoria Was Queen

THE GOLDEN SOVEREIGN. By Laurence Housman. Illustrated by Ernest H Shepard. (Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York.)

FOR a long time we have used the name of Victoria, England's short, plump, simple-hearted Queen, when we wanted to be particularly scathing about something which seemed to us ridiculously sober and reserved. But last year, bless her soul, she became a popular figure on Broadway in Laurence Housman's "Victoria Regina," and this year the same author has published a collection of 19 plays which complete the picture he has given us of Victoria as not always solemn and severe, but as a woman in love with her husband, concerned about her nine children, and often bored with the formality of court life.

Her famous contemporaries are not neglected. With delightful humor and understanding, Housman presents such figures as John Stuart Mill, Carlyle, Oscar Wilde, Gladstone, Chamberlain, and Parnell in intimate, behind-the-scene conversations revealing the great as just "home folks" after all. The patient tenderness of Mrs. Gladstone as she resigns herself to a life of knitting comforters for the "Grand Old Man" who often loses two a day, and her ability to lie successfully in order to alleviate his bitter disappointment in his final failure, are the high points in a rather pathetic play called "The Comforter." "The Firelighters" reveals John Stuart Mill in a state of collapse as he comes to tell Carlyle that a careless maid has used his manuscript of "The French Revolution" to light fires.

The play "Possession, A Peepshow in Paradise," gives a glimpse of the Victorian Heaven which is just as cluttered with monstrosities, both architectural and human, as was the actual world. One of the best things in the book is a pen drawing by Ernest Shepard of an unconventional, Victorian Papa Ghost hovering over an ornate mantelpiece and taking an unholy pleasure in informing his quarrelsome daughters that he prefers the Victorian Hell.

The remaining 12 plays have Victoria as their central figure: Victoria asserting her authority as the new Queen; Victoria having her first child; Victoria riding on that rather doubtful vehicle, a train, and being afraid of tunnels; Victoria having her picture taken and upon being told to "look pleasant please," sending the photographer flying that she might laugh heartily—which would have been unforgivable in a picture.

With quiet charm, and skillful use of gentle satire, Laurence Housman has chronicled the Victorian age and made us glad we didn't live in it, but happy to read about it.

By the Enigmatic M. Celine

MEA CLUPA. Two Essays. By Louis-Ferdinand Celine. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

IN BOTH France and America, Louis-Ferdinand Celine is an enigma. It is known that he is a physician of distinctly melancholy temperament and humanitarian instincts; that he spends much time in clinical work in Paris, devoting his energies to the poor without hope of recompense; and that he is the author of "Journey to the End of the Night," a book that was a sensation on both sides of the Atlantic. Beyond this, little is known.

"Mea Culpa" consists of two essays widely different in subject matter and treatment. The first, only 36 pages in length, is a record of Celine's reactions to a visit in Soviet Russia. In gutter French of the worst description (translated rather inadequately, it may be said), he swears, is ironical, appalled, amused and furious by turns, all with somewhat more fire than clarity.

The second essay is a biography of Semmelweis, the Austrian physician and scientist, written by Celine as a dissertation for his Paris doctorate. In this, a much easier work, he shows a clarity and breadth of sympathy that are nowhere evident in the diatribe against Russia. He tells of Semmelweis' devotion to science; of his efforts to discover the cause of puerperal fever; of his discovery of that cause and of his martyrdom at the hands of stupid and envious doctors who sacrificed lives and falsified records to prove him wrong. The tone of this essay also is one of indignation, but it is the indignation of a young man, angered on behalf of a suffering humanity which he is anxious to help. The story Celine relates is bitter, but its lesson makes it well worth the telling.

One feels that "Mea Culpa" probably was published less for its own merits than to supply demand for work by Celine. But the reader will be willing to overlook the superficial flaws in the book because of the personality to which it gives expression.

A Testing Ground For Talent

NEW LETTERS IN AMERICA. Edited by Horace Gregory. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York.)

IT is generally agreed among critics that a leading role in the development of American literature played by the so-called "little magazines," now no longer in existence. This volume of short stories, poems and essays has been assembled by a group of writers under the leadership of the poet Horace Gregory in an attempt to fill the gap by establishing a "little magazine" in book form. If the publication is financially justified, succeeding volumes will be brought out at six month intervals.

The direction which the book takes is most clearly defined, not in the somewhat pedantic discussions of Gregory's preface, but in an essay by William Phillips and Philip Rahv entitled "Literature in a Political Decade." With admirable clarity and understanding these two former editors of "Partisan Review" sketch the impact upon American letters of political and social consciousness during the past few years, and indicate the inability of American writers to utilize the new richness of material. Somewhat rashly, they call for a "Europeanization" of American literature; by which they mean the assimilation into creative writing of the cultural and psychological growth that Western civilization has achieved. Gregory heavily underscores their point by including in the book brief sketches from W. H. Auden, Fritz Kafka and Louis Guilloux—sketches which have depths of understanding and sensitivity which make American writers seem naive and even gross.

That is not to say that the work of the Americans represented is discreditable. Stories by Elick Moll and Robert Herring, poems by Muriel Rukeyser and David Wolff, a sketch of a movie scenario by James Agee, are particularly impressive. But the relation of these writers to the three Europeans and, past them, to such figures as Malraux and Gide, seems like that of apprentice to master.

NEW FRONTIERS OF THE MIND. By J. B. Rhine. (Farrar & Rinehart, New York.)

SEVEN years ago a group under the direction of Dr. Rhine of Duke University began an elaborate series of experiments in telepathy, the early results of which were given in a work published several years ago under the title "Extra-Sensory Perception." The book attracted wide attention and aroused much discussion. In the present volume Dr. Rhine tells the complete story of the Duke experiments up to date.

Those who have refused thus far to examine the available data on the subject would do well to give this work their careful attention.

CATHOLIC CONGRESS PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Preparation of Laity as Doctrinal Instructors Will Be Emphasized.

How the Catholic laity may serve their faith by acting as doctrinal instructors in the home and in secular association, where the voice from the pulpit and parish school can not be heard, will be the subject of discussions and demonstrations at the National Catechetical Congress of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, opening here Saturday with sessions spread over four days.

Three general and a number of special group and topical meetings will be held. The general meetings, first scheduled for St. Louis University Gymnasium, have been shifted to the Municipal Auditorium because of an indicated attendance beyond original expectations.

The first two will be held Sunday, one at 2 p. m. and the other at 8. Addresses by the Archbishop, John G. Murray of St. Paul, Minn.; Bishop Emmet M. Walsh of Charleston, S. C., and Bishop Edwin V. O'Hara of Great Falls, Mont., at the first general meeting will unfold the major themes of the congress.

The general meeting Sunday night will be in the hands of laymen with 15 pairs engaging in a round table discussion, with demonstrations of how to instruct children in Catholic doctrine in the home. Dr. Thomas E. Purcell, dean of the school of dentistry at St. Louis University, and former president of the National Council of Catholic Men, will speak.

The problem of reaching students in secular schools with religious instruction will be widely discussed, the third general meeting the night of Oct. 11 being devoted to this insofar as it pertains to youths in high schools. Addresses will be by the Rev. Vincent Mooney, Washington, national director of the Catholics Youth Bureau; the Rev. Sylvester J. Holbel, Buffalo, N. Y.,

Burr was a brilliantly able man, wrong chiefly by force of circumstance, whose vaulting ambition o'erleaped itself and fell. Whether he was a villain, deep-dyed black or only slightly gray, his tragedy was almost wholly personal. If one may hazard a guess on an "if" of history, it was well that he fell. If he had not—? Reaching college students will be the problem of the Newman Clubs, formed as Catholic centers in secular universities and colleges, and of a secular college group conference Sunday afternoon at the Hotel Coronado. The Newman Clubs will meet at the Coronado at 8 p. m. Sunday and at 2 p. m. Monday, the following day.

A meeting for Negro parishes of St. Louis will be held the night of Oct. 11 at St. Louis University Auditorium. Other group meetings will consider such special topics as preparing adults for religious discussion with their non-Catholic friends and techniques for vacation religious schools in urban centers.

The congress will be held under patronage of Archbishop John J. Glennon, with Auxiliary Bishop Christian H. Winkelmann as chairman. The ninth floor of the Coronado has been reserved for visiting members of the Catholic hierarchy of America. A musical program, which will include the singing of 2000 parish school children, 1500 nuns, representing all noncloistered sisterhoods in St. Louis and a mixed chorus of 400 Catholic high school students, will be presented.

Alvin C. York to Be Here.

Alvin C. York, named by Gen. Pershing as one of the outstanding heroes in the American forces overseas in the World War, will attend special services Oct. 16 at Pilgrim Holiness Church, 3950 Carter avenue. Members of veterans' organizations have been invited to attend.

SCOUTS TO DISTRIBUTE ANTI-DIPHTHERIA DATA

3000, Representing 350 Units to Take Part in House-to-House Canvass.

More than 3000 Boy Scouts and cubs, representing 350 scouting units, will take part in the anti-diphtheria campaign which will be launched in St. Louis this week by the Department of Public Health. The scouts and cubs will make a house-to-house canvass of the city, and will distribute 52,000 leaflets which describe methods of preventing the disease.

The annual fall regatta of St. Louis Sea Scouts will be resumed this afternoon at Creve Coeur Lake with point races for x-boats and moths, and a program of aquatic sports. As a result of last week's races, the Polaris has replaced the Sea Lion in the leading position for the Council trophy.

Four of the 10 training courses which the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, is sponsoring for the fall season will open this week. The courses, based on the national scout five-year plan, are for the purpose of adequately training leaders for the scouting program in St. Louis and vicinity. Details are available at Scout Headquarters, Chemical building, 721 Olive street.

Four new merit badges, recently approved by the national Boy Scout Council, will be displayed at the Merit Badge Show, Dec. 2-4, at the Arena. The badges are for proficiency in coin collecting, skiing, finger printing, and dog care.

Troop Notes.

Courts of Honor were held last week by the following troops: Troop 33, St. Peter's Church; Troop 234, Messiah Lutheran Church; Troop 154, St. Mark's Church; Troop 229, Riverview Gardens School; and Troop 336, Lyndover School.

Girl Scouts.

A new winter cabin and shelter, completed this past summer, will be dedicated at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the St. Louis Girl Scout Camp, Cedarledge, near Pevely, Mo. The dedication ceremony will include the presentation of a play, "Blessing of the House," by Girl Scout leaders under the direction of Miss Agnes Liddle.

The St. Louis Brownie Leaders Association will hold their regular monthly meeting Thursday evening at West Presbyterian Church, 5872 Maple avenue. A supper and entertainment program are planned.

The twenty-third annual Girl Scout convention will be held Oct. 13-15 in Savannah, Ga., where the first troop in this country was organized by the late Mrs. Juliette Low in 1912. A group of St. Louis delegates, headed by Mrs. Louis Burlingham, second vice-president of the national Girl Scout organization, will attend.

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH TO OBSERVE 90TH YEAR

Special Services Will Be Held by Second Oldest Congregation of Denomination.

The ninetieth anniversary of the founding of Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church, Marcus and Lexington avenues, second oldest Lutheran church in St. Louis, will be celebrated at special services at the church next Sunday.

Immanuel Church's first building was erected at Eleventh street and Franklin avenue, about eight years after the establishment of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, which was the first church of the denomination in St. Louis. Rebuilt following a fire in 1865, the church was replaced in 1868 by a new building at Fifteenth and Morgan streets. The present building was erected in 1927.

Dr. P. E. Kretzmann of Concordia Seminary will speak at 2:30 p. m., and Prof. W. G. Polack, also of the seminary, will speak at 10:30 a. m.

Britain's Attitude to World in Turmoil

recent hostilities invite a different conclusion.

Living Standards Lowered.

In the last resort it is by its effect on the standard of life that all political action must be judged. Conflict, whether internal or international, reduces that standard as surely as co-operation promotes it. Yet it seems there are some who have yet fully to learn that lesson, and, until it is universally acknowledged, this world may have to pass through yet more heartrending phases which bring with them untold suffering on all sections of people.

Until that period is reached this League of Nations, though it can play its part in certain spheres of international life, though it can still compose disputes as it has done only this year between its members—disputes which might otherwise have had the most serious consequences for all—it cannot play its part unhampered in the international sphere or render its full service to mankind.

Britain's Attitude.

Let me at least make clear again our own view. There is, in our judgment, no dispute between nations that cannot be settled by peaceful means. We are prepared now, as in the past, ourselves to seek such methods and as with politics, so with armaments. We are ready at any time to join an international agreement for reduction and limitation of armaments, but until such an agreement can be reached we are determined—and this applies to all sections of our people—to authorize such expenditure as may be necessary for our defense and that of the territory of the British commonwealth of nations, and also for the fulfilment of our international obligations.

So far, however, as collective action is concerned we must take account of the extent to which co-operation is forthcoming from those states, whether members of the League or not, whose aid is felt to be indispensable. This, I submit, is the only criterion possible while the League's membership and its authority remains what it is today.

Spain's Civil War.

Let us now make a reference to each of the conflicts with which the Assembly is preoccupied at the present time. I speak first of Spain. A year ago we undertook, and ultimately Europe undertook, to support the initiative of the French Government to seek to circumscribe the Spanish conflict. That initiative was a courageous one. It was taken in the interest of peace by a Government whose devotion to peace is everywhere recognized. It was for that reason that we have from the first lent our full support to what is known as the policy of non-intervention.

London has been the headquarters of the committee that was set up to give effect to this policy, and through many difficult months we have sought by every means in our power to make that policy effective. It can be said that that policy has played the main part in preventing a European conflict.

Dangers to Europe.

We have passed through a year of tense anxiety, a period during which sympathies have been sharply divided between countries and within countries. The conflict has not spread beyond the borders of Spain and, may I be allowed to add, such a consideration must be of the greatest moment to us all. Though, therefore, the main object for which the policy was created has so far been achieved, it would be idle to deny that there have been wide breaches of the agreement. Engagements entered into have not been kept.

There are foreign nationals in large numbers fighting on Spanish soil. No agreement has been reached for their withdrawal. That is a state of affairs pregnant with danger for the peace of Europe.

We are ready enough to take our full share and more than our full share of responsibility for the policy of non-intervention. We have consistently supported that policy. If non-intervention now has to be discarded it will not be for lack of patience on the part of its original sponsors.

Let us not, however, conceal, from ourselves this patent fact: If the policy of non-intervention is abandoned Europe will be swept into deeper and more dangerous waters. A leaky dam may yet serve its purpose, but we alone cannot decide the fate of this policy. Whatever that fate may be there is one pledge that I can unequivocally give this Assembly, that the Government I represent will spare no endeavor to prevent war from engulfing Europe.

Piracy in Mediterranean.

Let me now say something of the Nyon conference. Recently there had arisen as an outcome of the conflict in Spain a new problem in the Mediterranean. Merchant ships of neutral states having no concern with the conflict had been attacked and sunk by submarines of unknown nationality. It was to deal with this new form of piracy on the high seas that the French Government and ourselves issued invitations for a conference at Nyon.

I have no intention of dealing in any detail today with the agreements reached there, but there is one comment I would like to make. The situation with which we were called to deal required an urgent solution. We could have wished that all the Mediterranean powers could have been present at Nyon to join in working out and applying from the first a considered scheme.

Refer's to Italy's Absence.

His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom sincerely regret that that was not possible.

In the circumstances, however, what was required was a practical plan to be immediately elaborated by the technical experts of the nations assembled in conference, and put into operation without delay.

To have attempted to elaborate such a plan, after communication with a country not represented at the conference, would have been in practice quite impossible. The plan agreed on by the conference had to be in itself both workable and complete, and so we believe it to be. I would, however, once more emphasize that it was owing to no desire of ours, to no decision of ours that all the Mediterranean powers were not present at Nyon. We had to work within the limitations imposed upon us. The essentials for us were speed and efficiency, and the plan is now in operation. The arrangement, as it is called, the arrangement of Nyon, contains provisions for reconsideration and His Majesty's Government and the French Government, and I make no doubt the other signatories also, will certainly be at all times ready to consider all suggestions that may be put forward in that connection.

War in China.

May I say a word on the Far East? The delegate of China, in a speech which has deeply moved the whole assembly, gave us details of the appalling consequences of the warfare and more particularly the aerial warfare in the Far East, details of which must have shocked everyone of us.

He has in no respect exaggerated the horror felt by us all at this appalling loss of life. It must unhappily be admitted that not one of the several efforts made by third parties to end or assuage this conflict has been of any avail. It is especially tragic that these hostilities on a vast scale should have broken out in the Far East at a time when the omens seemed more auspicious than for some time past for co-operation between the nations in that part of the world.

Can anyone doubt that if co-operation had been pursued benefit must have accrued where now there is untold suffering to millions, to say nothing of the blow to trade and prosperity throughout the Far East.

Improvement in Trade.

I would like now to turn to the consideration of certain important economic questions which have been emphasized in the admirable reports published by the League. It is clear that we have many good reasons to be satisfied with the economic history of the past year.

The disastrous fall in commodity prices which marked the onset of the crisis has been definitely reversed. Production has increased rapidly in many countries, but international trade has lagged behind the pace of domestic recovery and trade barriers have not fallen in the way we could have wished.

There has been, none the less, an increase of trade, both in quantity and in value, during the last year and certain contributions have been made toward the freeing of trade, and thereby, as I firmly believe, to a more wholesome political atmosphere.

Defends British Tariff.

My own country has sometimes been adversely criticized because, under the stress of the crisis of 1931, it adopted a policy of protection. I believe that such criticism is unfair and that, in point of fact, during these difficult years the United Kingdom has made no small contribution to the maintenance of international trade.

The United Kingdom import market—which is by far the largest import market in the world—has been kept open to an immense range of raw materials, foodstuffs, semi-manufactured and wholly-manufactured goods.

During a period of closing markets we have accepted a steadily increasing percentage of the world's imports, rising from about 16 per cent in 1929 to 17 per cent. In 1932 and to 18 per cent last year. From 1933 onward the value of our imports has steadily increased. In that year it had fallen to £675,000,000 (about $3,375,000,000). In 1936 it had risen to £849,000,000 (about $4,245,000,000). These figures are still increasing and on the assumption that during the second half of the present year imports continue at the same level as during the first half, the United Kingdom's total imports will be valued at about £967,000,000 (about $4,835,000,000). Compared with 1933, the year of our lowest import figures, this represents an increase of 43 per cent in our total imports.

This I am sure the Assembly will agree can be considered as a real contribution to the prosperity of international trade and as convincing proof that our economic policy is not narrow, nor exclusive, nor self-sufficient.

Lowering Trade Barriers.

Throughout this period we have taken whatever action has been open to us to assist in the removal of barriers to trade and, in the pursuit of that policy, during the last four years we have negotiated a number of financial agreements. It is not, I think, presumptuous to claim that these agreements have helped not a little in the general tendency towards the improvement of international trade.

The second great import market in the world is that of the United States and it is a fact of the greatest importance that under the leadership of President Roosevelt and Mr. Cordell Hull the United States Government has during these recent years adopted a vigorous and consistent policy for the reduction of trade barriers.

The import markets of our own country and of the United States are the geratest import markets in the world. Together they represent nearly 30 per cent of the world's total import trade. Last year we took 18 per cent and the United States over 11 per cent.

An agreement on most favored nation treatment between these two countries for the reduction of their duties would, we are convinced, be one of the most effective steps we could take not only in our own interest but in that of the whole world.

Problem of Raw Materials.

Turning to the final report and recommendation of the committee for the study of the problem of raw materials, Mr. Eden said:

This inquiry has been of particular interest to us because it was set up on the initiative of the United Kingdom representative at the Assembly two years ago. We regret that certain countries which have regarded themselves as at a disadvantage in respect to the supply of raw materials should not have felt able to take part.

The committee have done admirable service in presenting facts and figures of the situation in a manner which should remove all misunderstanding of the essential problem in the minds of those who studied it, and the report and recommendations are deserving of the most careful attention. The facts and figures which the committee adduced show conclusively that the problem of raw materials is not primarily, or even substantially one of colonial possessions. In fact, and this is a figure which I would leave in the minds of the Assembly, all colonial territory taken together produces only about 3 per cent of the world's supply of raw materials.

We have always deliberately refrained from pressing the preferential system beyond a certain limited point, and when last year we became free to introduce a preferential system in Nigeria, which is our largest African colonial market, we did not do so.

Concerning Colonies.

Sir, acting in the spirit which prompted our policy in this respect, and wishing to give effect to the recommendation of the Committee on Raw Materials, His Majesty's Government are ready, as part of the efforts now being made to effect economic and political appeasement and to increase international trade—without prejudice to the principle of colonial preference—we are ready, I repeat, to enter into discussion with any powers which may approach the United Kingdom government for an abatement of particular preferences in non-self-governing colonial territories, where these can be shown to place undue restriction on international trade.

This offer must, of course, be made subject to such reservations as may be necessary to secure reciprocal advantages to colonial products and to meet the competition of excessively low-cost producers.

Matter of Payment.

Let me add that this offer is merely an extension of the policy which has guided the United Kingdom in our commercial relations with foreign countries. We always have been ready and still are ready to discuss with any country any proposals which that country thinks likely to be of mutual benefit.

In making this statement, therefore, I refer not only to the British colonial empire, but to the United Kingdom itself. But I am afraid that no modification of the British or any other preferential system can provide any adequate remedy for the difficulties of those countries which, by maintaining exchange control, find themselves at a disadvantage in obtaining imports of raw materials and other things which they require. For, as the committee's report clearly shows, the principal difficulties of these countries arise not in obtaining raw materials, whether from colonial areas or elsewhere, but in paying for those raw materials.

The whole of that section of the report which is devoted to an examination of complaints and difficulties and experience with regard to the acquisition of, and payment for, raw materials, is of the greatest interest and importance in this respect.

Heart of the Problem.

It is pointed out that the difficulties—and this ladies and gentlemen is the truth and the heart of our economic problem—in regard to the payment for raw materials are in large part bound up with the solution of wider economic problems which require concerted action to restore freer circulation in capital, goods and labor.

Here the lines of the report coincide with those of the Economic Committee in its powerful arguments for the relaxation of restrictions on trade, especially as regards quotas, clearings and exchange control.

The two reports are seen to be two aspects of the same international situation. Starting from different premises they reach the same conclusion, that only by simultaneous progress in three different directions, economic, financial and political, can normal conditions of trade be restored and therewith normal and unimpeded access to supplies of raw materials.

Need of Co-operation.

Ladies and gentlemen, the task that is before us cannot be confined merely to the sphere of economics. As the report of the Economic Committee so clearly explains, the objectives which all governments should affirm include on the one hand the preservation of peace, on the other the development of prosperity throughout the world and the improvement in the standard of living of the world's population.

These aims are, in fact, interconnected. They are the three aspects of one and the same objective—a world freed from fear, fear of war fear of impoverishment, fear of social disintegration and decline.

During the past five years the country that I represent has succeeded in maintaining and developing relatively prosperous conditions for its people, but we recognize that ultimately the well-being of all countries is linked together, and that our own trade revival will be placed on a more solid basis and can be carried further if a similar revival can be brought about in other countries which are not at present in so fortunate a position.

His Majesty's Government are sincerely anxious to co-operate in a real effort to restore international trade, and for this purpose they are prepared to make their contribution. But any such effort can be effective only if other countries now in difficulties are ready to modify their policies in such a way as to resume normal international trading relations and to restore confidence.

Economic Revival Needed.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have nearly finished and I apologize for the length of this passage. But all governments whatever their ideologies may be, have surely at least this one aim in common, they aim at promoting and improving the well-being of their people.

How is that aim to be reached? On a basis of narrow nationalism, or on a basis of co-operation with the rest of the world? If prosperity and a higher standard of living are to be attained in the degree which scientific progress appears to promise, then I believe that the choice must be for the wider conception of world economy.

Differences in political ideology need not stultify economic co-operation or even prevent political tolerance, but there must be agreement on one point, and that is that the restoration of economic conditions should be regarded as the objective of policy, and so in the political and economic sphere the world must choose peace. By co-operation we can achieve much, in conflict we shall lose all.

Soviets Push Building of Heavy Trucks

their plants, largely on the Ford model.

For a country with only one collective foot over the threshold of modern mechanical engineering this has proved a difficult assignment. Day after day the box score figures of production, published in every Soviet newspaper, show a dismal zero for the Gorki plant, with a small asterisk to explain that the conveyor belt was stopped because Yaroslavl failed to send tires, or Moscow carburetors, or a factory in Siberia the handles of the doors.

Such days have become less frequent in recent months, and the recent establishment of a special commissariat, divorced from that of heavy industry, to deal only with the automobile industry, is expected to overcome the last obstacles to a steady flow of cars to Russian cities and towns.

Few Foreign Cars.

Moscow itself, which only a few years ago boasted a handful of Lincolns and Fiats and some strange obsolete limousines which survive elsewhere only in museums, showed in a census last month that its garages now house 5968 "M Odins" and 163 "Zis 101" automobiles. Moscow still has fewer than 1000 foreign cars.

This "Zis 101" is the Bolshevik promise in automobile manufacture, an eight-cylinder, blunt-nosed, powerful limousine currently produced by the Stalin factory in Moscow. The daily output during recent weeks has varied between five and six, against a plan of 24, but there is little doubt that the conveyor belt will soon acquire the momentum for which it was designed.

Besides the difficulties of co-ordinating mass production in scattered factories the automobile industry in the Soviet Union has encountered other specifically Russian problems. One of these is the absence of service stations, trained repair mechanics and spare parts. The failure of a spark plug or a bushing may cause an unlucky Russian automobile owner to cool his heels for several months while he writes indignant letters to the press demanding the arrest of every official in the automobile industry as Trotskyists engaged in sabotage and wrecking.

Goods Roads Wanting.

More serious is the absence of good roads. Moscow, Leningrad and dozens of other cities scattered across the Soviet landscape have been literally reporued in asphalt and concrete in recent years. But between them there are only the traditionally muddy ruts of the ancient Russia. In winter these are fairly passable, marked out across the endless steppe by twigs and branches stuck in the snow. In summer, and especially in spring and autumn, they are an effective deterrent to anything but the indomitable Russian horses.

Along with the Soviet campaign to produce automobiles for the Russian land, the Bolsheviks have recently undertaken a large scale road building program. The prisoners of the People's Commissariat for Internal Affairs, formerly the OGPU, are being switched in large degree at present from canal digging to road building as the agency for social reclamation which the Soviets say builds citizens faster than it builds public works.

The chief of these new roads connect Moscow and Kiev, in the Ukraine, and Moscow and Minsk, in White Russia. Both are expected to be completed during 1938. The roads from Moscow to Gorki and Leningrad are the best at present open, both of them being currently resurfaced and widened. The dearth of stone, which from time immemorial has been the Russian farmer's blessing, is the principal obstacle to fast road building, most of the materials having to be transported over long distances.

Shares Register Substantial Price Gains, Snapping Long String of Weekly Recessions

Series of Daily Rallies Builds Up Record in Face of Selling Flurries—Rails Lift List in Closing Session.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The stock market thrust forward substantially this week, following six successive weekly retreats, and closed with the Associated Press average for 60 stocks standing at 56.5, a net gain of 2.8 points for the period. Advances were widespread and the volume heavy at times. As a rule, late selling reduced daily gains.

Analysts thought the early rallies were due to an oversold condition and improved market sentiment. Hopes for better freight rates and an early settlement of the railway wage issue, restrictions on copper output, an advance in retail and wholesale trade, a gain in carloadings, the long shakeout in security prices and the pickup in automobile output, were among causes for the upside of the market.

On the other side of the picture were a dip in the steel operating rate, a slight slipback in industrial activity, a drop in residential building under that for the comparative period of 1936, and nervousness carried over from the long-continued decline in stock prices.

Rail, copper and gold shares were prominent on rallies, but steels and motors were more resistant. Some specialties scored.

Reports of renewed hoarding of gold in Europe and a sharp increase in the London free market price aided shares of companies producing the metal.

Total stock sales during the week amounted to 6,875,063 shares, compared with 8,109,960 a week ago and 8,855,695 in the corresponding week a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 301,636,768 shares, compared with 357,562,521 a year ago and 239,422,466 two years ago.

List Ragged at End of Yesterday's Session But Looking Better.

Rallying gestures were made by selected stocks in today's market but many issues backed into lower territory. Gains and losses of minor amounts were about even until the final hour, when rails were given a gentle forward push, and oils, coppers and specialties climbed aboard.

It was the slowest session since Sept. 4, transfers totalling 285,220 shares compared with 1,469,520 last Saturday. Despite the ragged appearance of the list at the close, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to emerge with a net gain of .3 of a point at 56.5. It was up on the week for the first time in seven weeks.

Many traders, brokers said, joined the do-nothing contingent as the financial and political troubles of the French were accentuated by a slump of the franc to its lowest level in 11 years. The currency later recovered a trifle on official support.

Another lift in the gold price at London, largely attributed to increased hoarding throughout Europe, especially in France, did not cheer the share list. Gold stocks were unable to duplicate their up-turn of the preceding session. The export copper price was hoisted slightly and some shares in this category exhibited quiet strength. Steels were under water throughout as another dip in mill operations at Pittsburgh next week was forecast.

Action by the Leaders.

Up 3½ points each were shares of Deere at 113 and Cerro de Pasco at 54½. Advances running to a point or so were held by Santa Fe at 58⅛, New York Central 28¼, Southern Pacific 32¼, Southern Railway 19¾, Northern Pacific 20¾, Great Northern 39⅞, Pennsylvania 29¾, Sears Roebuck 76⅞, Skelly Oil 41, Standard Oil of New Jersey 57¼, Anaconda 39¾, Kennecott 46¼, Westinghouse 118 and Public Service of New Jersey 38¾.

Unchanged to off a point or more were U. S. Steel at 80¼, Bethlehem 69, Chrysler 91, General Motors 49⅜, U. S. Rubber 39, Loew's 71, Douglas Aircraft 36⅞, Owens-Illinois 85, Dome 43¾, Homestake 46⅝ and Texas Corp. 51⅜.

Bonds and commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago was up ¼ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn was down ¼ to ahead ⅞. Cotton dropped 40 to 80 cents a bale. The French franc finished off .15½ of a cent at 3.28 cents, only a shade above its bttm of the day. Sterling was unchanged at $4.95½.

AUTO OUTPUT, FREIGHT MOVEMENT, SPEED UP

Industrial Activity Generally, However, Registers Lower on Seasonal Index.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Industrial activity fell to the lowest level since last February this week. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index dropped to 102.0 per cent of the 1929-30 average, from 103.2 last week and compared with 96.4 a year ago.

Three component indices fell behind last year—steel-mill activity, cotton manufacturing operations and residential building.

Automobile assembly lines sped up work on new models as the day for the first showing neared. The upturn, however, equaled normal, so the index was unchanged. The week's automotive output was estimated at 45,830 units, against 28,030 the previous week and 23,175 for the week of 1936.

Freight carloadings and electric power production stood out against the trend, both pushing ahead.

Revenue freight loaded during the week ending Sept. 25 was reported as 840,446 cars, an increase of 1.7 per cent over the previous week and the highest since the week ended Nov. 7, 1930, when 881,517 cars were loaded.

The seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

BROADER EXPORT DEMAND FOR FINISHED STEEL GOODS

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2. — Daily Metal Trade today says:

Broadening export demand for finished steel products, coupled with prospects for an early revival in steel demand from the automobile industry, is serving to revive confidence in the iron and steel markets.

Foreign inquiry on a large scale is being entertained by domestic producers from all parts of the world. At the same time the automobile builders are swinging actively into their 1938 production schedules, and predictions are being made that auto production over the next few months will surpass that in the like months of last year.

Coincident with the expansion in automotive demand, it is believed consumers related to the automotive field will step up their requirements. While some uncertainty still exists in steel circles with regard to the future, the situation shows improvements over the past few weeks.

BONDS ON UP TRAIL, RAILS TAKING LEAD

Federal Loans Follow, Although Faltering at Times—Active Turnover.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. — The WEEK: The bond market showed signs of shaking off its month-long sinking spell. Starting from the lowest levels in around two years, the market pushed forward along a wide front. The carrier group gyrated widely, but ended with modest gains.

Toward the end of the week a softening in utility issues cropped out and left its imprint on such bonds as American Water Works 6s, Consolidated Edison 3¼s and American & Foreign Power 5s. The attention of bond 'circles was attracted by the offering of $8,500,000 of Ohio Edison bonds.

Federal loans followed an upward course, although they tended to falter at times.

Turnover was at a more active clip than the preceding week. Monday saw $9,719,300 face amount of bonds change hands, but on succeeding days volume tapered to around the $7,000,000 mark.

TODAY: Domestic corporate obligations pushed cautiously forward in a slow market. With turnover the lightest in nearly a month, many issues marked time, while most gains and losses were held to narrow fractions.

Federal loans moved in a small range. Gains, which predominated, did not exceed 2-32ds of a point. Declines were confined to 3-32ds of a point. Principal activity centered in Treasury 2¾s of 1960, which crept forward 2-32d of a point.

The carrier group attracted some interest. Modest gains were made by Southern Pacific 4s of 1949, up 1⅛, and Illinois Central 4¾s at 53, up a point. Rock Island, Erie and Missouri Pacific liens improved fractions.

The Associated Press average for 20 rails advanced .3 of a point to 85. On Monday the averages stood at 83.7.

Industrial and utility issues moved narrowly.

Foreign dollar loans followed a narrow course, with few changes while exceeding fractions. Japanese issues took divergent paths, with corporates advancing fractions to a point, while Governments skidded a bit. Most South American loans were inactive and narrow.

Total turnover for all bonds was $3,289,000 par value, compared with $6,398,000 last Saturday.

COPPER, TIN, ZINC, LEAD PRICES DOWN

Pickup in Demand for Red Metal at New Figures — Steel Ingot Output Off.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Wide fluctuations in price and a notable pickup in demand at lower levels featured domestic copper markets during the week. The price of 14 cents, delivered Valley, which had prevailed for five months, was finally slashed at the beginning of the week to 13½ cents. A further cut brought the level to 13 cents by midweek, but, after a heavy general business was done at that quotation, one leading producer announced a proposed reduction of current by 20 per cent, and when the largest sellers remained in the low custom smelters' decline to 12½ cents, the general selling price advanced again to 12¾ cents, where it ended the week.

Export prices showed lower, ruling at about 12½, all the metal to close at about ½ cent off. Foreign production restrictions apparently again put tight brakes on copper selling, closer control already being in late November.

The LOST CHILDREN of CALIFORNIA

How Fifty Thousand or More Brought Westward by Migrant Parents Are Living—Semi-Destitute—in the Community but Not of It.

Scene in a camp of migrants — a grandfather with his young, all still cheerful, about him.

Picture taken at one of the four Federal migratory labor camps in California which, altogether, can accommodate only 500 families. The children are being cared for in a nursery school while the mothers are working in the fields. They are the more fortunate of the migrant children.

FRESNO, California.

OUT of the schoolhouse, into the celebrated sunshine of a California afternoon, comes a turbulent stream of boys and girls, laughing, whooping, pushing, capering as they reach the freedom of the open air. Quickly they break into groups that scuffle, chatter and play as they slowly move away. A couple of youngsters, a boy and a girl, walk apart from the others. They look different from the others. They are thin and hollow-eyed, and their clothes are patched and faded. Near one of the noisy groups they pause, watching the play. One of the romping children notices them and calls out: "Ya-a-ay! Pea-pickers! Pea-pickers!" Others join in the jeering. The two skinny urchins turn away, and followed by the shrill shouts of "Pea-picker!" trudge on toward their tent home on the edge of town.

A motorist approaching a city stops to pick up a girl, in response to her waving thumb. A little way from the road he can see a cluster of tents and shaky shacks. The girl is in her early teens—perhaps 14 or 15—still a child in years and physical immaturity, but with an ancient knowledge in her eyes. Her face has a certain pinched prettiness, and her cheap clothing apparently represents an extreme effort at decoration. On the ride into town she confides that she is starting out to make her way in the world alone, desperate from the privations she has been enduring with her family. It becomes pitifully clear that she has determined if she can't make a living in a way society calls respectable, she will try another way.

A young mother plods laboriously back to a camp of tent dwellers from a crossroads store. With one arm she carries a parcel of groceries, selected for quantity, not quality. Over the other arm lies the body of her dead baby. She moves in a sort of stupor, staring straight ahead from vacant eyes. Neighbors murmur, "She's lost in the brush."

In a two-room cabin several soiled children whimper on the floor. They are among 41 persons living in the cabin. It is a family group — parents and grandparents, children, uncles, and aunts and cousins—from Southeastern Oklahoma. There are 11 cases of typhoid in the house.

These are some of the phenomena which the great westward migration of the unemployed in the last few years has developed in California, the Golden State. These are some of the things that have happened to some of the 50,000 American children who have been uprooted from their homes, subjected to the hazards of the cheapest kind of travel and set down in the central part of this State, where for the most part they are exposed to disease and slow starvation and cut off from education. These children constitute the most poignant part of the problem created in Central California by the invasion of job hunters.

Thousands of other children who took part in the depression-inspired movement to the West have become a problem for other states than California because their families didn't get this far—dilapidated automobiles broke down or financial resources gave out on the way. And other thousands have ceased to be a problem for anyone: They lie in small graves—paupers' graves, for the most part—along the routes of the great migration, victims of the rigors of travel, undernourishment and lack of medical attention. Surveying the survivors, one can almost think that these whose lives are over are the lucky ones.

The great Central Valley is where the migrants have settled, for this is the farming region which offers the work which the invaders came to do. A small proportion of them are in camps provided by the Federal Government through its Resettlement Administration and by crop growers for their laborers; these camps are in the main reasonably clean and equipped with facilities for decent living. But most of the migrants are camped in squatter colonies, living in tents or flimsy shanties, under conditions appallingly comfortless and insanitary. This is not the California of the tourist, not a place where cooling breezes from the Pacific refresh the body, romantic palms uplift the mind and glamorous movie queens inspire the soul.

A Federal investigator had this to say about the squatter camps:

"Words cannot describe some of the conditions we saw. During the warm weather, when the temperature rises considerably above 100 degrees, the flies and insects become harassing, the children are fretful, the attitude of some of the parents can be imagined, and innumerable inconveniences add to the general discomfort. In this environment there is bred a social sullenness that is to be deplored, but which can be understood by those who have viewed the scenes that violate all the recognized standards of living. . . . It is horrible that children are reared in an environment as pitiable as that which we saw in more than one locality."

SOME idea of discomfort that may seem to be a minor one—until it has to be endured—is afforded by the record of a trap for flying insects near one of the camps in the San Joaquin Valley. It caught 37 quarts of assorted bugs in one day. That takes no account, of course, of the lice, flies and bed bugs that accompany such lively conditions and make life miserable for young and old.

Dwellers in some of the camps drink from irrigation ditches and bathe in them—and presently typhoid appears. Even the camps under public supervision are not free from such dangers. The Kern County camp at Shafter was closed and 108 families forced to leave after 11 cases of typhoid were discovered there—caused, it was thought, by flies from the toilets. An open well was closed because it was being used by families afflicted with eye disease.

At least, amateur observers have said, these people are not starving. That is true only to a limited degree. They have enough to eat to satisfy immediate hunger, but not enough of the proper kinds of food to maintain health. Their resistance slowly declines, and they fall easy prey to infectious diseases. The children have to get along practically without milk.

Many of the families brought disease with them into this region. Under the insanitary conditions of camp life, it spread, and, with the disease originating in these conditions, has taken terrible toll among the migrants. Tuberculosis is widespread through the camps.

SAN FRANCISCO.

A BODY was lying there at the edge of the woods near the road, the morning sun streaming down on it and making it seem unreal, a shocking thing completely alien to this serene scene, to this crisp San Francisco day. The body was that of a middle-aged man. The head was bruised and bloody and the facial expression was contorted. A ripped shirt front with a stiffened brown blot on it showed he had been stabbed in the chest.

Except for birds which sang and fluttered about in the trees overhead the woods were quiet until an automobile came along. The motorist saw the body, and, after examining it, called the police. They found a black-handled knife and a blood-stained rock near the corpse. Around it the ground was trampled and torn, evidence of the desperate struggle the man had put up before he was killed.

The scene was Sutro Forest, near Twin Peaks, and in the days that followed the case became known as the "Twin Peaks murder mystery." The police for two days failed to get anywhere in their investigation. They failed to establish that fact which is usually vital in a murder inquiry—the dead person's identity. There were no clews to the man's identity in his clothes, and no missing report fitting the man had been received in the San Francisco area.

But the police had sent fingerprints of the dead man to the Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters at Washington. The bureau's files of tens of thousands of fingerprints has many times proved invaluable to police in identification of suspects or of bodies. The F. B. I. men found the prints were those of Carl Jackson Sr., a former prohibition agent of Kansas City, who had been fingerprinted when he took a civil service examination years before.

KANSAS CITY police were asked by wire to check on Jackson's movements. They replied that he had managed an apartment house, but several months before had left for San Francisco. Three days after the finding of the body the San Francisco police were trying to trace Jackson's movements here when a middle-aged woman and a young man walked into the office of Captain of Inspectors Charles Dullea. The young man's face was pallid and drawn and the woman was nervous and worried.

The young man was her son, she told Dullea. They had been to see the Public Defender, and he had advised them to tell their story to Dullea.

"I've been almost crazy with worry since Friday night," the woman said. "My boy drove away then with his father and came back alone. His face was all scratched and bleeding and he was simply hysterical."

"Who is your husband?" Dullea asked.

"Carl Jackson Sr."

"Oh," Dullea said softly. He pressed a button and called in a stenographer. The woman, Mrs. Edith Jackson, told him her story clearly and straightforwardly, while her son, Carl Jr., a 26-year-old electrician, sat silent.

Her husband was a violent, quarrelsome man who drank hard and abused her and their son, she said. To get away from him, mother and son, along with the son's wife, Hazel, had moved to San Francisco to live last February. They had lived happily enough until four nights before. Then there had come that ring of the door bell which they dreaded. It was her husband. He announced that he was moving in.

"You can't stay here," she told him. "We

An Operati

NEW YORK.

THERE is nothing that box office impresarios like better—even Metropolitan box office impresarios—than to have the public believe that their stars and featured players are great lovers off the stage as well as on. That makes for more business. On the other hand—there is nothing handsome Enio Pinza, Metropolitan Opera basso, who is a famous Don Juan on the stage, likes less than his growing off-stage reputation as a Don Juan. Why? Because it means jangled nerves, explosive quarrels and lawyers—too many lawyers. It means a constant pain in the neck.

That is why Enio hopes to have an end to the testimony of 121 New York witnesses this fall when the $200,000 breach of promise suit of dark-eyed, olive-skinned Octavio Picchioni comes to trial in San Francisco.

Ever since Enio arrived in New York with his wife, Augusta, and his daughter, Claudia, to sing roles here-baritone at the Met he has had more darned trouble because ladies saw invitations in his dreamy eyes and romance in his smile.

He has scarcely completed the task of proving to his wife that 17 years of marriage has not cooled his affections for her when he finds himself in trouble again.

Enio started out in life as a six-day bicycle racer. His little blue bike was well-known on the great velodromes of Italy. He was a good racer—but not good enough to win much prize money. One day he won a prize. A song welled up like a geyser.

"Bene!—What a voice!" his listeners exclaimed.

And in no time at all he was studying for the operatic stage. He was just about ready to make his debut when the war broke out. For four long years he served with the Alpini Mountain Division.

The close of the war found him starting again. In 1920 he married Augusta. Then he made his debut at the Teatro Reale in Rome. After several years there he went on to La Scala. Three seasons later he was signed by the Metropolitan.

Once he said, "Tos' swears get the girls and the bosses get the ax,"—but it didn't seem to apply to him.

For the girls liked Enio from the top of his curling black hair to the tip of his shining black shoes. He dressed joyfully. His suits were snappy. His shirts were striped. And his neckties were too priceless. His performances as Escamillo, the matador in Carmen, were enough to make many a lady stand in line at the box office.

The years rolled along and the money rolled in.

Then in 1935, Augusta filed a $250,000 suit accusing Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, German soprano star of the Metropolitan Opera, of alienating Enio's affections. When papers were served on the soprano during a performance of Aida, she tore them up and threw them in the process server's face. A judge then issued a civil order for Mme. Rethberg's arrest and lodgment in jail unless a $1000 bond were posted to guarantee her appearance. Her attorney hurried to the Sheriff's office and posted the bond to spare the diva from being hauled from a sick bed to which she had hysterically retired.

In her five-page affidavit filed in March, 1935, Signora Pinza recounted her woes:

An Operatic Don Juan—But Denies He's the Same in Real Life

NEW YORK.

THERE is nothing that box office impresarios like better—even Metropolitan box office impresarios—than to have the public believe that their stars and featured players are great lovers off the stage as well as on. That makes for more business. On the other hand—there is nothing handsome Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan Opera basso, who is a famous Don Juan on the stage, likes less than his growing off-stage reputation as a Don Juan. Why? Because it means jangled nerves, explosive quarrels and lawyers—too many lawyers. It means a constant pain in the neck.

That is why Ezio hopes to have on hand the testimony of 121 New York witnesses this fall when the $200,000 breach of promise suit of dark-eyed, olive-skinned Octavia Picchioni comes to trial in San Francisco.

Ever since Ezio arrived in New York with his wife, Augusta, and his daughter, Claudia, to sing roles bass-baritone at the Met he has had more darned trouble because ladies saw invitations in his dreamy eyes and romance in his smile.

He has scarcely completed the task of proving to his wife that 17 years of marriage has not cooled his affections for her when he finds himself in trouble again.

Ezio started out in life as a six-day bicycle racer. His little blue bike was well-known on the great velodromes of Italy. He was a good racer—but not good enough to win much prize money. One day he won a prize. A song welled up like a geyser. "Bene!—What a voice!" his listeners exclaimed.

And in no time at all he was studying for the operatic stage. He was just about ready to make his debut when the war broke out. For four long years he served with the Alpini Mountain Division.

The close of the war found him starting again. In 1920 he married Augusta. Then he made his debut at the Teatro Reale in Rome. After several years there he went on to La Scala. Three seasons later he was signed by the Metropolitan.

Once he said, "The tenors get the girls and the bassos get the ax,"—but it didn't seem to apply to him.

For the girls liked Ezio from the top of his curling black hair to the tip of his shining black shoes. He dressed joyfully. His suits were snappy. His shirts were striped. And his neckties were con passione. His performances as Escamillo, the matador in Carmen, were enough to make many a lady stand in line at the box office.

The years rolled along and the money rolled in.

Then in 1935, Augusta filed a $250,000 suit accusing Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, German soprano star of the Metropolitan Opera, of alienating Ezio's affections. When papers were served on the soprano during a performance of Aida, she tore them up and threw them in the process server's face. A judge then issued a civil order for Mme. Rethberg's arrest and lodgment in jail unless a $1000 bond were posted to guarantee her appearance. Her attorney hurried to the Sheriff's office and posted the bond to spare the diva from being hauled from a sick bed to which she had hysterically retired.

In her five-page affidavit filed in March, 1935, Signora Pinza recounted her woes:

"The continuous association of my husband and this defendant is a scandal known to various members of the operatic profession. This evidence will be introduced upon the trial.

"Almost a year ago the defendant set out to break up the relationship existing between my husband and myself, and has fully succeeded in fulfilling this insidious desire, and has completely alienated me from him.

"AT FIRST I believed he would listen to reason and I would be able to regain his affection. But judging with conversations I had with him this is impossible."

In the summer of 1934, she said, Pinza and Mme. Rethberg toured Europe together on concert engagements and when the Pinzas returned to New York on the liner Rex in October, 1934, the diva was also aboard.

"On this trip it became noticeable that my husband was in constant attendance upon her. This provoked much discussion among the passengers and caused me great humiliation and mental suffering."

The Signora said he took a suite at the Hotel Ansonia for her and Claudia, then 9, and rented other rooms for himself on another floor.

Signora Pinza asked the arrest of Mme. Rethberg to keep her from returning to Europe on the same boat with Pinza that spring. She said to reporters:

"I think maybe my husband would like to marry Miss Rethberg. He loves her—at least he thinks he does. But there will never be a divorce for I am an Italian woman—and Italian women do not divorce their men. I've loved Ezio ever since our marriage and I will always love him. I am sure he will come back to me if only for the sake of our baby."

And what did Mme. Rethberg say?

"Ridiculous!"

Her attorney, William M. Sullivan, had more to offer:

"Their friendship is limited to intense admiration for their respective abilities. They are both great stars of the opera and have appeared together in leading roles in this country and in Europe.

"Mme. Rethberg is happily married (to Albert E. Doman who spends most of his time in Switzerland). The Pinzas have not been so fortunate. My client will produce conclusive proof that long before she ever met Mr. Pinza he and his wife had separated. There were no affections to alienate. This lawsuit is utterly ridiculous and totally without merit. Mme. Rethberg is going to have vindication."

In fact, he added, the blue-eyed diva would summon as her witnesses Lily Pons, Gladys Swarthout, Lawrence Tibbett, Giovanni Martinelli, and the Ponselle sisters.

There was a sellout when Pinza sang the role of Golaud in "Pelleas et Melisande" that very night—and another when he sang Mephistopheles to Mme. Rethberg's Marguerite in "Faust" a few nights later.

A month after the suit was filed the operatic stars—and Signora Pinza—were ready for their annual spring exodus to Europe. Pinza was on the boat his wife had chosen. So was Mme. Rethberg. Augusta, seeing them come up the gangplank together, burst into tears and fled to her cabin. The kindly, gentle Gatti-Casazza took Pinza from Mme. Rethberg's side, whispered a few words in his ear and sent him on his way to Signora Pinza's cabin.

Gatti-Casazza called back reporters who followed.

"It would be better to let those two alone!"

When they emerged both were smiling. Mme. Rethberg joined them. And the rest of the trip was made pleasantly and in peace.

A month later it was announced that Signora Pinza had withdrawn her suit against Mme. Rethberg.

". . . and my client didn't pay a dollar," Attorney Sullivan exulted.

Mme. Rethberg and Pinza returned on the same boat in the fall of 1935. They sailed back to Europe—on the same boat—in the spring of 1936. They returned together, and, together, they toured the country.

They were together in San Francisco when Octavia Picchioni filed her suit. In fact, upon hearing the news Ezio fled to Mme. Rethberg's dressing room in a very bad humor indeed. For Octavia said she had just discovered he was married.

"Good Lord! Doesn't she read the papers!" the basso exploded. He added that Octavia must have a poor memory—for when they first met in New York some years ago she met his wife and daughter.

Octavia is the adopted daughter—now 29—of Dr. Roger Santini, Pacific Coast representative of an Indian steamship line.

She said it was love at first sight, and that Ezio proposed in October, 1933. A year later he told her he didn't want to see her again, she declared, but not until 1936 did she learn that Ezio had been married all the time.

Octavia is not like Signora Pinza. She has no intention of giving up her suit. That is why Ezio is getting the testimony of 121 witnesses to bolster up his case.

The only persons getting any fun out of it are the Met managers. The Met doesn't mind. If women want to hear Pinza sing, the Met certainly won't try to stop them.

The STIELOW CASE

How an Innocent Man Was Saved From the Chair Literally at the Eleventh Hour.

"The officials began to badger Stielow in an attempt to extort a confession from him."

By S. D. ARCHER

THE law as administered in some localities plays strange pranks, or those do who are charged with the execution of the law as the servants of Dame Justice. And a thing that may well puzzle and distress justice-loving people is the zeal of prosecuting attorneys in their efforts to obtain a conviction, and having obtained it, in bitterly resisting conclusive evidence of innocence when such evidence is subsequently presented. It goes without saying that they should display zeal in the performance of their duty to society, but it must ever remain a stain upon their humanity when their resistance is inspired by an ambition to be successful even when the price is the sacrifice of an innocent human being. The history of criminal trials has shown that now and then a prosecutor will try as doggedly to defeat the ends of justice where a case is appealed on exculpatory testimony as he tried in obtaining a conviction.

A case often referred to is that of the State of New York vs. Charles Stielow, which grew out of the murder of Charles Phelps and his elderly housekeeper, Miss Margaret Wolcott, in Orleans County, during the night of Sunday, March 21, 1915. The first man to discover the crime was Stielow, who reported that on rising early to perform the chores about the farmhouse which he and his family tenanted, he saw the stark form of Miss Wolcott stretched out in death in her night robe near his door, and that then on crossing the road to alarm Mr. Phelps, by whom he was employed, he was petrified to find the well-to-do farmer also dead—murdered—on the floor of his sitting room.

According to the Stielow version of the crime, he and his mother-in-law heard shots during the night and both got up. Stielow wanted to go out to investigate, but his mother-in-law insisted that he stay in the house in order to avoid exciting her daughter, Mrs. Stielow, who was expecting a baby. He went back to bed, but at 5 o'clock he was up again and made the discovery here related.

That was the story told by those in the Stielow house, the family consisting of the wife and two children, the mother-in-law, Mrs. Green, and Nelson Green, her son, besides Stielow himself.

The latter was a German, slow-thinking, of possibly subnormal intelligence, 38 years old. He had lost his farm and Mr. Phelps had come to his rescue when he faced a destitute future by offering him $400 a year, the house, his food, pasture for a cow, forage for a horse, and potatoes. Mr. Phelps was a highly respected citizen and was known to have money put away.

The motive for the double crime was robbery, as evidenced by the way the bureau drawers had been ransacked and their contents scattered about. Money known to have been kept in the house was missing, as well as a wallet, which was to play a significant part in the tragedy later.

Actually life had not entirely left Mr. Phelps when he was found, but he was unconscious and died in a hospital shortly after his arrival there. A .22-caliber weapon had inflicted the fatal wounds and he had been shot several times. Miss Wolcott had been shot through the heart, but, strangely enough, had been able to run a distance of 275 feet toward the Stielow house.

A bloodhound was put on the track, but it led to no result, whereupon a private detective was engaged and on April 21 this man and the sheriff arrested Stielow and his brother-in-law, Green, without a warrant on a charge that they had committed the double murder. This was based on nothing more tangible than that they had both testified at the inquest that they owned no firearms, whereas the detective found an old rifle and a rusty revolver hidden in the home of Green's brother, and one Albert Hamilton, a ballistic expert, testified that the bullets with which Phelps was killed were fired from the revolver.

Once they had him in prison, the officials, with the detective at their head, began to badger Stielow in an attempt to extort a confession from him, and from some incoherent and confused answers to their questions, produced what purported to be a confession. But though Stielow was a man whose intellect had been dulled by the hard labor as a farm hand which he had been compelled to perform since his twelfth year, he refused to sign this crude exhibit when shown to him, protesting his innocence strenuously with what limited command he had of the English language.

Every effort had been made to discover what Stielow had done with the money and where he had concealed the stolen wallet, but without result. There was actually nothing in evidence to connect him with the crime except the testimony he had given at the inquest regarding the possession of firearms and the reported identification of a bullet claimed to have been fired from the revolver. The bloodhound test had failed, a dictaphone placed in his cell had yielded no results, and the money he was supposed to have stolen, together with the wallet, had not yet been traced. Yet on practically this evidence Stielow was sentenced to be executed at Sing Sing—in fact, was twice so sentenced in the course of this remarkable case — while his brother-in-law, Nelson Green, advised that by pleading guilty to murder in the second degree he could escape the chair, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The legal aspect of the conviction bears a queer complexion. Though Stielow's attorney, David A. White, objected to the introduction to the unsigned confession, on the ground that what purported to be an admission of guilt on the part of the prisoner had been extorted by third degree methods, and though the presiding Judge declared that but for this evidence he would have instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal, Stielow was sentenced to die on September 5.

An appeal to the higher court ended in the sentence being confirmed and the execution was ordered to take place on April 9, 1916.

In the same consideration that dictates criticism of the indifference to human life that not infrequently marks the zeal of the prosecution in questionable instances, one must in fairness accord praise to those members of the bar who, acting for the defense with little hope of material reward, stick to a client till the last hope has vanished. Stielow's attorney obtained a two months' stay of execution, and it was of some advantage to the defense that both Warden Thomas Mott Osborne, and his deputy, Spencer Miller Jr., like the present warden of Sing Sing, Mr. Lawes, were on principle opposed to capital punishment. And it was Miller who from close observation of Stielow's behavior and speech, persuaded himself that the prisoner was not the deliberate and cold-blooded midnight assassin that he had been pictured at the trial. He called in an efficient alienist connected with the State Hospital at Poughkeepsie, who after examining Stielow, declared his readiness to testify that the condemned man was a harmless, subnormal individual, with an English vocabulary of not more than 150 words. Stielow therefore could not have dictated the confession attributed to him.

SO BEGAN a movement to forestall a possible miscarriage of justice, which with the lapse of time took on wide dimensions. Miller succeeded in interesting a New York lawyer, Stuart M. Kohn, in the case, whose activities were presently supported by a well-known woman lawyer, Mrs. Grace Humiston, as well as the late Mrs. Inez Mulholland Boissevain, Sophie Irene Loeb and Mischa Appelbaum, all more or less identified with humanitarian movements. These in turn enlisted the co-operation of a noted Buffalo detective, Thomas O'Grady, and operatives from the Val O'Farrell detective agencies.

It was Nelson Green, serving his life sentence in Auburn State Prison, who put the group on a "hot trail" by casually dropping a remark, informing Mrs. Humiston as she visited him in prison in pursuance of her mission of mercy, that he had seen an inmate who at one time lived in the vicinity of the scene of the murder, West Shelby. His name, he said, was Clarence O'Connell, who used to travel about with a peddler named King. He had heard O'Connell speak of King to the effect that the peddler had suddenly come into the possession of money "after the killing."

There had been rumors that a peddler might have committed the double murder, and Mrs. Humiston, cautioning Green not to mention to anyone what he had told her, at once applied herself to the task of looking into O'Connell's record. She learned that O'Connell had been arrested with one Ray Hall after the Phelps tragedy for the shooting of a man named Lewis Brown, the proprietor of a general store at Randolph, Cattaraugus County, New York, and for robbery, in September, 1914. King had appeared at O'Connell's trial to prove an alibi for him, but both O'Connell and Hall had been sentenced to serve a prison term of seven years at Auburn. O'Connell, seeing there was no escape for him, admitted his crime, but exonerated Hall and implicated King in the shooting and robbery, without however mending matters for Hall.

It is evident that O'Connell nursed a grudge against King for some reason which bulged larger in the case as time wore on.

The reprieve was drawing to a close, and though the little group who were championing Stielow's cause believed that they were on the trail of something tangible, they realized that in the end they would have to prove their man's innocence by putting the real murderer on the spot if they expected to free him. All they had to fight with at this time was the alienist's report of Stielow's dwarfed intelligence, but this served to bring about another stay of execution while an appeal was being launched for a new trial. The appeal, however, was denied.

So much depended on casting doubt on the confession extorted from Stielow by the detective first in the case that a trap was laid for the latter by the New York detective agency working in Stielow's interest, which successfully exposed him as untrustworthy in the handling of the case that had been assigned to him on a pretext that deceived him and led him to deceive his employers, to their entire satisfaction.

On the strength of doubt resting on the detective's credibility and other evidence, the group obtained several postponements of the execution, but a motion for a new trial was bitterly fought by the prosecution and denied on July 26, and the death date fixed for the 29th.

Only three days now intervened. The devoted workers in the cause of justice must either produce the actual murderer within that time or see their ward go to the chair.

A mass meeting at the Medina Town Hall, two days before the execution, was addressed by Mrs. Boissevain and Mr. Kohn. A petition for a commutation of sentence was circulated and largely signed. It was presented the next day to Governor Whitman. Regretfully he declined to act any farther in the matter, pointing out that he had stayed the execution three times. The same regretful response was made to Mrs. Boissevain, who made a special trip to Albany for the purpose of pleading with the Governor and persuading him to act favorably on the petition.

Only a few hours now remained until Stielow must take his seat in the electric chair, and Mrs. Boissevain was still in Albany at her wits' end to devise some way of saving the life of the man she was firmly convinced had not committed the crime for which he was to pay the penalty.

This was Friday evening, and the execution had been fixed for 5:45 Saturday morning!

At Sing Sing everything was prepared for the last act in the tragedy. Warden Osborne had helped Stielow's family financially to come from across the State to bid their husband and father farewell for the last time. They were then in the prison; the scene of parting had the usual touch of pathos when people connected by blood and marriage—and this was a family impoverished by misfortune which was about to lose its sole provider—pressed for the last time the hand of a man about to go to his death by the law's decree.

Mrs. Boissevain was in the station at Albany waiting for the evening train that was to carry her back to New York, when, helplessly groping for a straw of hope, she bethought herself of calling up Warden Osborne at Sing Sing. She was unable to communicate with either him or his deputy; but whoever answered her long distance call and heard her asking in agitated tones if anything could be done to stave off the execution, informed her that the only remaining authority with power to act was a Justice of the Supreme Court of New York, who could issue a stay of execution if reasonable cause could be shown.

ACTIVITIES truly hectic crowded the next few hours. Thanks to the telephone and automobile, almost instant communication was established among the members of the humane group of tireless workers that rallied them from distant sections of Greater New York and suburbs and found them at last together at the residence of Justice Charles L. Guy, who had consented to receive them at an eerie hour of the morning—4:15 by the clock. Only one hour and a half of life remained to Stielow—and Sing Sing was 27 miles away!

The group presented its case. Justice Guy listened, read the bill of exceptions, consisting among other items of a strong intimation that Erwin King, the aforesaid peddler and crony of O'Connell, was the man who by right ought to be this minute occupying Stielow's place, and expressed himself satisfied that the evidence warranted him in ordering a stay.

The Last of a Series of Articles on Famous Miscarriages of Justice.

And as the minutes were fast hastening the fatal hour for the condemned man, the Justice called Sing Sing on the long distance telephone and informed it of his decision. Even Sing Sing heaved a sigh of relief, but there were formalities to be observed, it reminded the Justice. The Warden must, under the law, have his written order in his possession, and the appointed hour was 5:45 to the minute! He had no discretion.

Justice Guy wrote out the order. Lawyer Korn took it. His car was waiting at the curb. He jumped in and stepped on the gas, knowing he must cover the distance in an hour.

It was a wild ride, but he arrived there a quarter after 5. The witnesses were assembled and everything was ready. The writ was read, the witnesses dismissed and Stielow informed and removed from the death cell. The stay was for only 24 hours, however, but with other legal minds co-operating in the presentation of arguments, Justice Guy again came to the rescue by ordering the postponement of the execution and setting August 23, 1916, for a hearing at Rochester, directing the prosecuting attorney for Orleans County to show cause why Stielow should not be granted a new trial.

Others meanwhile had been working on another angle of the case. Co-operating with Mrs. Humiston, Detective O'Grady, clinging doggedly to the trail of Erwin King, learned that the peddler had been seen in the vicinity of the murder at the time of its commission and had left that locality with great suddenness. O'Grady planned to arrest him, but fearing that he might be tampered with and influenced to damage the case if he were arrested on the murder charge, it was decided to seize him for his complicity in the shooting of Brown, the Cattaraugus County storekeeper, whose place he had helped to burglarize, as told by Clarence O'Connell. And on August 11 O'Grady arrested him.

King was furious when informed that he was taken into custody on O'Connell's statement, and after being sent to a cell and left to himself to think matters over, he suddenly expressed a wish to make a statement concerning O'Connell.

In the presence of Mrs. Humiston, Detective O'Grady and others, including a stenographer, King told how he and O'Connell had murdered Mr. Phelps and Miss Wolcott, obtained the money and the wallet and parted company immediately on leaving the premises, O'Connell in a buggy in which they had come from Medina to West Shelby—he later shot the horse for fear of its betraying him—and King going to Akron, where he slept in the Parker livery stable. He also stated that O'Connell had given him $100 of the money stolen from the Phelps house.

The confession struck the Orleans County prosecutor with the force of an electric shock and stirred him into tremendous activity. He promptly appeared on the scene, accompanied by his detective of the earlier story of the proceedings, and sent King to jail in Albion, 110 miles distant, in the detective's custody. Visitors were denied access to his presence, and there King had a sudden change of heart. He repudiated his confession, and being arraigned, pleaded not guilty and escaped what seemed his inevitable doom. The only serious inconvenience occruing to him from this episode was an order for his detention as a material witness.

Stielow was now in no better position than when he was awaiting his execution after parting from his family in Sing Sing, though the group prepared for the hearing before the Supreme Court, set for September 26, as determined as ever, and ready to meet the issue with every weapon at its command. Lest they "blow" the case for the prosecution, it is inferred, King was kept incommunicado at Albion as O'Connell was at Auburn. Additional incriminating evidence against the latter was revealed by the newspapers, but the witnesses abruptly vanished, and it was rumored that O'Connell would be pardoned.

Stielow denied his guilt when arraigned before the Supreme Court, but he was sentenced to death for the second time, King's confession being dismissed as a pathological delusion of no consequence.

HIS execution was set for the week of December 11. And while he was on his way back to the death cell at Sing Sing, King was set at liberty and was paid a $30 witness fee!

But they had not reckoned with Detective O'Grady. As King stepped into the open air, he was waiting for him with a warrant charging him with perjury in connection with the O'Connell case, and the peddler was locked up in the Little Valley calaboose. Nor was O'Grady done with him at that point. He planted a shrewd assistant in the jail on the nominal charge of vagrancy, and this man, Thomas J. Fogarty, showed himself so sympathetic to King that he won his confidence and King trusted him with the delivery of a number of communications to friends on the outside.

King had no doubt that O'Grady was on his trail and that he had not heard the last of the Phelps murder, and in this conjecture he was right. O'Grady had gone to Akron to confirm King's statement in his confession that he had spent the night there after the murder and slept in a livery stable. This statement was confirmed by a hotel and saloon keeper named Kearney, and by Joseph Kinney, who had slept with King in the stable. Kearney moreover stated that

A MARKED [illegible] for [illegible] brooding landscapes, his freshness in writing and his love of adventuring in bleak lands is Rockwell Kent's superior talent for getting into scraps. Not just mere face to face personal spats. Nothing as trite as that. Kent, when he girds for war, does battle with big opponents, like railroads, steamship lines, commissions, academies, even governments. Much of the time his outraged and bellicose protests come to the public eye by way of letters to newspapers—The New York Times letter column just wouldn't be the same without Rockwell Kent—but when cornered he is dangerous and apt to raise an unholy din in the courts.

The latest controversy in which the artist is involved is over that inscription on a mural he did in the new postoffice building in Washington, showing the delivery in Puerto Rico of air mail from Alaska. The letter being read by a quartet of black girls was in the Kuskokwim Eskimo dialect. "Puerto Rico," it said, "Miuniera ilaptiuvum Ka ha chimmeuliqiut angayoraaqut. Amna kitchimin attumin chuli wapiqum itti iearaatic,ut."

As there aren't any Southern Alaska Eskimos loafing around the new postoffice, nobody there knew what the letter meant, but thought it probably said something like, "Hello, how are you?" and it was a very nice letter, all in all. But one day Vihljamur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, came along, read it, and said the words meant: "To the people of Puerto Rico. Our friends. Go ahead. Let us change chiefs. That alone can make us equal and free."

As there has been considerable trouble and bloodshed over the Puerto Rican independence movement, a lot of people became concerned over the letter. It looked to them as if Rockwell Kent had sneaked up behind the eagle in his own postoffice and pulled his imperialistic tail feathers. Kent supported Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, last year, in fact was chairman of the Committee of Professional Groups for Browder, and that seemed to those people to add a sinister connotation to the affair.

(BORIS DE SKOSSYREFF ROCKWELL KENT)

'Prince of the Valleys of Andorra'

Boris de Skossyreff.

MARSEILLE, France. BORIS DE SKOSSYREFF, who carries a monocle in his right eye and a vacuous stare in both eyes, is not going to be expelled from France although several Government officials are so tired of getting his petitions concerning his "lost throne" and his pleas for employment suitable for a baron that they are past the shoulder-shrugging stage. Two things save this gentleman of leisure from being exiled: He is a man without a country and he is the husband of a Frenchwoman.

The earliest facts concerning Boris' opera-comic career date back to 1932. At Palma, capital of Majorca, largest of Spain's Balearic Islands, De Skossyreff appeared in the little American colony there calling himself a captain (though he would not reveal in what army), the owner of a yacht (though he seemed unable to locate it) and heir to several estates (but seldom had enough cash for the dinner check). Nevertheless "Baron" Boris was popular. He eked out a livelihood by acting as a commercial agent.

In 1933, Mrs. Florence Marmon, an American, arrived at Palma. She had been divorced. Soon it became apparent that a friendship had sprung up between the "Baron" and the American woman who, incidentally, lived on alimony payments from her former husband. Nobody took them very seriously, however, and it wasn't long before the "Baron" and his American friend left for Andorra without much warning. The "Baron" had an idea that he thought would recoup his lost 38 years.

Wedged in between Spain and France, the little mountain republic of Andorra is an autonomous state. It consists of a number of mountain valleys picturesquely guarded by the snow-capped peaks of the Pyrenees. In its 191 square miles dwell 5200 Andorrans. Andorra's independence is guaranteed by France and Spain. The country is governed by its Council General, numbering 24 and for centuries elected from the leading land-owning families. In the autumn of 1933, Boris de Skossyreff and Mrs. Marmon appeared among the shrewd, if a bit unworldly, peasants of the little mountain country. Speedily, Boris' friendly ways and Mrs. Marmon's generous supply of American currency impressed the Andorrans. And in December, 1933, the Council General conferred Andorran citizenship on Boris, waiving the usual requirements which chiefly consist of marriage to a native woman and a trial period of 12 months to determine "if the applicant is sober and honest."

Having been made a citizen, Boris surprised the Council General with plans to usher in the dawn of a new era. He suggested, among other points, the creation of a director of tourist and travel propaganda, of a controller of hotels, and of a delegate from Andorra to the League of Nations. He requested that he himself be appointed to these offices, basing his fitness on a "Doctorate of Moral and Political Sciences obtained from Oxford."

All this had overtaxed the patience of the Andorrans. The Council General expelled him from the country in April, 1934, after revoking his citizenship. Irate, Boris quit Andorra threatening dire consequences.

With Mrs. Marmon acting as his "secretary-general and confidential aid," Boris immediately established headquarters at Seo de Urgel, a little Spanish town across the border from Andorra. After due deliberation, he issued a manifesto in which he proclaimed himself "King Boris I, Prince of the Valleys of Andorra and Regent of His Majesty the King of France." By the latter he meant of course the Duc de Guise, pretender to the French crown. At the same time, Boris proclaimed himself "Sovereign Prince of Andorra and censor of the faith." "We sent our herald," he added, "to signal with the sound of the trumpet in the most frequented plazas of the parishes the reading in a high voice of the following." The "following" was seven articles which dismissed the Council General, called a general election for August 1, named as Provisional President Senor Pedro Torres, one of the two Deputies of Andorra, declared a general amnesty for social offenses with a revocation of the "Baron's" expulsion thrown in.

A coup d'etat on the part of "King Boris" was now expected daily. Once, the Spanish police at Seo de Urgel frustrated Boris' proposed march on Andorra by threatening to take the trousers off him and lock them up. Boris continuously "consulted with his ministers," proclaimed a new constitution, and attended to other strenuous affairs of state.

The "King" granted a few personal interviews which invariably had to be arranged through Mrs. Marmon. Reporters asking about his background were told that he was a Russian, had obtained the barony from the hands of the Dutch Queen, had served during the World War with a British armored car unit on the Russian front and there won the captaincy and had now come to liberate his "faithful Andorran subjects." His occupation he gave as professor of English and physical culture and insisted that under his reign, every Andorran would receive free education as well as all-around athletic instruction. Finally, he added that any attempt to interfere with his plans would prompt a naval demonstration in the Mediterranean by the fleet of the United States and those of two European Powers.

At Madrid, however, a cabinet meeting on July 21, 1934, decided that Boris had made nuisance enough of himself. Undaunted by Boris' "500 volunteers scattered through the Provence and Roussillon in France and through Catalonia, Aragon and Majorca in Spain," the Spanish Government sent two Catalan detectives from Barcelona to Seo de Urgel. They immediately arrested "the King," who vainly protested that he had tried to protect Spain's interest in Andorra. Boris' last "official" act was to pose for a photograph in a berretina, or native Andorran headdress, and to order 2000 prints as souvenirs for "my faithful Andorrans." The order never was filled as strong doubts of the King's financial standing had developed.

While Mrs. Marmon was permitted to stay at the hotel in Seo de Urgel, Boris was returned to Barcelona on July 22. Undisturbed, he enjoyed a hearty meal at the police station and told reporters that arrests "are but minor though necessary incidents in the career of a militant prince."

From Barcelona he was to proceed to Madrid and stand trial there as an undesirable alien. However, when he did not arrive at the Spanish capital the following day, great anxiety prevailed as to "the King's" fate. Dismayed at the prospect of a third-class journey by rail with the detectives, Boris had insisted that he travel in state. They gave him 24 hours to wire Mrs. Marmon for the difference in fare. But when the money failed to come forth, the detectives took the "King" to the capital, third-class and without further ado.

There was another point which the Spanish police wanted to settle, and that was the "King's" nationality. While Boris admitted his Russian birth, he insisted on Dutch barony and citizenship. The police scoffed at that and classified him as a Pole.

Tried at Madrid on September 19, he was sentenced to one year in the concentration camp established by the Spanish Government for beggars and vagrants. But Boris appealed and when his case came up at Madrid on October 31, he appeared in court in prison overalls, monocle and his usual dignified poise. A week later, his appeal succeeded. He was sentenced to immediate expulsion.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Marmon had been persuaded by relatives and friends in the United States to forget him.

On November 22, Skossyreff was released from the Madrid prison and took the train, motored and, for the last 12 miles, walked to the Portuguese frontier. But the Spaniards had refused him a passport and the Portuguese took him to Lisbon jail.

RELEASED, he lived at Lisbon for the next six months until in May, 1935, he was ordered to leave the country.

Next, Boris turned to France. But on arriving at Marseille, his passport was found to lack the necessary visa by France's Consul at Lisbon. Whereupon he found himself in a French jail and stayed there for three months. The French officials were puzzled. What could they do with him?

The French continued to be puzzled until April, 1936. In the meantime, Boris stayed in Marseille and married a Frenchwoman by the name of Marie Lavallu. Shortly after the wedding, Boris felt again the urge of wanderlust. By easy stages, the couple traveled to Lisbon where they arrived by the middle of May. But the Portuguese were prepared for Boris and made him move on. So Boris and his wife went to Spain.

They hadn't been there two months before the civil war broke out and they were speedily evacuated. Back in France, Boris again constituted a puzzle to the authorities. And recently the "King of Andorra" has been living near Marseille in much less than kingly circumstances.

We have promised all small peoples the right to determine their own freedom. Can there be anything wrong in recognizing Puerto Rico's appeal?"

Dr. Rafael Martinez Nadal, President of Puerto Rico's Senate, retorted that elections have shown the majority of Puerto Ricans do not want independence, and he would demand that the picture be removed. Not for political reasons. Oh, no. Those were insignificant. But because it was insolent, funny-paper stuff. "We are not Negritos in Puerto Rico," the President protested. But at this writing Kent is winning. The mural is like Massachusetts—"There she stands."

Kent doesn't usually win, but he fights hard. His biggest campaign was a single-handed one against the Delaware and Hudson railroad which he waged for three years against costly legal talent before he was defeated, but not silenced. The railroad abandoned its branch line from Plattsburg to Ausable Forks, New York, where Kent has his home amid the Adirondacks. The town's 10,000 people hadn't provided much business, the railroad said. The trains averaged only three passengers a trip. One train made 40 trips without passengers and another 15.

But it was an injustice, Kent decided, and gleefully he set out to indulge his passion for vocal violence. His gray eyes glittering under his high bald forehead, his lean and soft-chinned face intense with pleasure, even his little mustache quivering with excitement, he broadcast thundering pamphlets and audacious manifestos. He appealed eloquently to the newspapers, to the Public Service Commission, to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. He hired a lawyer. In a hearing, the transcript of which ran 1400 pages, he proved that the service had been abandoned with consent of the commission. So it was restored after a year, and Kent, crowing with exultation, went off to Greenland. One can imagine that he pictured himself bucking the railroad like one of his figures in his black and white drawings—a man alone, against the stark and forbidding mountains and the pitiless sky, defying the elements. But when the artist was safely out of the way in the North, the service was again discontinued. When he found out about the foul trick on his return, he stormed into the courts again pestering the railroad with a suit to compel it to pay compensation for its securities involved in the abandoned line. But he was again thrown for a loss.

In 1915, when he was still a struggling artist, he was evicted by the British Government from Newfoundland as a German spy suspect. His offenses, he relates, were that he was caught reading a German translation of Bjornson, that he wrote a letter in German to a friend in Wisconsin, and that he remarked he doubted if the English would capture Berlin in a fortnight. When deported, he charged the United States Government with failure to protect its nationals abroad, but was quelled after bombarding the office of the Secretary of State with protests.

In 1926, he withdrew his paintings from the Worcester Art Museum as a protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. He attached no public importance to the gesture, he said, but merely thought it necessary to his own integrity to have nothing to do with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Once he attached a whole ocean liner in a suit he filed when one of his sons, then 14 years old, was landed at the wrong port of call. He has indulged in several verbal brawls with the United States Customs over attempts to collect duty on his own paintings as "articles of foreign manufacture"—and won them. He started a quarrel over the award of the Howard Bok advertising prize, wrote irate letters to newspapers ridiculing the building of Gothic churches in modern New York, assailed the "stuffed shirts," as he called them, of the Metropolitan Art Museum and the National Academy, accusing them of being backward, started a society, "Against," to battle standpatters in the world of art, protested to the newspapers in 1934 over the defacing of Mount Whiteface in the Adirondacks with a tower, and last April emphatically declared in favor of Spanish Loyalists by giving the American Friends of Spanish Democracy a $600 prize awarded him by the National Academy of Design. Once 25 years ago when he was working for a contractor, he went to Minnesota to boss an important building job. When the workmen went on strike, Kent joined the union and walked out with them, and handled with great relish a dual role as representative of the company and leader of the strike.

Kent was born at Tarrytown, New York, 55 years ago. His father was a mining engineer, lawyer, and distinguished flutist. Little Rockwell's art career began when he was 14, and began to turn out hand-painted china, with Delft blue windmills, pansies and ships. "I was without a peer in that wonderful branch of art," he says.

AN AUNT who was an artist persuaded his mother to take him to live near a school conducted on Long Island by William M. Chase so he could study there. He made such progress that the family became alarmed. They were too poor to afford an artist, they said. They called him before a council, told him solemnly of the evils of the life of an artist, how they were all lazy and debt-ridden and all surely died of slow starvation. As a bribe, another aunt agreed to pay his expenses at Columbia University if he could win a scholarship in architecture. He won it in a week. Although he led most of his classes, he wasn't absorbed in architecture. He did learn a lot through draftsmanship—he became a specialist in perspective and it became the basis for his mastery of the line.

Meanwhile, he attended art exhibits. One day, when he was 21, he attended an exhibit at the Pennsylvania Academy. He felt that he could do a better painting than any there, and as he waited for a train at the Philadelphia station that night, made up his mind to be an artist. So he went to the Chase School of Art in New York with a family uproar dinning in his ears. He became an apprentice to the great Abbott Thayer, who was painting in New Hampshire. After he half finished a painting, Thayer would have an apprentice copy it, then experiment on the copy until he got the effect he wanted. But when Thayer saw Kent's copying, he would let him do no more. The boy's talent was too great, he said. Kent learned a lot from Thayer. The master once got a rugged effect on a rock by sweeping the wet paint with a house broom in great strokes. He bullied Kent out of the then fashionable technique of showing distance by making the background fuzzy and indistinct by making him draw distant hills as he actually saw them—the sharpest line of all.

When he was 23, Kent submitted two oil paintings of a New Hampshire mountain to the National Academy and they were accepted. Then he went to Monhegan, Maine, and lived among the rugged lobstermen as one of them. He built his own house and toiled at the oars 10 hours a day except when it was too rough to go out. Then he painted. One of the works he did then is now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

But he was yet far from financial success. He sold no more paintings for years after that. In 1909, he married a niece of Thayer's, Kathleen Whiting, and came back to New York to support her by working in an architect's office. He became a familiar figure in the tea "shoppes" and studios of Greenwich Village, but his living was made variously in office work, as a grave digger, a well driller, a construction boss, a carpenter and a fisherman.

Finally in 1914 his imagination was caught by pictures of Newfoundland. He went to an art dealer who had been trying to sell some of his canvases and asked for $500. Kent told the dealer to take paintings of that value in return. As the artist's jaw dropped in horror, the dealer took 13, frames and all. A few years later some of those pictures sold for $3500 each. In Newfoundland, before he was kicked out, he painted some pictures that attracted much attention when he brought them to New York. One, "The Seiners," was the first modern American painting to get into the famous Frick collection. As his work started to sell, Kent began to invest in his own pictures, but found he couldn't afford to buy them don't want you. We came 2000 miles to get away from you."

THE MURDER AT TWIN PEAKS

Then he asked her for money, she said, and threatened to kill her if she refused. She picked up her purse and walked outside with him. Half an hour later, Carl Jr., who had remained in the house, came outside looking for them. He led his mother back to the apartment, then got his automobile and drove away with his father in it.

Three hours later, the mother said, her son came home alone. His hands were bruised and bleeding and his face bled from long scratches.

"I pleaded with him to tell me what had happened, but I couldn't get a word out of him," she said. "He was hysterical and it was hard for me to get him off to sleep."

In the three days that followed, her son remained silent, and she brooded over it. She heard no more from her husband, and although she apparently had not read of the Twin Peaks murder mystery, she feared the worst.

Her conscience had not let her rest, she said. Finally she felt she had to do something, so she went to the Public Defender with her son.

Dullea told the son his father had been found stabbed and beaten to death. Carl Jr., would only say, "I am innocent of any crime." In hours of questioning, he refused to go into details.

This case strangely paralleled one on the other side of San Francisco Bay, in Oakland. There elderly Mrs. Julia Page had just made a statement against her son, Captain Donald Page, arrested on a charge of killing his 16-year-old son. Captain Page, a World War veteran, had asserted the shooting was accidental, but his mother, also urged by her conscience, told police that Captain Page had been drinking and she was skeptical of his explanation.

DETECTIVES tried to trace young Jackson's movements on the night of the killing. A hat was found near the scene. Carl denied it was his, and said he couldn't remember if he had worn a hat that night. Detectives questioned the young man incessantly. Finally he weakened, became increasingly nervous, then broke. He confessed he had killed his father, but said it was in self-defense.

The day before the killing, his father came to the son's place of employment. "I came out to put some material on a truck and saw my father standing outside," Carl said. "I got very nervous because I have always feared him. He had beaten me many times and I had seen him strike my mother. I tried to avoid him, but he told me he wanted me to help him.

"When I finished work I came out and he was still there. I got into a truck and started to drive away. My father jumped on the running board and said that if I would not help him he would go to my mother and make her take him in. Later I called mother and warned her to be prepared; that he probably would go to our house and annoy her. He had been in the East and threatened my sister. She told him she couldn't help him, so he had come to San Francisco.

"The next evening the door bell rang and I saw him coming down the hall. I was frightened and I started to phone the police. Then my mother came in and asked me not to call the police. She said she would try to pacify him. She went out. I waited about 15 minutes and went out to look for them. I walked and then drove around the neighborhood for some time before I saw them. I drove my mother back to the house, and told her I would drive my father downtown and talk to him.

"As we drove away, my father became abusive and threatened me. He told me that unless I bought him a pint of whisky, he would take my money away from me. So I drove to a liquor store and got him a pint of whisky. He drank it while I drove around, and became more abusive. He told me he could lick me, and grabbed my arm away from the wheel.

"When he grabbed me a second time, I had to stop the car. He got out and made me get out. Then we started to quarrel. He picked up a large rock and started for me. We struggled. I remember striking him with my fist. I think I struck him in the face. Either he dropped the rock or I took it from him, I don't remember which.

"Then he pulled out a knife and lunged at me.

"I don't remember what happened after that. I don't remember anything until I woke late the next morning, in a sort of daze. My mother told me she had given me some sleeping tablets.

"All day she kept asking questions about my father. I couldn't remember what happened. I didn't even remember that I hadn't put my car away.

"For two days my mother kept asking me questions. I couldn't answer her. Then she asked me to drive her downtown, and took me here."

The police were not satisfied with his story, and were especially dubious of the son's lapse of memory. They doubted he could have reached the remote section of Sutro Forest where the body was found in the short time he said he had been riding with his father. Neither were they able to find the suit Carl said he wore when the killing took place. So they took Jackson over and over his story for hours. But he stuck doggedly to his account all through the gruelling examination.

He was taken to the city prison. Next day his sister, Betty Jackson, who had also fled from Kansas City to escape their father, arrived in San Francisco not knowing of the father's death and Carl's arrest. She was taken at once to her brother's cell by his mother and wife, and embraced Carl affectionately.

A Coroner's jury returned a verdict of "unpremeditated murder" against Carl. Then the grand jury indicted him on a charge of murder.

With the gallows or life imprisonment threatening him, Jackson has been cheered by the support of 34 Kansas City friends of the family who have mailed a petition to the grand jury.

"We know Carl Jackson Jr. and his mother and have known them for 10 years," the petition said. "We always knew they had high moral character and we also know there was constant fear of Carl Jackson Sr. We know it is not in the character of young Jackson to commit any criminal acts. He always was fighting to free his own soul. For the sake of his wife and mother, we ask you to free him today."

But young Jackson will have to stand trial before a jury. The Public Defender is preparing to ask his acquittal on a plea of self-defense and, possibly, of temporary insanity. And his mother, with her conscience satisfied that she has done her duty toward the law by telling the truth as she knew it, is standing staunchly by him in his ordeal.

tral valley. Scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, mumps, pneumonia, whooping cough, typhoid fever and dysentery sweep through the camps. Impetigo, boils, sties and conjunctivitis were recently epidemic. Infantile paralysis is scattered through the transient settlements—and almost every case is fatal, because the State's facilities for coping with the disease are fully occupied by the needs of legal residents. And infant mortality from diarrhea and enteritis among the newcomers to the valley counties is, according to health officers, approximately four times the national average.

Here is the disease record for one week among 91 families in the Federal camp at Arvin, where conditions are immeasurably better than in the squatter "jungles" where most of the migrants live: Pneumonia, three cases; scarlet fever, one; suspected scarlet fever, three; dysentery, seven; San Joaquin fever, four; measles, three; mumps, two; blood poisoning, two; tuberculosis, seven; infantile paralysis, three; boils, nine; Rocky Mountain spotted fever, one; fever undetermined, two; serious diarrhea, 15; impetigo, 10; conjunctivitis, 11.

Death becomes a common phenomenon to the children of the camps—children who are growing up, most of them, virtually without a childhood, as they graduate from babyhood to work in the fields. They are continually seeing playmates sicken and die, and then lie, white-faced and still, dressed in their faded overalls, in linen-lined boxes, about to disappear forever in the nearest potter's field.

Says Dr. E. R. Zumwalt, county health officer at Tulare: "We can't find tuberculosis fast enough to care for it. We have no facilities. We try to send the ill ones to their home states, but they refuse to return. The county sanatorium is filled with California residents and has a waiting list." Dr. Zumwalt also says that pharmacists of the town tell him they have sold as much medicine for the treatment of venereal diseases in the last year as in the previous eight years combined.

In Madera County, there were 6000 cases of influenza in January and February of this year, and almost 100 of them developed into pneumonia. The health service, under Dr. Lee A. Stone, was able to hold down the deaths to 15. The county, with a resident population of 17,000, has 10,000 persons of the migratory labor class. Between January and July of this year more than 6000 of the migrants applied for relief. The county has spent $120,000 this year to add to school facilities for newcomers and transients. And 10,000 more persons are expected to arrive before the end of the year.

For work seekers keep coming in a steady stream to California. This fall the great Central Valley's squatter population is expected to be increased by 20,000. And there are not nearly enough jobs now to go around, despite the fact that this region has greatly increased its crop acreage in the last few years. Because of the influx of workers from outside the State, agricultural jobs are harder to get now than they were several years ago. Furthermore, too many of these people who have come hopefully to California apparently fail to realize that a large part of the farm work is seasonal. Even those who are able to get jobs can't make enough during the working season to support them during the subsequent idle period.

THEY must also face the fact that they must have lived in the State for three years to be eligible for California State relief. It's a dark prospect for the newcomers—particularly for the children.

Why did they come? A good many say they read advertisements back home for workers in California. M. W. Skelton, Kern County welfare and county relief director, says: "The growers prefer the migratory workers to permanent residents as laborers. The relief client may feel that if he doesn't like his job he can go back on the dole. The out-of-State workers must stay on the job."

State and local authorities are doing what they can. They are making special efforts to help the children of the migrants, not only with medical care, but with education as well. But most of the youngsters can't be reached for enrollment in the public schools. Those who are placed in school bring about another and peculiarly unhappy complication in a deplorable situation. The ill-dressed, ill-nourished boys and girls from the poverty-stricken camps are often ostracized by their more fortunate school fellows, so that school attendance becomes for them a humiliating ordeal and another hardship is laid on their young lives.

The explanation for such treatment lies in fear rather than snobbishness. Various public and semi-public agencies have stated that the children from the camps spread disease, and parents of other children naturally are afraid their offspring will catch some dread ailment from contact with the disease carriers. They warn their youngsters to keep away from the tattered ones, and children unfortunately are inclined to go beyond such warnings. The children of the migrant workers are not only shunned, but jeered at. The few who are fortunate enough to get schooling learn to listen miserably for the epithet, "Pea-picker."

back. The value of one shot up from $200 to $1500 in a year.

In 1918 Kent decided to go to Alaska. To support his wife and children during that time, he incorporated himself at $5000, with friends buying the stock at $100 a share and paying him a salary as general manager. Taking a 9-year-old son with him, he spent a year in Alaska, at a lonely hole called Fox Island in Resurrection Bay. He built a cabin, swam in the icy waters, and both he and his son painted. His exhibition of black and whites, and oil paintings, powerful, stark pictures of the cold wind and gloomy sky and sea and stern rocks, was a sensation when he returned. He wrote a book about his stay, "Wilderness." Rockwell Kent, Incorporated, paid a 20 per cent dividend and he bought up the stock.

Then in 1922 he shipped down to Chile as a freight clerk on a tramp steamer and for $20 bought a derelict lifeboat in the Sailor's Graveyard of Punta Arenas, at the southern tip of South America. After living two months aboard the hulk, caulking and preparing it, he set off with a wild Swede to round the Horn. They were crazy, they were told. They got as far as Admiralty Sound when terrific storms forced them to abandon their five-ton sailing vessel. They hiked to the southern shore. As they went they met cannibals, sailors, missionaries, and two escaped murderers, and Kent painted the desolate bays and the gaunt, forbidding mountain ranges. When he got back to New York, the paintings were sold at good prices, and his book, "Voyaging," was a success.

BUT now his home was not. His wife, mother of his five children, divorced him in 1926 at Nice, France, charging desertion and incompatibility. The same year he married his present wife, Frances, an interior decorator. They deserted Greenwich Village and built a large and comfortable house in the Adirondacks—a place with 200 acres, horses and cattle, oak rafters, broad windows letting in the northern light, with a sweeping view of the hills, and wolves near enough for the Kents to hear their moonlight howling.

In 1928 Kent took a voyage to Greenland with two young men. Their sloop broke up on the rocks 40 miles from Godthaab, southern capital of Greenland. They had to swim ashore. Kent remained among the Eskimos and Danish colonists, returned to write "N by E," a best seller even before publication, and illustrated a new edition of Moby Dick with woodcuts. He made other trips to Labrador, and two more to Greenland in 1931 and 1934. He built his own sod house, as usual, and had an Eskimo housekeeper, after whom he named his next book, "Salamina." His wife visited him for a short time on his first trip, and a 14-year-old son went with him on his second. Kent painted pictures as mystical as Blake's poetry, drew humorous sketches for his book, mixed in the settlement life, and quarreled with his housekeeper—who broke his finger persuading him to stay home nights.

At home, Kent pretends to lead a Spartan existence. He plays a phonograph with terrific loudness at 5 a. m. to get everyone up, and to show his farmers he's no sissy—and indulges in a good deal of daytime sleeping. He hunts, rides, throws a medicine ball and wrestles with a police dog by day. By night, he reads from a well-stocked library, plays good music on a phonograph, and not-so-bad music on a flute, shows what good whisky is for and plies his friends with applejack from a jug which is constantly being filled, tells Rabelaisian yarns and sings booming songs about sailor men and ladies of easy virtue. He is healthy, strong and gay. And although he boasts of being a vegetarian, his friends accuse him of sneaking rare beef from the ice-box in the small hours.

King had spent money freely and had left a wallet with him, which was not then in his possession, having been called for on an order from King.

A letter entrusted to Fogarty, and promptly turned over to O'Grady, asked a cousin to call on Kearney and persuade him to say "no" if anyone tried to find out if King "had left a wallet and some stuff there."

A sentence in the letter hinted pretty broadly at an "understanding" with some one in authority that if he retracted his confession the favor would be reciprocated, since the letter closed with the words: "I did what he wanted me to do for him, and he told me he would do it for me." The cryptic reference was not to Kearney.

King's worry must have steadily increased, for in a few days he wrote to "Friend Joe Kinney," that if Kinney told on them (he used the plural), he would send him to the chair. "You know what I said to you at Parker's livery. No one knows but you, and you can save me from the chair."

O'Grady was already in possession of the information referred to by King. Kinney had told him that on the night they spent together in the livery stable, the peddler had muttered in his sleep something to the effect that he didn't care whether he went to the chair or not, and Kinney had twitted him about it when he awoke.

Another letter was to a man who had befriended him once upon a time. In this communication the peddler requested him to see Kearney and prevail upon him to keep silent. "Tell Kinney to say I said nothing about the wallet or who got it. . . ."

"You had better see Mrs. O'Connell. Tell her to say she gave it to me, that it was not the Phelps pocketbook, for it would be just as bad for Clarence as for me. For God's sake do this and save me."

Still another, to the cousin, conceded, "Now they have got me if Kinney squeals on me about the Phelps case and what I said to him."

But the courts, which had swallowed Stielow's unsigned confession, now ignored King's stenographically reported admission of guilt, supported by reputable witnesses!

THE last wish of Mrs. Boissevain on her death bed was that Governor Whitman would commute Stielow's sentence, and in December the Governor did commute the sentence in accordance with her dying request. In granting him life, he declared that though he believed Stielow guilty, he so far compromised with his conscience as to admit that there was a reasonable doubt.

Meanwhile a leading New York paper had become interested in the case through Miss Loeb, and when the Governor saw copies of the King letters in bold print, he ordered an investigation and appointed a prominent lawyer as Deputy Attorney-General to conduct it. This former District Attorney, George H. Bond, of Syracuse, began his inquiry with a conviction that Stielow was guilty, as also was Green; but this belief presently broke down under weight of contrary evidence.

An appropriation of $25,000 by the State Legislature, recommended by the Governor, relieved the county of the cost.

Bond, now firmly convinced that justice had miscarried, in his argument before the grand jury of Orleans County literally tore the evidence on which the verdict had been found to shreds. The confession, he contended, had been made to order, the dictaphone placed in Stielow's cell had developed no atom of compromising evidence; Miss Wolcott would not have run to Stielow's house after being shot if Stielow had shot her, and he proved that the revolver in the case had not fired the fatal bullet, as was demonstrated by scientific tests made by ballistic experts in New York City. He showed that O'Connell had spoken of the murder on the following morning before he could have known it unless he had been present.

And now King made affidavit that his confession was true, and signed a waiver of immunity. The grand jury heard his plea of guilty and examined him in regard to every detail.

With all this and sundry more evidence of the guilt of King and O'Connell and the innocence of Stielow, that august body ignored the case and presented no true bill.

King had offered to plead guilty, but was not allowed to, and with this privilege denied him, the slate was wiped clean, he was set free and—disappeared.

When in the early part of 1918, the Governor was furnished with the Bond report, he read therein some revealing facts about the attitude of a certain community toward a fellow being who, the evidence showed, had been all but railroaded to the electric chair. It distinctly mentioned "local prejudices" as influencing the action of the jury, though by way of parenthesis, it is but just to state that several of the grand jurors did vote to find indictments.

Mr. Bond's report convinced the Governor that New York State had by a very narrow margin been saved from the disgrace of hounding an innocent man to death. On May 8, 1918, Stielow and Green were set at liberty.

Hold a strip of Soft-Weve Waldorf to the light. See for yourself how much smoother, cleaner, safer it is! A piece of soft cloth wouldn't be more gentle to use!

There are no "humps" to scratch and irritate tender skins. No "thin spots" to make it insecure. It's easy to see why more women buy it than any other kind of toilet tissue!

There's double value, too, in the new Soft-Weve Waldorf roll. It lasts several days longer. Women and children—those who need special care—are particularly thankful for the new Soft-Weve Waldorf. Order a supply tomorrow!

POST-DISPATCH PASTE-UPS

THE WOOLLY RHINO

By WALTER DAHLGREN

The Woolly Rhinoceros lived long, long ago, when much of the world had a more or less glacial climate (very cold).
The creature ranged over vast distances—extending over North America, most of Europe and parts of Asia. He was not unlike our modern African Rhinos except that his horns were larger and that he was covered with a heavy coat of matted fur and hair. It was because of this heavy warm covering that the animal was able to survive the extreme cold.
The two long sharp horns on his nose were adequate defense against attack by such ferocious flesh eaters as the cave bear and cave lion.
Similar to the Woolly Mammoth, herds of Rhinos traveled about the endless snow-covered tundras in search of food.
This is one of a series of prehistoric animals—save them all for a complete Prehistoric Paste-Up World.

The Woolly Rhino used to dwell
Midst ice and snow and like it swell!
Of course he wore a heavy coat,
All buttoned up around his throat.
And it did keep him very warm—
Secure from cold and safe from harm.
And should a foe decide to fight,
Those two big horns were dynamite!—
All this made for a happy life
With much content and free from strife.

DIRECTIONS ● Mount the entire page upon thin cardboard and then cut out the several parts. Be sure to cut the two slits on the snout also. Folding upon dotted lines will bring parts into proper position to be pasted. (Stars indicate where to put paste).
First paste tab "A" (on side of animal to left hand side of page) to the back as noted—then paste all the tabs on back to their proper position inside the body. Next paste the starred tabs of strip "B" to inside of body at the middle—this will give the animal sufficient width. Now insert the tabs on the horns (folded together and pasted of course) into slits on snout, the large horns at the end, the small ones between it and the ears. Finally knot a short piece of spring through cross at tail end for tail. That's all.
Your Woolly Rhino is complete and ready for you to put into your Prehistoric Paste-Up World.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

LIE LAND

THE CHARACTERS

O. HUM—A bad opossum.
PEACHY PIE—O. Hum's peach pie companion.
TWO FACES—A resident of Lie Land.

Folks living in Lie Land never improve themselves. They spend all their time trying to make you think that they have. If they would put one-half of the time it takes them to make the neat-looking false fronts that they place before their miserable houses on repairing the houses themselves; and if they planted new trees and flowers when the old ones died, instead of hiding them behind phony stage trees and flowers, there would be no such place as Lie Land, and the folks living here wouldn't have to wear smiling false faces. Their faces would be cheerful enough without them. But alas, the people living here have strayed too far from the paths of truth for this. They even try to hide the moon behind a painted, wooden sun to make it look like daytime instead of night. And into this awful place O. Hum and Peachy Pie have drifted. We see them walking down the main street as THE PLAY BEGINS

O. HUM—It's awful funny the way you can look right at the sun and it doesn't hurt your eyes. (They walk on and soon meet Two Faces, who turns his smiling back to them while he watches them in a mirror.)
TWO FACES—Awful cold, isn't it? (He lies.) I wish it would quit snowing.
O. HUM—(Surprised.) Why, it isn't snowing. (O. Hum has unwittingly told the truth and Two Faces scowls.)

TWO FACES—Watch what you are saying, you fool. (O. Hum is surprised and looks questioningly at Peachy Pie.)
PEACHY PIE—He's right, O. Hum. This is Lie Land. The truth isn't wanted here. It would blow away all these false fronts and show things as they really are. We wouldn't be here if you had not stolen me from Hilda Hoarder and covered me and your crooked hands with lies. (And Peachy, telling the truth, causes a great wind to come. And it blows the false fronts and the lies away. And O. Hum and Peachy find themselves in a very drab, ugly land without their disguises. Poor O. Hum.)

MOVIE BIOGRAPHS

Cincinnati, Ohio.

After going through a few more than the usual number of hardships and disappointments encountered on the road to a successful career in the movies, Tyrone Power suddenly clicked in "Lloyd's of London." After that he was the outstanding find of the year. Under guidance of Darryl F. Zanuck of Twentieth Century-Fox, he continued to be a hit in "Love Is News," and "Thin Ice." Comes from a family of actors, his father being a famous Shakespearean actor. Before Hollywood he played with Little Theater groups, including Katharine Cornell's company in Detroit. Likes to tell of days when a hamburger was a meal and a hallroom was luxury. Tall and dark with brown eyes.

Seeking Plants in the Jungle for Shaw's Garden

Paul Allen's Description of What He Found in His Journey Through the Wilds of Panama.

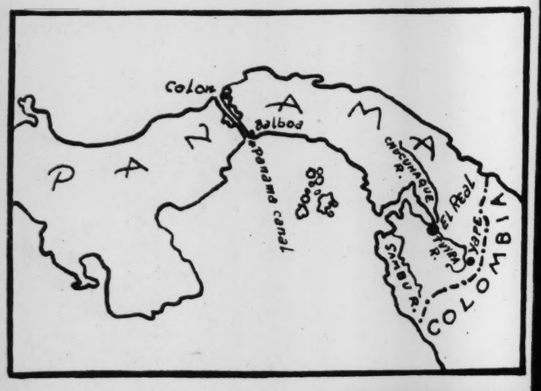

Chart showing route followed by Allen.

Paul Allen, Resident Manager of the Shaw's Garden Tropical Station.

EIRD sights, unusual experiences and humorous incidents of a search for rare plants in the wilds of an uncharted jungle section of Panama are related by Paul Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Allen of Kirkwood, in this letter recently received by Shaw's Garden officials. Allen was graduated from the Missouri Botanical Garden School in 1935 and was appointed resident manager of the Shaw's Garden Tropical Station at Balboa in 1936. The station is an important adjunct to the orchid collection and development at Shaw's Garden. New plants constantly are being collected there and grown under natural conditions; seeds and specimen plants are used to enlarge the Garden collection and to supply new stock.

Allen, 28 years old, first went to Panama in 1935 on an orchid hunting expedition with Dr. Carroll W. Dodge, mycologist and professor of botany at Washington University, Dr. Julian Steyermark, graduate botanist of the University, and Abel A. Hunter who then was director of the station. Hunter became fatally ill on the trip and died in a Panama City hospital. Before the trip was broken up by this misfortune, the four botanists had collected 5500 orchid plants and 10,700 other plant specimens.

Allen tells of the experiences he and his native helper had on Allen's latest expedition deep into the wilds scarcely known to the white men. These jungles cover many square miles of territory near the Colombian border and in the region of Rio Tuyra.

TROPICAL STATION,
BALBOA, Canal Zone.

We got down to the dock in the afternoon with all the trees, vascula, presses, and other impedimenta, and got roundly laughed at for our pains by all the dock loafers. As usual, the boat came in to load at high tide, and then pulled out about a mile into the bay to await sailing time at 11 p. m. At 11 the tide was out, so we had to wander stumbling and swearing along the long reef which runs a half mile into Panama Bay. After a half-hour's wait, our boatman from the ship finally came bumping along from the reef with a little panga and took us off. One never becomes entirely accustomed to the many manifestations of the phosphorescence in the water. As the boatman would walk over the black volcanic rock, his wet feet would leave, for a fleeting instant, fiery footprints in his wake. It was really quite startling.

Our ship was the largest owned by the company, and while the passenger accommodations were extremely poor, it was equipped to the fullest for the carriage of bananas. Morning found us near the mouth of the gulf, with the Pearl Islands far off to southward. The sea was very calm, and as we came under the influence of the fresh water from the river dozens of porpoise appeared and lazily began going through their unending morning calisthenics of rolling over imaginary barrels. The breeze was still fresh from the coast, and it was still clear enough for us to see the high, round-shouldered peaks guarding the entrance. By some strange alchemy of their own, they soon were brewing clouds which hung in long trailing curtains, evaporating off into nothingness. The reef at the mouth was booming, with long curling breakers going over it constantly, so we ran south and made the entrance near the mouth of the Rio Sambu. The peak there is a high truncated pyramid, and looks bare in the upper half.

The fair weather was not to last, however, as a white mist was soon seen driving toward us down the bay, and we were into it soon, to enjoy all the fury of a true tropical downpour. The ship rolled steadily on, and we hung over the sides to enjoy the edifying sight of the swirling mud and trash brought down the river.

We arrived in El Real late in the afternoon, having made a near-record run of 17 hours. Pablo was pleased beyond words with the trees, and insisted that I wait until the next day and go up the river in the banana company's launch. He is their agent in Real. He also gave me a note to the manager of the company's finca in Yape, so that I might stay there if I wished. The ship was busy receiving bananas until far into the night. After the men were paid off, they repaired at once to the local Chinese, and were soon roaringly drunk. Interest was divided between two local dances, with the long rubbing roll of the little log and bear-hide drums, and a sort of local variety of bowling. This latter is played by the Cholos with six squared and roughly tapered mahogany pins about 18 inches high, and a rolling-pin sort of log, also about 18 inches. The pegs are hammered into the ground, and the player stands at about 40 feet distance and throws the log at the pins. The game is to bet on whether odds or evens will be left standing. As the night wore on and the mozos got drunker and drunker and the betting wilder and wilder, we decided to go home. After all, there probably are few things worse than a drunken Cholo.

After many delays and false starts we got loaded into the launch and on our way in the morning. As usual, the gas in the fuel tank had mysteriously acquired a very appreciable percentage of water, which called forth voluble Spanish of the choicest from the mechanic. We finally swung into the current and headed up stream. The Rio Tuyra is extremely winding with deep alluvial soil banks. The forest has been cleared away in semicircular slices along the banks and long green stretches of bananas planted. In the center of each patch, on the river bank, are the characteristic round thatch houses of the Cholos. These are mounted on hard palm poles, with the living platform about seven feet above the ground. A notched log is the communicating unit from the ground to the living quarters above. The houses have no sides and no interior division, all living in a common communal room or platform. The floors are made of a species of Astrocaryum (?), a flinty-hard black palm. The trunks are felled and very ingeniously cracked with the ax so that they can be unrolled and flattened into a very hard and durable board.

"I found a medicine dance in progress."

CHOLOS paint their bodies in varying colors, but most commonly red, black, and blue. A favorite method is to blacken the arms and hands from the elbow down, or to paint a broad blue band around the mouth from nose to chin, narrowing back toward the ears. Sometimes the patterns are very intricate and are supposed to have some tribal significance for a special occasion. The dugouts, or "piraguas" as they call them there, are all built Colombian style, long and slender with perfectly proportioned flattened ends, the last word in jungle river travel equipment. We saw many of them poling up stream, using the picturesque and rhythmic method of the country. The poler mounts the flat end of the bow, plants his pole firmly in the mud, and proceeds to walk back down his piragua to the center, thus driving the craft up stream with his feet.

Soon after noon the river began rising very rapidly, bringing down loads of mud, trash, and tree trunks. The crew decided it was inadvisable to try to get as far as Boca de Cupe, and turned in about 2:30 at the Cholo village of Yape. Yape is about 27 miles up the river, and about 24 miles from the Colombian line. It is a town of perhaps 20 houses, distributed on both sides of the river. Curiously, there are no Chinese in Yape, the local trading being done by the chief of the tribe. Fortunately, I had my letter of introduction to the manager of the company banana finca, a Colombian, so went back with my baggage and turned in. The accommodations were a bit sketchy, being a shed open at the sides and level with the ground, but the roof was tin and there was a half barrel to catch rain water.

I became at once an object of extreme interest to the Colombian and Cholo workers from the compound. They would stand around in a line about the shack and watch every move I made, whispering among themselves and breaking into gales of laughter at the "mad Gringo" and his equipment. Two of the boldest would come at meal times and sit on the opposite ends of the table while I ate, and seemed to get infinite amusement from everything. The Cholos have a monosyllabic language which they use entirely among themselves, the Colombians speaking an almost unrecognizable dialect of Spanish. I finally found a boy whom I could understand fairly well, and started out collecting plants the next morning, the river still being on a rampage. The trails we found very dark, and full of shank-deep standing water. Small scarlet fiddler crabs about the size of a child's hand would back into the entrances to their castles under the roots of trees and wave their giant claws in defiance before scuttling out of sight. The heat was intense, even more than the nearer approach to the equator would seem to warrant. Also the mosquitoes would give us no peace, dancing in swarms around us as we walked and settling on every exposed bit of skin as soon as we stood still. It soon became necessary to have sleeves down, collars up, handkerchiefs up to the eyes, and the face and neck covered below the hat.

The first day out we saw the first leper I had ever seen. He came along in almost knee-deep water and mud, and was almost on us before I noticed that his face was almost entirely gone on the left side. I shied off the trail till he had passed, and asked the boy about him. He said that he came from the higher country down to trade, and that they were occasionally seen there. The third day we came on another leper washing gold all alone in a small tributary of the Rio Balsas. They aren't particularly pleasant things to run into, especially before dinner. Collecting was about the usual run of trees, shrubs, and vines, until we came on the most enormous Aristolochia ("pelican plant") I have ever seen or dreamed of. This in all sober fact has flowers measuring seven feet eight inches from the top of the flower to the tip of the tail. I did my best to get pictures, as I knew no one would ever believe it in any other way. I pressed up the two flowers we found.

We ran into some sort of herb which causes intense burning in the legs, evidently from contact. After undressing for night and getting into my mosquito bar, the burning would still be so severe that it was almost unbearable to have anything touch the legs. This would wear off toward morning, but we would get it again the next day.

The second night of my stay, about 7 o'clock, there came the long rumble of drums from across the river and the peculiar high-pitched wail of women chanting. I went across out of curiosity and found a medicine dance in progress. They have great faith in the local medicine man, who work healing by means of charms and dances. The patient in this case was a boy of perhaps 8 years, twitching and moaning under a sort of canopy built by the healer. The old men and women were squatted into corners on the platform, beating out the long rumbling roll from the little drums with the slap of the fingers and final thump with the heel of the hand. The young able-bodied women were in a circle about the sufferer, each holding to the skirt of the one forward, and moving with a rhythmic stamp and shuffle around and around. The old ones would lead the chant, and the circle would come in on the chorus. After some time of this the men also formed a circle, each with a curious sort of wooden flute or horn pointing down toward the patient. Each performer seemed to need all his breath to blow one note from his instrument, at the same instant shifting to the right with the circle. No two horns had the same pitch, and the effect was weird in the extreme, with the throbbing accompaniment of the drums. Every one was partaking freely of the chicha, a sort of fermented drink made by chewing corn, then spitting the entire mess into a jar to ferment. The mosquitoes were getting bad, and the partakers of chicha more and more often, so I made for camp. Curiously enough, the sick boy seemed much better the next day.

DISEASE seems to be prevalent in all sorts and forms. My host at the finca was suffering from beri-beri, so that if he pressed the flesh on any part of his body, the mark was visible for over a minute. We saw several others when we were on the trail. Skin disease and cancer, tuberculosis, syphilis and fever about make the list of things commonly seen. There are no doctors, so that they must trust to the tender mercies of the medicine men.

The usual program was to get into the nets by dark, in self-defense against the mosquitoes, and lie and listen to the hum whirring through the house in pursuit of night-flying insects. Often there would come a noise of some animal running through the shed, or the sound of the wild pigs afar off, quarreling over the fallen bananas. Late in the night the rain would come, first in scattering drops on the banana leaves, then rapidly increasing to a roar on the tin roof, assuring me of plenty of fresh water for the morrow.

After three days of collecting all presses were full to overflowing, and as I had no means of drying plants it became essential to make for home as quickly as possible. After some haggling I found a boy to take me and my cargo down the river in a piragua. We left at daylight and swept down the bends of the river, the giant white-trunked trees rising high and majestic back of the bananas at each turn of the stream. Arrival in Real showed the river clear of any prospect of getting home, the next boat being due three days off. Fortunately, I developed that a boat was in the Rio Chiriqui-cunaque loading, and due to sail at daylight. The only chance was to get out at 5 a. m. and run down to the mouth of the river in a piragua and chance catching a passage. The next morning at this hour it was raining torrents and so black you couldn't see your hand in front of your face. I finally roused out a Kuna boy who was in town and an old Colombian Negro. We bailed out a dugout, loaded our plants and baggage, and headed down river. The rain stopped about the time we reached the mouth of the river, and we sat twixt hope and despair until 8:30. Then came a comical little tub, chug-chugging down the river. This noble craft was about 25 feet long, part motor and part sail, loaded with mahogany planks, plantains, a crew of four, the captain, three Colombian passengers, and two Cholo families. The tub had about a foot of free board, but after some speculation the captain agreed to take me. Since there was no other room, I spent the day and night on top, in the shadow of the sail.

Most Bad Breath Begins with the teeth!

Scientists discover new facts about bad breath

Tests among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) indicate that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! Tests show that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Don't be too sure this doesn't mean you!

TESTS among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) indicate that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! Tests also show that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests show, are the source of most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifying and washing away those food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile.

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate Dental Cream at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth—sweeter, purer breath!

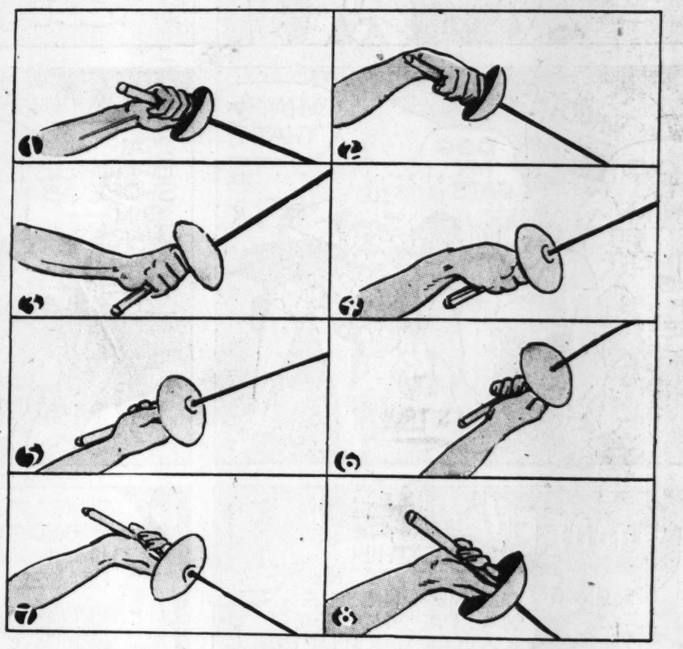
Position of the Hand and Sword While Parrying.



The parry, of which there are eight types, is important because it is used so often in fencing. They are executed almost entirely with the fingers and wrist. These develop greater strength as the fencer takes increased interest in the sport. The parry requires but a light, quick touch to turn aside even a powerful lunge.

CHINESE FALL BACK A MILE NORTHWEST OF SHANGHAI

Retreat to Fortified Lines Near Liuhong, in Center of 25-Mile Front—Fierce Battle Also Raging Around Lotien.

JAPANESE HEAVILY SHELL DEFENSES

Invaders Use Two-Mile Pack Train to Move Up Food and Munitions After Slow Advance Over Irrigated Land.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4. — Japanese rushed up reinforcements on the battle front northwest of Shanghai today to secure the positions from which Chinese fell back last night in what the defenders termed another "strategic withdrawal."

The Chinese put up a stubborn rear guard fight as they slowly retreated west of Liuhong, in the center of the 25-mile line. At other points they were holding the defense positions they took up after their first withdrawal from the shores of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers two weeks ago.

One of the fiercest battles of the war at Shanghai was being fought along the Liuhong-Lotien sector stretching inland from the Yangtze. Both sides suffered heavy casualties.

Japanese warships in the Whangpoo and Yangtze poured shell after shell into Chinese positions. Japanese planes dropped hundreds of bombs.

A huge fire lit up the Pootung waterfront, the industrial district across the Whangpoo from Shanghai.

Japanese Advance Slow.

Japanese Army authorities said earlier they had achieved only slight gains. A Japanese spokesman said both Chinese and Japanese suffered heavy losses in the Liuhong-Lotien sector where Japanese advanced slowly through muddy rice paddies. The Chinese announced withdrawal to fortified lines a mile farther inland.

The Japanese said they had occupied 30 small villages in three days of fighting.

They also reported that for the first time Chinese were shelling them with eight-inch guns.

A correspondent who toured a seven-mile sector behind Japanese lines found Japanese feverishly pushing reinforcements to the front. Because fields were muddy and crisscrossed with creeks and irrigation canals, Japanese used ancient methods to send forward food and munitions.

A two-mile file of pack horses plodded steadily from the Whangpoo to the front. Jukong Wharf, which Japanese captured three weeks ago, was turned into a pack train and cavalry concentration camp. Probably 4000 horses were in the area.

Japanese Base in Kiangwan.

Japanese still occupied the Kiangwan Civic Center, using the section as a base for supplies and reinforcement.

Camouflaged one-man tanks went forward from the civic center building. Long trains of two-wheeled carts filled the road to the front. Overhead, Japanese planes roared continuously.

Once again Americans leaving Shanghai were endangered by shelling. Twenty American women and children—the families of naval officers—were forced to flee below decks on the United States minesweeper Finch.

Shells from Japanese warships bombarding Pootung whizzed over the American vessel.

During the shelling Lieut. R. G. Hickover remained on the bridge to move the ship out of the danger zone. He reported the Japanese displayed poor marksmanship but said the erratic dispersion of the shells may have been due to worn gun linings.
